EDITORIAL NOTES.

A petition from inmates of the Allegheny County (Pennsylvania) workhouse, requesting the suppression of the liquor traffic, because it had been the cause of the petitioners' downfall and would prevent their reformation if they were released from confinement, is one of the latest oddities of the anti liquor movement.

In order to guard against explosion. Holland has passed a law that not more than 100 lbs of dynamite shall be carried in one package on any of its railroads. When it is understood that about half that amount would be sufficent to blow old Amsterdam into the Zuyder Zee it will be seen how effectual is such legislation.

Three thousand applications for patents upon electrical inventions are made in Washington every year, and 1,500 patents are issued. Such statistics as these are more eloquent of the restless activity of investigators in this department of science, and the rapid strides that electrical knowledge is making, than a whole volume of rhetorical writing would be.

London in a state of dynamite apprehension certainly greater than that of any capital in Europe, unless St. Petersburg be excepted. When even the workmen going into the sewers are watched by the Board of Works, lest they take explosives with them so as to blow up the city, it may be fancied what doubt and alarm prevail as to the extent of the dynamite plot, and as to whom it is possible to trust.

According to the Denver News, the big Burlington road is quietly seeking for possession of available points in the mountains for an extension of its line from Denver to Utah. The Colorado Railway Company, which has filed articles of incorporation at Boulder, is believed to be a wing of the Burlington, and new developments in this direction are looked for. All right. Come along. The more roads the merrier for Utah.

The grave of Abraham Lincoln is not guarded so far as any one can see, yet it is protected, so Secretary Lincoln says, in such a manner that the remains of his father can never be stolen. The secret of this security is known to only three people. When the guard over Garfield's tomb is finally withdrawn, the mystery by which Lincoln's remains are rendered secure is to be imparted to Colonel Rockwell for the protection of Garfield's tomb against ghouls.

The contractors who are cutting the canal through the Isthmus of Corinth, are confident that the work will be completed within forty years. The canal will be just four miles long, and of the same dimensions as that of Suez; namely, seventy-two feet wide and twenty-six deep throughout at low water. Vessels from the Adriatic ports will save one hundred and eighty-five miles, and those from the Mediterranean ninety-five miles, by passing through the canal, besides avoiding the dangerous coast around Cape Matapan.

One of the principal engineering inventions, noticed of late in the foreign journals, is a device for the instantaneous formation of steam, which permits of its use at once in the cylinder of the engine. A pump sends the required quantity of liquid between two plate surfaces, which are heated, and between which there is only a capillary space. The effect of this arrangement is that the liquid spreading in a thin layer evaporates at once, without going at all into the so-called spheroidal states and this steam acts in the cylinder as fresh-formed steam. The speed of the pump is regulated by the engine, the pump being connected with the shaft of the engine, the arrangements operating very satisfactorily.

"AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION" ETC.

In the minutes of the proceedings of the City Council, on Tuesday, April 17th, appears the following, as published in the EVENING NEWS of April 20th:

The special committee appointed to locate places where oil warehouses might be established within the city, recommended that block 194, plot A, be designated as one place, an oil warehouse being already established there by the Continental Oil Company. That by permission of Hon. Wm. Jennings, who owns the premises, the northeast corner lot of block 100, plat A, be designated as another place; both locations being on the line of Utah Central Railway, the latter the one accepted by the Standard Oil Company for the erection of its warehouse; also that, by permission of Mr. Henry Wood, superintendent of the Denver & Rio Grande Railway Company, two blocks lying on Fifth West Street, between Fourth and Sixth South, or the block lying on Sixth West Street, between Second and Third South Streets, on the Denver & Rio Grande grounds, be designated as the third place. The committee further recommend that permission be granted to any and all persons establishing oil depots in any of the locations mentioned, to lay and operate side tracks in front of their respective premises on the streets as they may deem necessary. The report was adopted and the committee discharged."

At first sight this may appear all right, the special committee no doubt considered the places designated suitable spots for the erection of the buildings required, and the City Council accepted the committee's recommendations. But on second thoughts queries arise as to the propriety of storing inflammable fluid in large quantities within the limits of the city, or, at any rate, in close proximity to dwelling houses. The last named place for an oil depository is perhaps not liable to very grave objections. It is open ground. The nearest buildings of any great value are those belonging to the Denver and Rio Grande Company, and the Superintendent seems to have no objection to the erection of the warehouse. The freight secured for his road is probably inducement enough to more than counterbalance any drawback that such a storage building might be to the Company's premises.

But how about the other places? The spot recommended for the warehouse of the Continental Oil Company is in the Nineteenth Ward, a little distance north of the soap works. No houses exist, at present, on the east any nearer than about a block away. But on the west, just across the Utah Central track there are a great many dwelling houses, which are likely to increase in numbers and importance, but not in value perhaps, if the oil warehouse stares them in the face with its possibilities of danger and its standing cause for alarm.

The place for the Standard Oil Company's depository seems to be still more objectionable. It is, we understand, two blocks north of the depot and one block west of Union Square. That is a thickly populated neighborhood, in the Sixteenth Ward. If there is any danger to property from the Continental warehouse, there is still more from the Standard warehouse, and the value of the property exposed is much greater than that to the north. Therefore the spot recommended appears even more unsuitable than the other.

The question may be asked where is the danger. The answer may be soon obtained if any one will reflect a little upon the damage that would be incurred in case of fire. Think of the spread of the flames from the burning oil—coal oil—to the houses in close proximity. Suppose the building containing the highly inflammable fluid should be struck by lightning—a not unlikely event in this region. Imagine the danger from an explosion. But it may be urged, these are all contingencies that may never arise. True. And then again who can say with assurance that they will not?

It is precisely that very uncertainty that will render them a continual menace to the people living in their immediate vicinity. And it must have an effect upon the value of property in their neighborhood. It will depreciate that value considerably. Any person thinking of buying a house or a building lot, would take into consideration the existence near by of a warehouse in which inflammable material in large quantities was stored, and rate its value with a considerable rebate. Suppose the depreciation to be only ten per cent. the aggregate would be a very large amount.

It may be asked whether the people in the neighborhood make any objections of this kind, and if so, whether they have been considered. To the first question we can answer most positively, Yes. Hearing of such objections we have made inquiries and learn that the people in the vicinity of the Continental Company's warehouse have protested strongly against it, but their protest was of no avail. Also that the people in the neighborhood of the Standard Company's warehouse intend to enter protest if they have not done so already, but have expressed the opinion that as no notice was taken of the Nineteenth Ward citizens' protest it would be but little use for them to expostulate. We think they are mistaken about this, and also in some of the doubts expressed about the indisposition of the City Council to listen to the voice of the people. We believe that the Council desire to redress every grievance that comes within their jurisdiction, and to make their decisions conform to the public welfare. They recognize the fact that they are public servants and that it is the general good that is to be sought.

We do not pretend to be able to judge in this matter. But we may and do call attention to it as of some importance. It appears to us that places might be chosen outside of populous limits if not outside of the city boundaries, which would not be open to the objections urged against the present selections. Farther north there is an abundance of open ground near the line of the railroad which would be free from the objections named. It may be said that this would be an inconvenience to the oil companies and might either lessen their profits or slightly raise the price of oil. Admitting this, which is of the more importance, the convenience or profits of one or two business corporations or the convenience, safety and property of a large body of our citizens?

The powder explosion, fresh in the memory of the people, was a lesson that we ought not to forget. Danger was not apprehended much until the catastrophe came. The magazines were safe under ordinary conditions. But the extraordinary and the unforseen occurred, and we know the result. There are now no advocates of storing powder within speaking distance of any populous district. Illuminating oil is ordinarily safe, but the many accidents that have occurred prove that it contains elements of danger. Common prudence, it appears to us, with the warning of the past suggests that the danger be avoided before the unexpected transpire. An ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of cure. We commend this subject to the kindly consideration of the City Council, feeling sure that they will study the best interists of the people specially concerned, and the safety as well as convenience of all.

About noon, to-day, the house of Mr. Henshaw, on Franklin Street, between Second and Third, was entered by a Chinaman from the front, while the family were at dinner in a rear apartment. The Celestial left after having taken a gold locket and emptied a purse on the bureau of its coin contents.—Ogden Herald.

Killed and Wounded.

SACRAMENTO, 20.—During a small fire, early this morning in K St., the roof of an adjoining building fell, burying a number of persons in the ruins. John Hilsenberger, keeper of the saloon which fell, and an unknown man were taken from the ruins dead. The wounded are Wm. Meyers, Robt. Bilse, Jas. Lambert, Chas. Evans, Jas. McNulty, D. Bragg, L. A. Lucas, J. Woodbridge, Jos. Reddy, John Higgins, John Sullivan and Geo. Loder. Most of these are badly hurt about the head and back. Several are known to be still in the ruins, but it is believed all the wounded have been recovered.

California Crops.

SAN FRANCISCO, 20.—A good rain fell all over the State yesterday. An average wheat crop is assured, except in a few limited areas.

Wholly Untrue.

DENVER, Colorado, 20.—A special from Gen. Crook's headquarters, Wilcox, Arizona, says: The territorial press exaggerate, in order to inflame the attack on the reservation Indians. No raiders have been in Arizona for three weeks past. The last alarming report, two days old, that eighty Apaches were seen in the Santa Rita range, Camp Crittendon and over in Sand Ridge Valley, above Calabasis, is wholly untrue. Tombstone rangers who have been in Wilcox, say they are on the Indian trail, but do not appear anxious to resch San Carlos. Gen. Crook has been greatly hampered and annoyed by these inflammatory articles and falsehoods. He will move into Mexico on Sunday. His force will consist of 192 Apaches under Captain Crawford, of the United States Third Cavalry, and aide N. E. McIntosh will also have fifty cavalrymen and the entire Mexican force in Northern Sonora and Chihuahua will assist.

Found Drowned.

MILWAUKEE, 20.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Little Maggie Henick was solved this morning, some tugmen finding her body in the river, near the lake. It is badly decomposed, but the clothing is intact, and she has been fully identified. Maggie Henrick disappeared from her home last Sunday, and it was thought at the time she had been abducted. She was a remarkably pretty and well developed girl of 12 years. The case has created great excitement. At one time the police thought they had traced her to Nebraska.

LATEST TRANS-ATLANTIC DISPATCHES.

Still They Come.

LIVERPOOL, 20.—A steamer from this port yesterday for the United States and Canada, carried nearly 3,000 emigrants.

About 3,000 emigrants left to-day for Canada, most of whom are bound for Manitoba. It is estimated that they will take away capital to the amount of $500,000.

Extensive Conflagration.

DELHI, India, 20.—An extensive conflagration in this city destroyed 2,000 houses. A great number of families are destitute and homeless.

The Conspirators in Court.

The men arrested for connection with the dynamite conspiracy were again brought up this morning for a further hearing. The court room was crowded. Among those present was Herbert Gladstone, a boy who was employed by Whitehead, in Birmingham, and who was yesterday identified by Lynch. He was placed in the witness box. He recognized Thomas Gallagher, Dr. Gallagher, as the man who had visited Whitehead. The boy testified that Gallagher, when he visited Whitehead gave the name of Fletcher.

When he called to see Whitehead, he sent him (Boy) on an errand, and told him that he need not hurry back.

When he returned, Whitehead and Gallagher were still engaged in conversation, and Whitehead gave him a holiday.

Wilson, another of the prisoners arrived in a cab. He said he had come for "ale" that Fletcher had ordered.

Wilson was conducted by Whitehead to an inner room. Next Lynch come to Whitehead's place, bringing with him a large box. The boy was unable to swear as to the identity of Wilson; he was, however, positive as to Gallagher who, he said, called several times to see Whitehead.

More Irish Trials.

Dublin, 20.—The trial of Timothy Kelly for complicity in the murder of Cavendish and Burke was resumed this morning. After calling a few more witnesses the counsel for the Crown announced their case closed.

Eugene Kingston, arrested at Liverpool on Wednesday, on the charge of being connected with the Phœnix Park murders, was arraigned to-day, and, after a hearing, remanded to prison to answer the charge of conspiracy to murder.

A Generous Donation.—We learn of a very generous deed done by Brother Samuel Varney, of the Fifteenth Ward.

Sister Parker was the owner of a strip of land running along the east side of the lot on which the Ward meeting-house and school-house stand, causing the site of these buildings to be greatly cramped. Brother Varney kindly donated a piece of his property to the Ward, and the people built a new house on it, and exchanged it with Sister Parker, for her land adjacent to the school-house. This gives a clear east front to the public building lot. Bishop Pollard and his flock are about to fix up and renovate the old Parker House for a residence for the meeting-house janitor, Brother David Gill, who will thus have the public property entrusted to his watchcare under his immediate eye.

Brother Varney could have sold the property he generously donated for a considerable sum, but he would not dispose of it in that way, preferring to devote it to a purpose for the public good, without any other reward than the consciousness of having done a commendable action.
