LOCAL NEWS.

Arraigned.—This morning, in the District Court, Amos Mosher, of the Summit County, was arraigned on an indictment for grand larceny, charging him with having stolen nine head of steers, the property of Worthy Nash, of Alpine, Utah County. The defendant pleaded not guilty, and his bonds were fixed at $1,000, which were given.
Pleas "Not Guilty."—Mr. Wm. A. Rostetter came to the District Court this morning, and was arraigned on an indictment presented by the grand jury on the 15th inst., charging him with unlawful cohabitation from May 1, 1893, to April 1, 1895, with Eliza A. Granger Rostetter and Myra Young, and living with them as his wives contrary to the statute. The accused pleaded not guilty.
The "Contributor."—The February number of this magazine is before us, and as usual brimming full of attractive and instructive reading matter. The subjects embrace a wide range, and among the writers are several who have already attained to popularity or are in a fair way to do so, and whose names are attached to articles will insure for them a general perusal. The Contributor is accomplishing a good work, and we wish it success.
A Sudden Death.—Yesterday's issue of the Evening Herald has the following account of a lamentable death:
 This morning the remains of Mr. James Spencer, of Wellsville, were taken home on the Utah & Northern train. The circumstances of the death of Mr. Spencer are peculiar and distressing, and he leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss. It appears he has been in the habit for some time past of going out east of Rock Springs to work in the coal mines during the winter months, while he spends his time in farming during the summer. He was returning from Rock Springs yesterday, accompanied by his wife and children, and they took dinner at Wasatch. About one hour after taking their lunch, while Mr. Spencer was sitting at the table, he suddenly became ill, and in a few minutes he expired. It was found that the cause of death was palpitation of the heart. As before stated, the remains were taken northward this morning on the same train were the grief-stricken widow and sorrowing orphans, who only yesterday were traveling with their husband and father, and basking in the sunshine and smiles and presence, while to-day they accompany his cold corpse, dejected and sorrowing, to their association on this mundane sphere.

TERRITORIAL ITEMS.

DEAD FROM LAVA CHANGES.

During the latter half of last week Butte was ravaged in a continuous shower of lava.
 The regular annual meeting of the Eastern Idaho Stock Growers' Association convened at Blackfoot yesterday.
 On the last week Mr. John Paul, foreman of the car department at Eagle Rock, was presented with a fine gold watch and chain by the employees under his charge.
 Petrified the man who shot at Postmaster Moore at Ansonia, Montana, the other day, has left the country and could not be found when the time arrived for his examination. He was under $500 bonds.
 On Saturday evening, a man giving the name of J. J. Nicholls arrived in Ogden on the eastern train. He was on a stretcher, having been run over by the cars at Evanston, and his leg was badly broken. It was not learned how he came to meet with such an accident, but it is supposed that he is a tramp and was stealing a ride.
 Fred Word, a colored boy of Ogden, was fined $10 yesterday, for throwing a rock which struck another boy named Oliver Lewis, inflicting a terrible laceration on the little fellow's eye. In default of pay at he was committed to the care of the marshal, after receiving a severe reprimand from Alderman Dece, before whom the case was tried.
 A Butte man named Wm. E. Cornack, stole $170 from one John F. Delaney, got married to a woman named Belle Dean, and started last Friday for this city accompanied by his blushing bride. He was apprehended at Brigham City, and is now in the custody of the officers awaiting a requisition from the Governor, to take him back, where his case will be brought before the proper authorities for adjustment.
 A man named James H. Bell was lynched at Pierre, Dakota, last Thursday morning for the murder of F. G. Smith. They were both lawyers, and the murder crew out of a professional jealousy. Bell, who bears a very bad name, has previously been convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to eight years' imprisonment. After serving three years he was pardoned, only to resume his former course of crime.
 About two weeks ago Geo. Shurtliff of Provo, was arrested for unlawfully setting apart liquor, and sentenced by Alderman Holladay to pay a fine of $90. He moved for a new trial but was denied, whereupon he appealed to the District Court. The case was heard in that tribunal on Monday last and decided in favor of the city. Another similar case against R. S. Hines comes before the same court soon.
 A little six-year-old son of Mr. Redford, of Beaver Canyon, Idaho, was playing near a large pile of lumber several days ago, when, from some cause, it tipped over and the little fellow was buried under 200 pieces of plank which fell over him. Fortunately, a timber lying beside the pile prevented him from being completely crushed by the tremendous weight, and the little chap escaped with his life, although when taken out, it was found that his left thigh was badly broken.
 Last Friday morning a man named Lee Cowley, employed at the Montana Copper Company's smelter, at Butte, had the misfortune to get his foot badly crushed. In going up the elevator he was unguardedly allowed his foot to project over the platform. Arriving at the landing above, his foot was caught by the projecting and rigidly wedged between it and the elevator. He was immediately extricated and taken to the hospital, where his injuries received proper treatment. Although badly crushed, it is thought that the injured member will not have to be amputated.
 An important question has arisen in Cassia County Idaho, says the Shoshone Journal. As two of the county commissioners elected last fall were "Mormons," they qualified under the old law the first Monday in January. They proceeded to business without taking the iron-clad oath under the new anti-"Mormon" law, which had just gone into effect, but official notice of which had not been received. Suit has been brought to declare them ineligible and have the governor fill the vacancy by appointment. Both are excellent citizens and business men, and the case will create much interest outside of Cassia County.
 A young man named Brooks was killed in a somewhat unusual manner at the Onaka depot last Friday. He was met by a fellow who claimed to be a conductor, and who represented that he wished to hire a brakeman. Being out of employment, Brooks accepted the offer, and was informed that it would be necessary for him to advance $5 as a security for the lantern and cap which he would receive. Having no smaller amount, he handed the bogus conductor $10, who disappeared with it, stating that he would soon return with the lantern. This was the last that Brooks saw of the "conductor," however, and no clue to his whereabouts has yet been obtained.

The Liquor Cases.—The suits against Jas. W. Pitts and Sven Johnson, for selling liquor without a license, were before Justice Tyler this morning. The defendants demanded to the form of the complaints, and the cases were continued, that of Mr. Pitts until 10 a. m., and Mr. Johnson until 3.30 p. m. to-morrow.

J. Beauregard, of Bingham, has taken out a license for the sale of liquors on March 1st, and on motion of the prosecution the case was dismissed.
 Phelan & Hays, for selling liquor without license, were to be tried to-day. H. Wagener, charged with a similar offense, will be heard on Thursday morning.
 Harry Haynes is charged with again violating the liquor law.
 Some years ago travelers in Dalmatia noted large tracts of land covered by a wild flower near which not a sign of insect life was visible. The bloom was the pyrethrum, whose odor deadly to the lower forms of life, and whose powdered leaves form the basis of "insect powder." The seed of this flower was distributed in the United States and a Dalmatian has been growing it with great success in Stockton, Cal.
 A more favorable spring for the farmers has perhaps never been experienced in this region since Utah was settled. It opened early, continued long enough to allow the small grains to be planted, and then gentle showers set in, which have continued since at intervals frequent enough to keep the soil in the best possible condition to facilitate the growth of the young grain. And, best of all, there have been no frosts this far to check the growth of the young vegetation or interfere with the prospect for an excellent fruit crop. If nothing unforeseen occurs to prevent, the coming harvest will be a most abundant one. The difference between last season and this in Bear Lake Valley is illustrated by a correspondent writing to the Ogden Herald from Bloomington, as follows: "By the middle of next week the farmers will be busy in their fields, some plowing has been done on the high lands. Spring is earlier than last year. On the 10th of April a year ago I drove a band of hares across Bear Lake on the ice, it was then perfectly solid and remained so for some time after that. It was near the middle of May before many of the farmers finished putting in their grain."
 It has always been a favorite conceit with the public, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, that animals rarely breed in captivity, and that a zoological garden, except in very rare instances, is a charnel house of wild beasts' bones. It is hard to make it understood that the managers of such gardens ever derive any income from the sale of increase of wild animals, and it seems to be the general opinion that to keep such exhibits of the living curiosities of forest and field entails a constant expense that can never be reduced by the revenue derived from the sale of the product of their care. Such cases, such as the one at the London Zoo, must at once be abandoned as baseless when the zoological gardens at the fair grounds are considered. The overplus of animals has grown so great the past year that a number of fine specimens have been sold for the purpose. In one lot, purchased by a menagerie in Texas, there were sold a buffalo, two yaks and an elk, the total price paid being $750. Another collection, including leopards, pumas, a sacred bull, and a large cape buffalo, is ready to be sent away.
 Scotland is excited over a case of leprosy. The subject of it is under treatment in a hospital at Edinburgh, but was recently brought to Glasgow and exhibited to the medical students. The occurrence of leprosy in Great Britain has caused the doctors to examine the history of their profession in regard to this terrible disease. The old books are full of accounts of the appearance and spread of leprosy in the British Islands. Leprosy hospitals were common institutions in England during the thirteenth century. By a statute passed in 1472, every borough in Scotland was required to support a "leper-house." The patients were generally fed and clothed at public expense, but they were cared for by the knights of St. Lazarus, a order which was specially instituted for this purpose. King David of Scotland took great interest in the cause of leprosy, and numerous laws were passed during his reign in respect to their treatment. Buildings erected to serve as leper hospitals are still standing. Large hospitals for the treatment of leprosy were established at Glasgow, Aberdeen, Greenisde, St. Albans and Edinburgh. The records state that King Robert Bruce died a leper, and that Henry IV. was a victim of the same disease.
