BREVITIES.

A Boston paper gives the dimensions of Parepe-Ross's voice, as follows: "Five hundred feet long, three hundred feet wide, and as high as the Coliseum."

On the 24th ult. the wife of Judge James Human, of Humansville, Polk County, Mo., gave birth to two boys and a girl, averaging over six pounds each. The father of this trio of babies is 69 years of age, has had three wives and is the paternal relative of some 25 children.

An invincible wit and punster naked the Captain of a craft, loaded with boards, how he managed to get dinner on the passage. "Why," replied the skipper, "we always cook aboard." "Cook aboard, do you?" rejoined the wag. "When I see you have been well supplied with provisions this trip, at all events."

Spanish journals are circulating a report to the effect that the Prince of Asturias is to marry the English Princess Beatrice, a lady of his own age; that he is to be King and she Queen of Spain, Denna Isabella abdicating, and that in consequence of such alliance the British government will restore Gibraltar to the Spanish monarchy.

A Mrs. Park recently celebrated her one hundred and fifth birthday in Cleveland, Ohio. She has raised seventeen children. The last was born when she was sixty-five years old. She now enjoys good health, attends church regularly, is active, has good teeth and improved sight, and her hair is turning black. But she has an internal cancer of fifty years' standing.

The Omaha Herald says that "few cities in the western hemisphere can boast of a prettier or more brilliant demi-monde than Omaha; that in no place, excepting New York, are they more sumptuously supplied, caressed and looked after. They are composed almost entirely of the spoiled daughters of rich and respectable eastern families, and it is in their gilded salons that the revels of Omaha life are conducted."

The Wilmington (Illinois) Independent, edited by Mr. Steele, says: "A printer last week proposed to go into partnership with us. His name is Doolittle. The firm's name would sound droll. The firms name would sound very bad, either way you put it—'Steal and Do Little,' or 'Do Little and Steal.' We can't jive. One of us would soon be in the poorhouse and the other in the penitentiary."

At Newark, N. J., a young man was taking a moonlight ramble with a pretty girl, when her mother pounced upon them like a tigress, and began a vigorous cowering of the youth. He fell on his knees, and in that position received about fifty lashes. The old woman then embraced her daughter, and finally embraced the young man also, forgiving him and asking his forgiveness.

Mrs. Gaines, now the richest woman in America, is thus described in the New Orleans Times: "Her form is petite and beautifully proportioned. There is rare elegance about her facial contour. No one ever listened to her courteous and polished discourse without being charmed by flashes of wit, just and fanciful observations on life and manners, and a vein of cheerfulness highly agreeable. The strength and loveliness of a dark eye in woman, as described by Byron, is finely illustrated in her case, and altogether she is a woman of whom any country might be justly proud."

We have all heard of artesian wells, but a wonderful novelty is now announced in Algeria in the shape of artesian fisheries. A well lately sunk at Ain Sala to the depth of forty-four metres threw up not only a large body of water, but to the great surprise of the engineers, an innumerable quantity of small fish. These subterranean verberies are described as being on an average half an inch in length, and resembling white bait both in appearance and taste. The female is distinguished from the male by the presence of dark colored stripes on the upper part of the body. From the fact of the sand extracted from these wells being identical with that which forms the bed of the Nile it is concluded that an underground communication must exist between them and that river.

The Egyptian Viceroy, Ismael Pasha, has gone to London from Paris, where he was a guest at the palace, accompanied the Emperor and Empress to the opera, and did everything that a Christian prince may, or might, do under the circumstances. He was educated in France, and is very French in his ideas. He has an English side also—having, during our trouble, grown large cotton crops on the Delta for Leeds and Manchester, and he expects English help to build his railway from Cairo to Thebes and the First Cataract, which, in the end, will tap Ethiopia. He is also thinking of a more direct railway from Alexandria to Suez through Cairo—a being a sort of Napoleon III in his own way.

During the late tour of the Crown Prince of Prussia to Pomerania, the people of Kolberg came into the streets with flowers to greet him on his entrance into their town, and several of them, anxious to give a practical proof of their loyal attachment, showered bouquets in his face. The consequence was, says the commandant of the garrison, that his Royal Highness entered the hall of the palace "with his eyes full of tears," caused by the pain of the scratches he had received. The commandant exhorts the inhabitants in the future to be more careful and considerate when presenting flowers to royal personages. "When the son of the sovereign walks in the street, the people should either wear the deepest humility over him, or flower in their hands, or scatter flowers before his feet; but they
