PROVO.

Provo, Utah. — MARCH 15, 1894.

FIRST DISTRICT COURT.

In the Davenport murder trial, several eyewitnesses contradicted the killing of Woods by Davenport. Woods had claimed "self-defense" during the day about 125 which Woods claimed Davenport had belonging to him (Woods), but these differences had been patched up, and the couple had a drink together. Davenport went home to his room without returning. Woods was drinking when Davenport came in, and was quite drunk. The men again drank together, after which Woods was seen in the street. Woods was seen near the Davenport's house in a perturbed manner. Davenport pictures a assassin and fled Woods, both having taken effect on Woods, in the house the latter and killing him. He again again drank together, and to the door. Davenport faced the crowd and said, "If anybody else wanted anything, nobody did."

The defendant then took the stand. He stated that he was drunk when Woods was killed, but he did not know at the time whether Woods had a gun or not. Davenport was subjected to a searching cross-examination by Mr. Thurman. He stated he came from Texas who had had a transient life and that he had not traveled under several aliases.

Alexander Subsequently John Doe, two young Indians, pleaded guilty to stealing a mare, but pleaded not guilty to the charge that they had been drunk. H. A. McBride acted as attorney. The two were sent to the penitentiary for one year.

LOGAN.

Logan, Utah. — MARCH 15, 1894.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Thacher opera house was crowded front pit in during Monday evening, making the grand concert as grand a success as it could be expected. The stage looked like fairyland under the hand of artistically arranged lights. Menus, Caskets, Paper and Design, and Mandolin, all played with great enthusiasm. Two violinists, with such raw ability that a well filled room is but just tribute to their merits. Their singing fully equalled all expectations. The instrumental portion of the program was well supplied by Charles Harris, violinist, Paul Parker, pianist, and music of the opera house orchestra, was excellent in point of conception and execution.

The theatrical entertainment given in the hall of the Union High School for the benefit of the Sunday school and ward their was very successful in the attainment of its object and the amusement of its patrons. The performance proved that the members of the "W.C.F." deserved the name of a successful and with proper training would become proficient artists.

The Welfare Amateur Concert Co. has been furnishing amusement for the people of Manti.

The second term of the Agricultural College session year 1893-4, will close at a stroke on Friday. In the existing a social dull will be followed by a quiet evening, the quiet will continue until Saturday. About 1000 persons will be engaged in various sports and their first appearance will have importance from various, and hope to begin their instruction in the University. Sunday afterward I improved their time by going to the theater, and the grand opening of the new year, and the first week will have been very busy, and the first two weeks of next year will be equally so. Exposures were difficult to get at the present time, and they were exhibited only as a temporary fit which would soon go out of fashion again. This is the reason I did not paint or place them very hard exposures as I had a good trade in sales and painting was not then so much in demand with those at that time. They were sold for a dollar each, and it was estimated that they were equivalent to small commissions. A person was considered lucky to repeat in a friend's card to bid for his picture. The service was free. I also made the best readings known in the United States, and when postage stamps were introduced the customer took care to leave him the price one stamp, and I gave him the information gratis.

—Continued.

How many disagreeable things that Mrs. Isaac told me! I hoped not after the party last night the more surprised that I had made such a fool of myself.

Now, Oh, I would repeat, Mrs. Isaac would have said it but she knew you thoroughly.—Eloise Tramond.

INTERESTING ARTS.

"How long," said my companion, "can we live?" "I don't know," I replied, "but if we live here a long time without seeing any of the sites which have been popular during the past 10 or 12 years."—Walter Scott.
