BRONCHITIS, OROURUS, and other pulmonary diseases, which render many persons unfit for appearance in company, and makes them positively intolerable in a close room, can be remedied at once by the use of the most reliable and effective remedy, SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP. No other application has ever been known to produce such a desirable result. Colored and other aromatic perfumes have been tried in vain, and Schenck's Sulphur Soap can alone be relied on to cure the cause permanently.

Bill's Hair and Whisker Dye, black or brown, 50c. dead w.

Consumption can be cured. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic, Schenck's Mankra Pills, are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Frequently medicines that will stop a cough will occasion the death of the patient; they lock up the liver, stop the circulation of the blood, hemorrhage follows, and in fact they play the action of the very organs that caused the cough. Liver complaint and dyspepsia are the cause of two-thirds of the cases of consumption. Many persons complain of a dull pain in the side, constipation, coated tongue, pain in the shoulder blade, feelings of drowsiness and restlessness, the feet lying heavily on the stomach, accompanied with acidity and belching up of wind.

These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver. Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy doses, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly checked, will find the stomach and liver clogged, remaining torpid and inactive, and almost before they are aware the lungs are a mass of sores, and the lungs, the result of which is death.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant which does not contain opium or anything calculated to check a cough suddenly. Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic dissolves the food, mixes with the gastric juices of the stomach, aids digestion, and creates a ravenous appetite. When the bowels are constipated, skin eruptions, or the symptoms of other ailments, Schenck's Mankra Pills are required. These medicines are prepared only by J. H. SCHENCK & SON, N. E. corner Sixth & Arch Sts., Philadelphia.

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Thermometer 58 degrees F. in the shade at 1 p.m. to-day. Cloudy.

Missionaries for Europe. - It is expected that the missionaries, called to go to Europe at the late General Conference, will leave on the 1st of November.

The steamship Idaho sails from New York on November 6th, and those desiring to cross the ocean on that vessel will therefore have to start from here not later than the date first named.

Key. - The person who lost a key, with the word "security" engraved on it, will find it at this office.

Championship. - The Salt Lake and Ogden cricket clubs have been contesting, this afternoon, on Washington Square, for the championship medal of Utah.

Eleventh Ward. - Last night the Eleventh Ward Mutual Improvement Association organized for winter exercises. The officers are: Joseph H. Felt, President; Robert Morris and Geo. Coulam, Counselors; Edwin Liddle, Secretary; Joshua R. Bean, Asst. Secretary; Hy. Coulam, Treasurer; Ebenezer N. Child, Librarian. The officers were elected for one year.

Not He. - Charles Decker Hanks called last evening and requested us to state, in the News, that his friends and acquaintances may not be misled, that he is not the person by the name of Hanks mentioned in one of the city papers as having been recently arrested on a charge of fraudulent behavior.

Alleghenians. - The performance at the Theatre last night elicited great applause from the audience. It was a chaste musical entertainment of great variety and brilliant execution. The singing, the bell ringing, the either and table viola playing, the performance on the musical glasses, the cornet band music, etc., was all good and performed with marked ability.

Another entertainment will be given this evening. The Alleghenians will then take a tour southward as far as Payson and will no doubt receive extensive patronage in the settlements.

That Poisoning. - Yesterday we mentioned the accidental poisoning of Mrs. H. J. Harrison and her daughter Jane, of Bountiful, on Monday. The herb that caused the mischief was purchased for scullap, but it appears that the party selling it had given the lady belladonna or stramonium, by mistake. Instead. The symptoms which followed the taking of the decoction were, indistinct vision, loss of the power of motion, great dilatation of the pupils of the eyes, delirium, etc. Emetics, followed by stimulants, etc., caused the alarming appearances to subside, and we understand the patients are both recovering.

Returned Missionaries. - Elders John W. Sharp of South Cottonwood, and Joseph Argyle of Bountiful, arrived last evening from their mission to the States, on which they started from this city November 20, 1876. They spent most of their time in Tennessee. Elder Argyle visited awhile in Mississippi and Arkansas. They were well treated in Tennessee, churches, school-houses, and private houses being opened for their ministrations, the people showing them the utmost kindness and respect. They baptized thirteen persons and rebaptized eleven; organized a branch of the Church at Totterbend, Hickman County; ordained J. H. Totty an Elder, and left him to preside over the branch, and laid the foundation for a good work followed up by faithful Elders. A family of ten are now on their way to Zion. There are openings for preaching in many places, and the congregations more than fill the meeting houses.

The brethren were released by Elder H. G. Boyle, President of the district. Brother Sharp's health being very much impaired. They labored hard and faithfully, and the people were so much interested in the gospel that the brethren for a while could get little rest, night nor day, being followed around from place to place by those anxious to inquire after the truth. Several very remarkable manifestations of the power of God in the healing of the sick followed their ministrations. Elder Argyle is rugged and healthy; but Elder Sharp is still somewhat feeble from repeated colds and the effects of the change of climate. These Elders have done a good work, and we hope the foundation they have laid will be built upon by other faithful ministers of the truth.

MacDuff, and asking that the city cause deeds to be executed to him therefor, referred to the committee on public grounds.

Petition of Isaac Trumbo, asking that his restaurant and merchant licenses be transferred to George Arbogast; granted.

The committee on claims, to whom was referred the bill of Jesse W. Fox, Jun., city surveyor, for sundry surveys made from August 13th to October 9th, and furnishing lumber for stakes, $108.29, reported favorably on said bill, and recommended that the amount thereof be allowed and appropriated; report adopted.

Violent Assault. - Last night a young Scotchman, named John Ramsay, was proceeding down East Temple Street, on his way to the Third Ward. When a short distance below the City Pottery, he noticed a tall man standing on the sidewalk. After passing this individual he turned his head to look at him, when he received from the stranger a heavy blow on the jaw, and, as he faced his assailant, another one upon the cheek. Young Ramsay, thinking it was time for him to act, struck the fellow a powerful blow on the forehead, partially stunning him. He aimed another, missed the man and struck a shade tree, injuring his knuckles. The two clenched, Ramsay getting his arm around the fellow's neck and throwing him to the ground, he on top of him. In this position Ramsay had the advantage, which he made the most of, pounding his assailant with his fist till he got tired, and finally leaving him lying on the ground groaning.

Ramsay is unable to account for the attack made upon him in any other way than the supposition that the fellow intended to garrot him, but was prevented seizing him from behind by his turning his head when he did. He had a good view of his assailant, at the time the occurrence took place, did not recognize him, but could identify him should he see him again. With the exception of a swollen jaw and a painful stiffness about the knuckles of the right hand, Mr. Ramsay was uninjured. No weapons were used on either side.

Only a few weeks since Mr. Robert Irvine, while on his way home from business, was stopped by three men in the same vicinity, who presented pistols at him, but he escaped by the liberal use of his legs and lungs. He subsequently stated that he made excellent time on the occasion.

Evolution. - Under the caption of "Practical Evolution" the Scientific American of the 20th inst., gives an account of some experiments by a German lady to bring about a change in the Mexican gilled salamander, or "Axolotl," from the state of a water animal, which breathes by external gills, to that of a land animal, breathing by lungs. From the statement made it appears that the lady was successful, which is considered by the writer as "one of the most remarkable feats in evolution on record."

He also tells us that the same kind of changes had been observed and noted by M. Dumeril, as having occurred, naturally, in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, in 1867, where some thirty of these "Axolotls" had changed into distinct amphibians, "a true land salamander, breathing air only by lungs." After then noting some of the ingenious methods resorted to by the said German lady to effect the same kind of changes artificially, the writer concludes by a broad generalization in favor of evolution which no facts presented by him can justify. He says: "It is stated that the gills and tail fin seemed to shrivel by actual drying, through the action of the air, and that they were not absorbed by the vital processes of the animal itself. This is considered by Professor Huxley to be a most interesting point, as it shows how the first air-breathing amphibia may have been evolved from double-breathers by a succession of dry seasons; that is, by purely mechanical causes." This may be very interesting to Professor Huxley; all facts are so to that great observer of natural phenomena, but no fair inferences can be made in favor of such conclusions as the writer advances. It may be seen in the American Journal of Science and Art, Vol. 46, November, 1868, that Professor O. C. Marsh proves the metamorphosis of axolotls into amphibians, and shows clearly that which the great Cuvier had suspected, namely, that "all axolotls are merely larval salamanders." That gentleman also hints that all animals which begin life in the water and breathe by means of branchial gills, external to the body, are "undeveloped young of well-known species."

It is so with the branchial, or frog-like form, of which the tadpole of "Spizella" is a type. The water-dog also passes through similar changes; it is in fact the tadpole of the future urodel, or tailed branchian, the amblystoma of naturalists. This has been proved, time and again in this city, where the researches of Professor Marsh have been repeatedly verified. The Mexican "Axolotl" (siredon) Mexicans and the Utah "water-dog" (siredon lichenoides of Baird) are well known to be future terrestrial salamanders in an undeveloped state. That their development may be arrested, and that they may remain permanently aquatic is conjectural, the evidence in favor of such supposition being rather affirmative than otherwise. That, because the gills and tail fins, by which the writer doubtless means the membranes of the dorsal, ventral and caudal parts of the animal should get dry out of the water is natural, the fins of any fish would do so; that under such abnormal conditions such parts would not be absorbed by the natural processes is reasonable; but that this shows how, by a succession of dry seasons, air-breathing amphibious animals were or could be evolved from animals with gills, there is no evidence whatever in the article referred to.

The origin of man is a question which scientists have been unable to solve. The theory that his existence as an intelligent being commenced on the earth, and that he evolved from the "lower forms" of terrestrial life is speculative and uncertain. It appears, however, that the enunciators of this conception are ready to grasp at mere shadows, in the absence of more substantial means, to support their view. So far as truth has been demonstrated by the researches of scientists, their discoveries are in exact uniformity with the principles that have been revealed through and in the gospel of Jesus Christ, which is in reality, the "Science of Life." That system defines man's origin, and shows that same harmony which already exists between genuine theology and scientifically discovered truth, will remain unbroken, for truth cannot conflict with itself.

The Alleghenians. - This troupe of vocalists and Swiss bell-ringers, who have been so successful at the Salt Lake Theatre, are to give the people residing on the Utah Southern Railway a rich musical treat. We heartily recommend Mr. Waldron and his talented troupe to the lovers of good music.
