

FIFTY-FIRST YEAR

GEORGE H. PHILLIPS HAS SUSPENDED.

Tangled Condition of the Books is Given by the Corn King as the Reason for the Action of the Company.

August 1.—(Deseret News.)—The suspension of George H. Phillips, president of the Corn Producers' Association, has been announced by the board of directors of the association. The action was taken after a lengthy and somewhat confused discussion of the financial condition of the association. Phillips, who has been president since the organization was formed last year, was accused of having allowed the books to get into a tangled condition, making it impossible for the board to ascertain the true financial position of the association. The board, after a long session, decided to suspend Phillips until the books had been audited and brought up to date. Phillips was given a chance to explain his position, but he was unable to do so to the satisfaction of the board. The suspension is expected to last for several months, during which time the books will be audited and the financial condition of the association will be brought up to date.

MESSANGER BOYS ARE SHAKEN UP

Get Them Out of Service as a Result of the Shocking Disclosures Published in Last Evening's "News."

The shocking disclosures in the "News" of last evening have shaken up the messenger boys of Salt Lake City. The disclosures, which were published in the "News" of last evening, revealed the shocking conditions in which the messenger boys were being treated. The boys, who are employed by the various newspapers and businesses in the city, were found to be living in squalor and being treated with cruelty. The disclosures also revealed that the boys were being forced to work long hours for very little pay. The news of these conditions has caused a great deal of public indignation, and many people are now demanding that the boys be taken out of service and that the conditions be improved.

DENY REQUEST OF MR. SCHLEY.

Language of Fifth Specification to be Modified.

THE LETTERS THAT PASSED

Paragraph Charges a Disobedience of Department's Orders on May 25, 1898.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The navy department has refused to accede to Admiral Schley's suggestion that the language in the fifth specification to the court of inquiry be modified. The department has decided to stand by the original language of the specification, which charges Admiral Schley with disobedience of orders on May 25, 1898. The department's decision is based on the fact that the original language of the specification is supported by the evidence in the case. The department is not willing to modify the language of the specification, even though Admiral Schley has requested it.

Suppressed the Captain. Washington, Aug. 1.—The navy department has suppressed the captain's report of the sinking of the USS Maine. The department has decided to suppress the report because it contains information that is not in the public interest. The department is not willing to release the report, even though it is a public document. The suppression of the report has caused a great deal of public indignation, and many people are now demanding that the report be released.

Two Red Hats.

London, Aug. 1.—The Daily Express publishes an interview with Cardinal Gibbons, which it prefixes thus: "At present his is the only red hat in the United States, but in conversation with the representative of the Daily Express he intimated that the pope intended making Archbishop Ireland and Archbishop Corrigan princes of the church." Cardinal Gibbons is a prominent figure in the Catholic Church, and his statements are always of great interest. The interview reveals that Cardinal Gibbons is in good health and is still active in his duties. He also expressed his confidence in the pope and his belief in the Catholic faith.

Sailed on Time.

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—The steamer Sierra, with the English mails for Hawaii and Australia on board, sailed today on time. # SALT LAKE POST OFFICE ROBBED.

Smooth and Daring Thief Carries Off Registered Mail Matter and Makes Good His Escape.

A daring thief tampered boldly with the United States mail service at about 10:30 o'clock last night, and made his escape. Eleven pieces of registered mail went with him, the value being unknown. A careful search made this morning by Postmaster Thomas and the police resulted in the discovery of the thief, and he was taken into custody.

At the southwest corner of the post-office there is a basement window without a screen, the only window along the row that is unprotected. At about 10:30 o'clock last night, S. H. Reeves, the night mail clerk, was carrying the mail to the post-office. He was carrying a package of registered mail, and he was carrying it to the post-office. He was carrying it to the post-office, and he was carrying it to the post-office.

To do this he was required to go upstairs. In less than twenty minutes he returned. His first thought was for the package of registered mail, which he was going to put in the safe. He reached for it, but it was gone. No one had been near that corner from inside the post-office. Mr. Reeves was positive. He called Clark L. A. Hillings from another part of the office, and they made a hasty examination together, particularly of the corner in which Reeves' box was working.

In front of the cupboard where Reeves had left the package a leather pocket case about eight inches long was found. Neither clerk remembered ever having seen it before. It contained neither papers, cards, names or initials. The window above it was in normal position, about eighteen inches out of the bottom, and it was closed. The window was closed, and it was closed. The window was closed, and it was closed.

Mr. Hillings ran out of the post-office and around the alley which leads out about fifteen feet from Reeves' window. He found a registry return card and a falling slip, showing that the man who had the package before he left the office. The card found showed that the letter which accompanied it was from S. H. Reeves, Postmaster, and it was addressed to Miss Etta Lagerstraf of Salt Lake. Postmaster Thomas' view of the matter is that the robbery was undoubtedly committed by some one from the outside.

SPRY WILL PROBABLY GO FREE.

In the Absence of Sheriff Naylor No One Can Testify That the Accused Was in California—Released on Bonds at Noon Today.

Another continuance was granted by Justice Dana T. Smith in the Spry embezzlement case this morning until Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is by that time Sheriff Naylor does not return from Idaho, Judge Smith says he will discharge the defendant.

In the proceedings this morning there was a lively little tilt between Attorney Gustaf for the defense, and Deputy Sheriff Eldredge.

Mr. Eldredge was placed on the stand to testify that every effort had been made by the sheriff's office to locate the head of the department, Mr. Eldredge said he instructed Deputy Sheriff Halsey to telephone to the marshal at St. Anthony, and ask him to send out a messenger to find Mr. Naylor.

"Do you know that that was done?" "Yes," replied the witness.

"How do you know it?" "Because Mr. Halsey, always does his duty, and I know he telephoned."

Then, the only way to know you know that it was done is because you know. Mr. Halsey always does his duty, and you told him to telegraph."

Just then the court interrupted and asked the witness to answer the other questions. The witness then testified that he did not know of his own knowledge that his instructions had been followed.

SKELTON FIND OF EASTERN UTAH

Thought in Denver They Were the Kellys of That Place Who Mysteriously Disappeared Two Years Ago.

At last traces have been found of the Kelly family, whose disappearance in 1899 caused so much wonder and excitement, says the Denver Post. The Kellys lived in Georgetown, and two years ago Mr. Kelly with his wife and two children started on an overland trip to Washington state.

No word was ever received from them after their departure. One son, Ray Kelly, remained in Georgetown, and after months had passed and he had received no message from his parents he started in search of them. He traced the family as far as Rawlins, Wyo., where all traces of them were lost. Word was received here today from Salt Lake City that the bones of a man and two children had been found in eastern Utah, about 100 miles from
