THE PROCEEDINGS AT PRO-MONTORY SUMMIT.

PROMONTORY SUMMIT, via. Ogden, May 10.-The last tie has been laid; the last rail is placed in position, and the last spike driven, which binds the Atlantic and Pacific oceans with an iron band. The electric flash has borne the tidings to the world and it now devolves upon us, the favored eye-witnesses of the momentous feat, to enter our record of the facts. The meridian hour has come and on the expansive and lofty plateau, at the summit of the Promontory. a scene is disclosed in the conception of which every exultant element of humanity is revivified. Never before has this continent disclosed anything bearing comparison with it. The massive oaken-hued trains of the Central lies upon their iron path, confronted by the elegant coaches of the Union Pacific. A thousand throbbing hearts impulsively beat to the motion of the trains as the front locomotives of each Company led on majestically up to the very verge of the narrow break between the lines, where, in a few moments, was to be consummated the nuptial rites uniting the gorgeous east and the imperial west of America, with the indissoluble seal of inter-oceanic commerce.

Upon the ground were the following named officials and guests of the Cen-tral Pacific Company: Hon. Leland Stanford, president; Mr. Corning, gen-eral superintendent; J. H. Strowbridge, superintendent; J. H. Strowbridge, marsh, Esq., one of the directors; E. B. Byan, Esq., Goy, Stanford's private Stanford in hebelf, of the COP P. D. man, of San Francisco; S. T.
