

BIG CONVENTION ENDS TOMORROW

Lively Canvass Being Made on Public Selection of Officers For Next Year.

ADDRESS BY SUPT. COOLEY.

It Will Mark Close of the Sessions, and Will be Delivered in Opera House Friday Evening.

(Special to the "News.") Ogden, Jan. 3.—Tomorrow will mark the end of the big convention. The day will be principally taken up in a general business session in the afternoon, at which the officers for the next year will be chosen, and a general assembly in the evening at which Supt.
Cooley will deliver a closing address.

In the morning the departmental meetings will be continued as was the practice on Wednesday and Thursday, and preceding the general business session in the afternoon, Miss Arnold will speak on the topic, "The Essentials of a Liberal Education."

At the general reception given in the Auditorium Wednesday evening a topic of much discussion was the matter of a ticket for the year's officers. The idea was to select a president to succeed Geo. A. Eaton, a first vice president to succeed O. M. Mower, a second vice president to succeed W. N. Peterson and a secretary-treasurer to succeed L. M. Gilliam.

The custodian is ex-officio the state superintendent of schools and no election will be held for this office. It is a little early yet to pick a favorite for the office of president. However, an active canvass is being made today, and it develops a lively boom for the re-election of President Geo. A. Eaton.

meaning of this relationship, and discharge it properly. To know what this citizenship means and to live up to its duties and privileges, requires a fuller and more thorough knowledge of each recurring year. Herein consists the increasing responsibility of the teachers in the schools. For this citizenship will be a greater and a holier thing each day as the years go by.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY.

"The greatest danger confronting any system of self-government is that it may become too large, too broad, too heavy for its citizens to be able to sustain it worthily. This danger was illustrated in ancient times. Greece and Rome, the greatest republics of antiquity, went to their ruin because the people did not grow in individual intelligence, greatness, and worth proportionately with their commonwealths. Therefore the increasing burden became too heavy for their weakened shoulders; and the great nations became first monarchies, then an-archies, and tumbled to their inevitable fall.

"This sense of individual responsibility, and the knowledge that it must increase from year to year, should be instilled into the minds of the pupils; and herein is the larger and constantly increasing duty of the teacher. Our nation can not become too great. Its increase in greatness implies a corresponding growth on the part of its citizens. But it can become too large. If with its increased size there is not manifest a proportionate greatness, bulk is external; greatness is internal. In a republic there can be but one kind of greatness, and that is the greatness of the citizens. Increasing size, without this corresponding greatness, is an element of weakness, not of strength.

"Much has been said of late regarding the questions of expansion, imperialism, etc. There have been expressed that the United States will extend its power too far, become too strong, too much a factor in the great affairs of the nations. But to my mind the question is not so much whether or not the nation shall expand beyond its present extent; overrun its present boundaries; acquire new territory. It is rather whether or not the national intellect, the national character—in a word, the national character—shall be proportionate with the increased responsibility which the providence of God shall bring to us.

It may not be for us to determine whether or not the nation shall enlarge its bounds. If that is its destiny, that destiny is in the hands of God. But it is our province to determine whether or not we and our children shall grow proportionately with it. It is our duty to see to it that we do.

TEACHERS' RESPONSIBILITY.

"Since our children are entrusted to you teachers, your responsibility is to see that they should measure up to the greater standard which God has in-providence may fix for them, in the expansion of our influence among the nations. I am proud to be able to say that in Utah this responsibility is being discharged by the schools as conscientiously and efficiently as in any other part of the Union.

"Patrons of the schools have a right to expect that they shall touch all phases of this national growth. This includes not only the intellectual, but the practical. And it is one source of sincere congratulation that the public schools of the United States emphasize this idea of practical preparation. If a great canal is to be constructed, public buildings erected, a great railroad built, lands reclaimed, armies trained and led, any of the arts of war or peace performed, the great citizenship of the nation can look with confidence to the schools for the men and women, the brain and brawn, to do the work and do it well. And this thorough preparation for large practical affairs implies a similar preparation for the smaller but equally essential affairs of "the private individual. The schools are doing this work well if these elements are properly related to the intellectual growth maintained.

"LEST THEY FORGET."

"And now, with equipment for thorough training in practical matters; with the intellectual standard raised to correspond with increasing demands; and with moral instruction on a plane as broad and high as the nation's growing influence, I see no reason why the schools shall not perform with won-derous efficiency the work required of them. If together with this work, they shall add the future citizens of the republic to sense their responsibility to the God of nations, we shall feel confident in entrusting our children to their guidance. It seems to me that the citizens and the coming citizens of a nation such as ours should read frequently that sublime poem, "Recessional," lest they forget to acknowledge Him who is the source of all our country's greatness.

"Two years ago, when I had the honor to meet with this association of teachers, I was just entering upon the duties of chief executive of the State of Utah. I said then that in my opinion one great reason for the proud position Utah holds in reference to its schools was the bringing in of outside talent to assist the local teachers. My experience and observation during the two years have confirmed that opinion. I therefore congratulate you again, as I did then, on the nature of your association work; on the help you receive each year from eminent visitors, on its vitalizing influence on the schools. And it is a cause of congratulation that, to all appearance, this association meeting will not fall behind similar ones previously held.

SOME OF THE PAPERS.

L. B. Austin and Others Deliver Interesting Addresses to Teachers.

(Special to the "News.")

Ogden, Jan. 3.—Yesterday afternoon sessions of various departments were held, following the general morning session, and preceding the social entertainment of the evening. L. B. Austin delivered the principal paper on the social side of high school life, at the high school section. His paper was followed by one on "A Plea for Language," by Prof. Geo. M. Marshall, a paper on "Some Problems of the Local High School," by L. E. Egertsen of Utah county.

For next year L. B. Austin of Ogden was elected president, and James E.
Moss of Salt Lake, secretary.
The school board section met at the Weber club. Mathoniah Thomas of Salt Lake was chosen temporary chairman, and Wesley Jacques of Logan, secretary. Mr. Thomas opened a general discussion on "The Duties of the Trust-tee to the Community." A committee was appointed after the discussion to permanently organize the school trusttees of the state.

The feature of the juvenile court section which met in the city council chamber, was a paper by Judge Willis Brown on the "Juvenile Court as an Educational Institution." Judge Brown reviewed the causes leading up to the needs for such a court.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater—Tonight opens the engagement of "The Little Duchess," originally written for Anna Held, now presented by the Countess Olga Von Hatzfeldt.

Following this attraction comes Florence Roberts in her famous play, "The Strength of the Weak," and an entire new production, "Maria Rosa."

Orpheum—The management of the Orpheum announces the following for next week: The four Lukens, originators of the world's most famous aerial acts; Alfred Keely and company in "Sister Mary of Clonmarty;" Georgian-na Clark, the Scottish nightingale; Edward Clary, the tell tale; Belle Bordon, the athletic girl; Robisch and Children, in an operatic comedy, and the kindred.

Grand—Tonight sees the first performance of "Nettle the News Girl," billed as a big melodramatic sensation.

Lyric—"A Fight for a Fortune" is running along to good business at the Lyric, and will continue throughout the week.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Mantor announce the engagement of their daughter Ella R. to Robert W. Gordon, the wedding to take place in April at Los Angeles.

Mrs. A. D. Meyers of Goldfield, who is here spending the holidays with her daughter Ada, gave an elaborate luncheon at the Knutsford yesterday for her daughter, covers being laid for 18 of the young lady's friends. The decorations were in red and white, the colors of Rowland Hall, Miss Ada's school, the centerpiece being a large swan-shaped basket filled with carnations, its handle twined with smilax and Christmas bells, while vases of the same flowers were at each end of the table. Favara, in the way of volumes of the well known poets were at each place, and ferns and sprays of smilax were strewn over the board.

After the luncheon Mrs. Meyers took the party for a trolley ride.

C. W. Whitley was host at an elaborate New Year's dinner, his guests numbering 18, the table being beautifully decorated in holiday colors and a stringed orchestra playing a choice selection of music.

Last night the marriage of Miss Ella E. Meeks and M. R. Haynes took place at the home of the bride's brother, Walter E. Meeks, with Rev. C. E. Perkins officiating. The rooms were effectively decorated in pink roses and carnations and the candles were shaded in pink. The bride's gown was of white batiste, and she carried La France roses. Assisting in entertaining were Miss Daisy Hale and Miss Hazel Potter.

Miss Virginia Shannon entertained at cards today in honor of her guest, Miss Taylor of Idaho Falls.

Mrs. Joseph Young left yesterday with her children for her home in Denver.

Miss Agatha Berkhool will be guest of honor of the University club on Saturday night, a dinner to be given by a half dozen members, and later a reception will be held in her honor, the affair being in charge of the social committee of the club. Miss Berkhool leaves shortly for a long stay in New York.

Mrs. Grant Hampton gave a luncheon today in honor of Mrs. G. L. Nye, followed by a matinee party at the Orpheum.

Mrs. George P. Holman gave a bridge tea at her home today, the event being the first of a series.

Miss Elsie Dickert leaves today for a month's stay in Santa Monica.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Witcher left today for Ely, Nev., for an extended stay.

Mrs. Charles S. Wilkes of Goldfield leaves today evening for her Nevada home, after a pleasant visit with her father-in-law, Maj. Edmund Wilkes of this city.

BANKERS OPTIMISTIC.

Salt Lake Financiers Take no Stock in Stuyvesant Fish's Prediction.

Salt Lake bankers hardly agree with the rather gloomy financial prediction of Stuyvesant Fish of New York, as noted in yesterday afternoon's dispatches. Mr.
McCormick says Mr. Fish is too pessimistic; there is no occasion for apprehension.
The failure of the volume of currency to keep pace with the growth of the country's business can be remedied by Congress, while the speculative spirit that has prevailed will be in a short time curtailed. The fact that Wall street has had more than its share of financial money is no cause for fear. Mr. McCormick doubts very much the propriety of a man of Mr.
Fish's standing sending out such a statement.

President Frank Knox of the Bank of the Republic also disagrees with Mr. Fish, and holds that money's being dear is indicative of good rather than bad times, as it shows industrial activity. The country is prosperous and people are not in want, with farmers lending money and industrial workers receiving more wages than ever did before. Then factories are sold out one and two years in advance, and railroads have so much business that they can not handle it with expedition, while crops have been abundant.

LEAVING FOR MEXICO.

Utah Investors to Visit Montezuma Orange and Banana Plantation.

A number of prominent Utah investors are leaving today for Montezuma, Mex., for inauguration of active operations on the plantation recently purchased by the Montezuma Orange and Banana company.
In the party are J. M. and E. C. Jensen of Brigham City, A. H. Snow of Salt Lake, and H. L. Griffin of Ogden. The officers of the company are: H. L. Griffin, president; A. H. Snow, vice president; Elias Kimball, vice president; A. H. Peabody, treasurer; D. N. Straup and Lewis A. Merrill are directors.

The company has over 1,000 acres of land on the Tambores river, and is capitalized at $100,000. The party will be away three weeks, and on returning will leave the plantation in thoroughly competent hands.
