

CAMBRIANS MEET FOR "WELSH TEA"

Judge J. A. Howell Tells Part the Race Has Played in World History.

A most successful affair from the standpoint of attendance and merit was the "Welsh tea social" given at the Odéon dance hall last evening.

The event had been widely and extensively advertised and the Welsh folk and their descendants turned out in full force Friday night.

While the audience was filling in and being seated, Mrs. Gwendolyn Lewis Little, daughter of the late John S. Lewis, who also acted as the accompanist of the evening for the various singers, played a number of familiar Welsh airs on the piano.

At 8:35, the president of the society, William H. Folland, called the assembly to order, and in a brief speech, stated the objects of the organization, which, he said, was receiving the utmost good will and encouragement of the citizens generally.

"The Welsh," he said, "are not a 'clannish' race, as many suppose, but are a people who stand for American principles and American ideas in all their walks of life."

Speaking for himself, he said he was proud of his Welsh ancestry and the part of the little principality of Wales had played in the world's fight for civil and religious liberty.

Mr. Folland then introduced Mr. Rees Davies, who sang, in good style, "Thomas Jefferson, a Welshman, both on his father's and mother's side wrote the Declaration of Independence, and by the 21 original signers at least 18 had Welsh blood in their veins."

Judge Howell then recounted the achievements of Welsh Americans in both land and sea and his references to Robert E. Lee and Admiral Robley D. Evans ("Fighting Bob"), both of whom are of Welsh ancestry, brought forth loud applause.

A happy reference and one that found much favor with the audience, was the judge's talk with respect to the family of Edwards.

"In 1690," said Judge Howell, "there came to Hartford, Conn., a young Welshman named William Edwards, who became the founder of one of the most distinguished American families of which that for over five generations it has furnished one or more presidents to Yale university."

In conclusion Judge Howell said: "Were I asked concerning the future of the Welsh in America, I would say, they may forget the language of their fathers; they may not know their customs; but the best traits of character, the highest ideals and purposes which they can hand down to their children and their children's children are those derived from their Welsh fathers, and it will be an evil day for them if such traits of character, such ideals and such purposes as characterized their fathers shall be taken from their sons and daughters."

Miss Irene White gave a recitation, "The Welsh Classics," and was followed by Miss Esther Davis, who sang splendidly a soprano solo, accompanied by Mrs. Emma Ramsey Morris.

John Morgan, a recent arrival from Wales, then gave "A truly Welsh recitation," after which he called the roll of the 13 counties in North Wales and South Wales. The count, according to those who stood up as the counties were called follows:

Monmouth, 15; Glamorgan, 28; Carmarthen, 26; Brecknock, 6; Radnor, 3; Cardigan; 6; Pembroke, 5; Anglesey, 7; Carnarvon, 2; Merioneth, 3; Montgomery, 5; Denbigh, 14; Flint, 6; total 112.

The remaining number of those present were of Welsh parentage, born in Utah and other parts of the United States, Canada and Australia.

Mr. C. C. Snyder sang a contraalto solo in Scotch, accompanied by Miss Watson and was followed by Mrs. Mary T. Katz, who gave a soprano solo.

The Grocer grinds cheap and good coffee in the same mill. Don't let him spoil. J.A. Folger & Co., Golden Gate.

The Welsh national hymn, "The Land of My Fathers," the audience joining in the refrain. He was followed by Mr. John James, who sang to the satisfaction of all present, the late Dr. Parry's favorite song—and one, by the way, the doctor composed and dedicated to a friend in New York while on the ocean en route to Salt Lake City.

Mr. Folland then introduced Mr. Rees Davies, who sang, in good style, "Thomas Jefferson, a Welshman, both on his father's and mother's side wrote the Declaration of Independence, and by the 21 original signers at least 18 had Welsh blood in their veins."

Judge Howell then recounted the achievements of Welsh Americans in both land and sea and his references to Robert E. Lee and Admiral Robley D. Evans ("Fighting Bob"), both of whom are of Welsh ancestry, brought forth loud applause.

A happy reference and one that found much favor with the audience, was the judge's talk with respect to the family of Edwards.

"In 1690," said Judge Howell, "there came to Hartford, Conn., a young Welshman named William Edwards, who became the founder of one of the most distinguished American families of which that for over five generations it has furnished one or more presidents to Yale university."

In conclusion Judge Howell said: "Were I asked concerning the future of the Welsh in America, I would say, they may forget the language of their fathers; they may not know their customs; but the best traits of character, the highest ideals and purposes which they can hand down to their children and their children's children are those derived from their Welsh fathers, and it will be an evil day for them if such traits of character, such ideals and such purposes as characterized their fathers shall be taken from their sons and daughters."

Miss Irene White gave a recitation, "The Welsh Classics," and was followed by Miss Esther Davis, who sang splendidly a soprano solo, accompanied by Mrs. Emma Ramsey Morris.

John Morgan, a recent arrival from Wales, then gave "A truly Welsh recitation," after which he called the roll of the 13 counties in North Wales and South Wales.

The count, according to those who stood up as the counties were called follows: Monmouth, 15; Glamorgan, 28; Carmarthen, 26; Brecknock, 6; Radnor, 3; Cardigan; 6; Pembroke, 5; Anglesey, 7; Carnarvon, 2; Merioneth, 3; Montgomery, 5; Denbigh, 14; Flint, 6; total 112.

The remaining number of those present were of Welsh parentage, born in Utah and other parts of the United States, Canada and Australia.

Mr. C. C. Snyder sang a contraalto solo in Scotch, accompanied by Miss Watson and was followed by Mrs. Mary T. Katz, who gave a soprano solo.

Will Phillips sang feelingly and in good voice, "Good Night Little Girl, Good Night." He was followed by Evan Arthur who gave the "Cambrian War Song" by Brudley Richards.

Thomas Jefferson, a Welshman, both on his father's and mother's side wrote the Declaration of Independence, and by the 21 original signers at least 18 had Welsh blood in their veins.

Judge Howell then recounted the achievements of Welsh Americans in both land and sea and his references to Robert E. Lee and Admiral Robley D. Evans ("Fighting Bob"), both of whom are of Welsh ancestry, brought forth loud applause.

A happy reference and one that found much favor with the audience, was the judge's talk with respect to the family of Edwards.

"In 1690," said Judge Howell, "there came to Hartford, Conn., a young Welshman named William Edwards, who became the founder of one of the most distinguished American families of which that for over five generations it has furnished one or more presidents to Yale university."

In conclusion Judge Howell said: "Were I asked concerning the future of the Welsh in America, I would say, they may forget the language of their fathers; they may not know their customs; but the best traits of character, the highest ideals and purposes which they can hand down to their children and their children's children are those derived from their Welsh fathers, and it will be an evil day for them if such traits of character, such ideals and such purposes as characterized their fathers shall be taken from their sons and daughters."

Miss Irene White gave a recitation, "The Welsh Classics," and was followed by Miss Esther Davis, who sang splendidly a soprano solo, accompanied by Mrs. Emma Ramsey Morris.

John Morgan, a recent arrival from Wales, then gave "A truly Welsh recitation," after which he called the roll of the 13 counties in North Wales and South Wales.

The count, according to those who stood up as the counties were called follows: Monmouth, 15; Glamorgan, 28; Carmarthen, 26; Brecknock, 6; Radnor, 3; Cardigan; 6; Pembroke, 5; Anglesey, 7; Carnarvon, 2; Merioneth, 3; Montgomery, 5; Denbigh, 14; Flint, 6; total 112.

The remaining number of those present were of Welsh parentage, born in Utah and other parts of the United States, Canada and Australia.

Mr. C. C. Snyder sang a contraalto solo in Scotch, accompanied by Miss Watson and was followed by Mrs. Mary T. Katz, who gave a soprano solo.

Will Phillips sang feelingly and in good voice, "Good Night Little Girl, Good Night." He was followed by Evan Arthur who gave the "Cambrian War Song" by Brudley Richards.

This was the test piece at the Estabroff of 1895, when the honors were equally divided between J. Gordon Jones of Denver and Charles Kent of this city. Mr. Arthur's interpretation and rendition of this difficult solo suffered nothing in comparison with the other two singers named.

judging from the enthusiastic applause which followed.

Another Lie Nailed. Harper's Weekly Prints Letter from Salt Lake Man on Polygamy.

The old time professional "Mormon eater" found his greatest success in the fact that Utah was a long distance away from the place where his stories were launched, and the lie had a long way to run before it was brought to light.

Now, however, a transitional period is running its course in which the lie finds itself blocked not far away from its point of beginning.

Another Lie Nailed. Harper's Weekly Prints Letter from Salt Lake Man on Polygamy.

The old time professional "Mormon eater" found his greatest success in the fact that Utah was a long distance away from the place where his stories were launched, and the lie had a long way to run before it was brought to light.

Now, however, a transitional period is running its course in which the lie finds itself blocked not far away from its point of beginning.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends to the bronchial tubes, and after awhile makes its way to the lungs.

FREE EXAMINATION AND FREE ADVICE ALL THIS WEEK FOR ALL DISEASES. WELL MERITED SUCCESS. DR. SHORES & SHORES ENORMOUS PRACTICE—NOW POSITIVELY THE LARGEST IN THE WEST.

DO YOU HAVE CATARRH? READ THESE SYMPTOMS AND SEE. Many Folks Do Have Catarrh and Don't Know It. CATARRH OF THE HEAD AND THROAT.

To the U. C. T. and the Strangers Within Our Gates. Dr. Shores extend a cordial invitation to visit their offices—and consult with them FREE OF CHARGE regarding your own ailment or those of sick friends.

KEITH O'BRIEN Co. Final Opportunity to Secure ORFALIAN'S COLLECTION OF ORIENTAL RUGS. From the annual clearance sale which is attracting so much attention.

Offer Extraordinary. Starting Monday and continuing all week we make the following SPECIAL OFFERS: All Trimmed Hats worth up to $3.50 for $1.00.

Marriage Licenses. Joseph I. Staker, Teton City, Ida.; Annie McGhie, Butteville.

William Moore and Ethel Morrissey of Bingham.

Matt Rari of Clear Creek; Ellen Anderson of Spanish Fork.

Charles A. Sadler and Winta Stephens of Salt Lake.

Stephen Dorsey and Fay Winter of Salt Lake City.

Frank Jensen and Grace E. Casper Nitter of Salt Lake City.

Ernest H. Smith and Cicelia L. Short of Thatcher.

Hans G. Swenson of Leamington; Karen Hong of Salt Lake.

Joseph Weston of Laketown; Lydia Marley of Robin, Ida.

MEN—A Special Department for—MEN. Dr. Shores maintain a Special Department exclusively for the treatment of all diseases of Men, no matter how caused.

SQUIRES IN HARPER'S. In the current number of Harper's Weekly, a double page drawing, entitled "A Post Graduate Course" is by Clyde Squires.

FAREWELL PARTY. A farewell party will be given Roy Smith in the Murray First ward amusement hall Monday evening.

A FEATURE OF THE BIG PARADE. The automobile division of the big parade Thursday was the feature of the occasion.

NEW INCORPORATIONS. The Garfield Trading company has filed its articles of incorporation with the county clerk.

SUCCESS OF SALT LAKE WOMAN. The Reno, Nev., papers, in recent issues, gave long and complimentary descriptions of the manual training exhibits from the local public schools.

LIBERTY STAKE DAY. The first baby show of the season is scheduled at Wandamere Wednesday.

TOM WANTS TO HONK A BIT. Police Chief Thinks His Dignity Needs An Automobile.

PROTEST TO COUNCIL. West Side People Do Not Want Red Lights in Their Section.

PROTEST TO COUNCIL. A petition directed to the mayor and city council, and signed by 900 residents of the west side, was filed with City Recorder Morston yesterday afternoon.

PROTEST TO COUNCIL. A petition directed to the mayor and city council, and signed by 900 residents of the west side, was filed with City Recorder Morston yesterday afternoon.