WEBER STAKE CONFERENCE

Interesting Addresses by President Francis M. Lyman, Elder D. O. McKay and Others.

TEACHERS HOLD INSTITUTE.

Miss Susan Surragge Falls a Victim of Typhoid—Death of Mrs. Jens Anderson of Harrisville.

Ogden, Jan. 20.—The quarterly conference of the Weber stake was held yesterday at the Ogden tabernacle with the usual large attendance, necessitating an overflow meeting being held in the afternoon at the stake academy lecture hall. The music at the services was very inspiring, furnished by the tabernacle choir.

Prest. L. W. Shurtliff was in charge and was the first speaker. He reported perfect harmony among the bishops of the stake, the priesthood and auxiliary organizations, and felt that greater activity was evidenced in the Church work.

Elder David O. McKay addressed the congregation. He commended the spirit being exercised by the stake presidency and of their holding regular weekly meetings, and felt that if the bishops would follow this example they too would be able to enjoy a greater degree of the spirit of the Lord and accomplish a better work. The plan of priesthood class work started in this stake and he felt would be of great value to all concerned. The speaker dwelt on the meaning of the priesthood, its eternal duration and the privileges accompanying its possession and proper use. He urged that the ward teachers keep in the line of their duty. The quorums of the priesthood were admonished to see that not one of their members drifts away and thus impair the usefulness of the whole body.

President Francis M. Lyman was the next speaker. He congratulated the Weber stake on having such able leaders in its quorums and organizations and advised the people to show their appreciation of these favors by attending their duties and upholding the authorities. The excellency of the tabernacle choir was highly praised. He advised the saints to grow old in doing good, in living temperate lives, to put off all weaknesses and live moral, pure lives. The speaker urged the importance of prayer, and advised the people to set their households in order. If a man, steal, profane, be disgraced the counsels of the Lord, is not in harmony with his brethren, and not at peace with his family and neighbors, he is not a Latter-day Saint, though his name be on the records of the Church.

At the afternoon session a selection from the oratorio "Elijah" was sung by Maud Belnap, Sarah Pingree, Caleb Marriott and the tabernacle choir. Prof. Bullantyne explaining the selection. The general and local authorities were unanimously sustained. President Shurtliff announced that Joseph Stanford, Joseph Parry, Ephraim Tillotson and James Burch had been honorably released from their labors in the High Council owing to advanced age and ill health.

Elder Henry H. Rolapp addressed the saints on the wonderful growth and spiritual development that could be obtained should every quorum look after its members as President Lyman looks after the quorum of the twelve apostles, by which each would know the other as they are, and eschewing all evil. "Never confess that you don't know the gospel is true, for it is an open confession that you have not placed yourself in a position to obtain a testimony. All who put themselves in a position to know of the doctrine whether it is of God or of man will receive the testimony." He continued at some length and delivered an instructive gospel discourse.

DIPLOMATS DON'T GET WAGES ENOUGH

Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Once more an effort is to be made to induce Congress to provide more suitable quarters for the American diplomatic consular offices than they are able to obtain under existing circumstances. No man who has not a private fortune can afford to accept a post as ambassador of the United States for the reason that his combined salary and allowances is not sufficient to pay the expenses of a proper ambassadorial residence. This is particularly true in such cities as London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

Up to the present time all attempts to provide suitable buildings for American representatives in those cities have proved futile. And yet nearly all the great powers of Europe have secured quarters for their ambassadors in Washington which were purchased or built especially for the purposes for which they are used. Great Britain was the first government to recognize the wisdom of such a course, and more than 25 years ago a building was erected upon land purchased in the name of Victoria for the English minister. Since that time Germany, France, Russia, Mexico and even China have followed suit.

The social as well as the political advantages which such residential accommodations give to diplomatic representatives have been pointed out again and again by secretaries of state from Mr. Frelinghuysen to Mr. Root and the members of the senate and house committees on foreign affairs have not been slow to appreciate those advantages, but up to the present time it has apparently been impossible to get Congress to endorse the recommendations of those best qualified to know what such a course means.

Now, however, Congressman Perkins, of New York, a member of the house committee on foreign affairs has taken the matter up in earnest and it is understood that he has the promise of the support of the speaker and the committee on rules, so that it is probable that before the expiration of another year the United States will have begun to acquire property in foreign lands for the use of our diplomatic corps.

As showing the difference in the compensation paid to foreign representatives in the United States and American representatives abroad it is only necessary to compare the salary and allowances of the British ambassador to Washington with that of the American ambassador to London.

The former receives a salary of $50,000 per annum with allowances for servants, etc., of $5,000 more. In addition he has an entertainment fund of about $25,000 a year, a total of $80,000. The American ambassador also has rent free a splendid embassy building. The American ambassador to London has a salary of $17,500 and allowances for residence expenses of less than $10,000 more. In other words something less than one-third of the compensation of the British representative whose position corresponds with his own.

City grime is not due to factory smoke alone. In experiments lasting several months, the chemist and analyst of Glasgow has shown that every million cubic feet of chimney gases from an ordinary domestic fire contains 5.4 pounds of heavy oily hydrocarbons, which are black in color and practically solid at ordinary temperature, but when liquefied have the properties of a very adherent heavy oil. This little considered source of air pollution is important. The 150,000 inhabited houses of Glasgow have each one fire at least 12 hours daily and these fires must scatter in the air each day 31 tons of the heavy oily hydrocarbons.

Special Correspondence.
Provo, Utah Co., Jan. 20.—The 9:40 San Pedro train Sunday morning from Salt Lake brought the remains of one of Utah's veteran pioneers, Howard Coray, which were immediately conveyed to the stake tabernacle where the funeral services were held. A vast congregation of relatives and friends met to pay tribute, honor and last respect to the noble pioneer, who had lived to the ripe age of 81 years. The services were under the direction of Stake President Elder David John. The speakers were Elders Joseph F. Smith Jr., of Salt Lake, O. H. Berg, H. H. Homer Jr., of St. George, and Joseph F. Smith, who all spoke in glowing terms of the deceased. President Smith was the principal speaker. His acquaintance with the deceased began when he (the speaker) was about two or three years old. He spoke of the close personal acquaintance the deceased had with the Prophet Joseph Smith, of his belief which the Latter-day Saints held in the resurrection.
