BREVITIES.

The celebrated hanging tower of Pisa Italy, threatens to fall in entirely.

Do the botanists know whether Nebuchadnezzar, when he was doomed to eat grass, had any laurels on his browze?

A Southern paper spoke of "Turkey showing her teeth," whereupon Mr. Greely wrote to the editor that none but hen turkeys have teeth. The hen turkey gathers the food and chews it, and the gobbler is called to gobble it.

The Berlin Kladderdatsch says that Gambetta has invented the latest way to express in a delicate manner the fact that an army has been well whipped, that is: "The enemy appeared to develop his forces in our rear."

A gentleman from one of the rural districts, in answer to the question what he was doing in Indianapolis, said he had two brothers, one was in jail and the other in the legislature, and he had come to the city to raise money to get them out of their sorry predicament.

"What brought you to prison, my colored friend?"

"Two constables, sah."

"Yes; but I mean had intemperance any thing to do with it?"

"Yes, sah, dey was bofe of 'em drunk."

An exchange has the following characteristic prayer from a little boy. He had evidently had a little unpleasantness with Aunt Effie:

"Please, God, bless papa and mamma, and—and—and, if you're a mind to, you may bless Aunt Effie—but I don't much care."

"Hans, when I pay you cash, you charge more than when it goes on the book."

"Ya'as; dat is richt. You see, I 'ave so much scharge on my book, un I zomtime lose um, un so, ven I 'ave a good customer, I scharge goot prise; but, ven I puts it on my book, I no like to scharge so much, so if he never pay um, I no lose so much."

Steven Glover, the well known English song composer, died on the 7th ultimo, at the age of 54 years. He was the composer of "what are the wild waves saying." "The monks of old," "Why do summer roses fade," "I love the merry sunshine," and many other celebrated ballads.

There is a paper in New Orleans which is strong upon coincidences, and its latest is this: "A child was stolen while the bells were ringing for a fire in a certain building. The evening the child was found another fire occurred in the same building. And when the trial of the abductors of the child was begun, in the Criminal Court, the same building took fire the third time and was burned down.

The New York Evening Post says: A young gentleman whose convivial disposition had led him to 'toss the flowing bowl' a few times oftener than was good for him, determined to quit—to 'eschware off'—and, to make sure he would not forget his pledge, has had an arm let of iron, one-eight of an inch in thickness and five-eights in width, soldered or welded on his left arm above the elbow. The chances are that if he abstains from liquor until this ornament falls off, he will lead a tolerably sober life."

The Bangor (Me.) Whig is responsible for the following pig story, which was related by a gentleman of undoubted veracity. In the village of Brewer, opposite Bangor, two men, Messrs. A. and B., carry on the livery business, occupying stables situated about a quarter-mile apart, and each owns a large Chester hog weighing nearly 400 pounds. The other day Mr. A.'s hog broke out of his pen and strayed down upon Mr. B.'s premises, and that gentleman seeing him on the street, mistook the animal for his own, and drove him into the pen under his (Mr. B.'s) stable. Presently he heard a terrible rumpus, and going out to ascertain the cause, found that his own porcine had resented the intrusion, and was giving the hog that he had turned in a terrible thrashing. Separating the combatants, Mr. B. drove Mr. A.'s hog home, and he was secured in his own domain. The next morning Mr. B., upon going to feed his hog, discovered him lying on the ground in the pen utterly exhausted, and his adversary of the previous day industriously engaged in gnawing a hole in his back. It appears that after Mr. A.'s hog was driven home the day before, he meditated upon the drubbing he received until he got mad all over, and breaking out in the night, he made his way through the darkness to his adversary's styo, smashed his way in, and proceeded to revenge his wrongs by nearly killing his antagonist.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Memorial—Military Committee reports.

WASHINGTON, 30.—In the Senate, today, Sherman presented a memorial form the Cincinnati Board of Aldermen, asking that the Cincinnati and Newport Railroad Company be required to raise their bridge over the Ohio.

Wilson, from the Military Committee, reported favorably on the House bill extending the benedit of the Soldiers' National Asylums to the soldiers of the 1812 and Mexican wars; also adversely on the bill relative to the sale of the Arsenal at Pittsburg.

HOUSE.

Bills Introduced.

In the House a bill was introduced and referred by Morrill, of Me., declaring that any one who shall sell or give to any civil, military or naval officers of the government intoxicating liquors, to be used as a beverage, shall be deemed guilty of crime against the peace of society, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine and imprisonment; also providing, that employes or officers of the government who shall continue to use intoxicating liquors, or shall become at all intoxicated, shall be summarily dismissed and shall not be reinstated for two years.

Ferris introduced a bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims.

Scofield introduced one to extend to the officers of the military and naval service the benefit of the act for furnishing artificial limbs to disabled soldiers.

MISSOURI.

Indian chief assassinated.

ST. LOUIS.—The Neosha Journal has an account of the assassination of Lewis Downey, chief of the Cherokee Indian nation.

NEW JERSEY.

A Fire.

NEWARK.—The main building of Schalke's brewrey, filled with malt, was burned this forenoon. Loss $25,000.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Picked up.

CHARLESTON.—The steamer Georgia arrived last night. She picked up, off Body Island, three boats, loaded with passengers of the steamer Kensington, which was lost on the passage from Savannah to Boston.

CALIFORNIA.

Dead—Blackmailing.

SAN FRANCISCO, 30. — Commodore Delin E. Woodforth, of the U. S. Navy, and second son of the author of the "Old Oaken Bucket," died here, last night, of typhoid fever, aged fifty-five, leaving a widow and five children.

Special government agent Dr. McLane is making a strong effort to expose and bring to justice the attaches of the Custom House Revenue Department, who are implicated in black mailing the Chinese merchants, but there is small prospect of success, as the blackmailers work together and the Chinese are evidently afraid to give their testimony against the guilty parties for fear of persecution hereafter.

NEW YORK.

The Investment of Paris—The Southern Troubles—The latest report of the Negotiations.

NEW YORK.—The Herald has a special dispatch, dated Versailles, 29, which says: "Fort Valerien was entered last night by the Prussian engineers to draw the mines. The heavy guns will be immediately moved into the forts, as the enciente is strongly armed, and no confidence can be placed in the fickle population of Paris, until after the general disarming. Strong forces of infantry and artillery have moved forward to cover the working parties. The object is to spare further bloodshed, and to give an opportunity to the French people for the assembly of their representatives at Bordeaux to decide for war or peace. Elections will be permitted in the departments. Of the army of Paris the regiments of the line, marines and mobiles are to be prisoners of war, with the exception of twelve hundred men, who are required ot maintain order in Paris. All the corps of the Francs-Tireurs are to be dissolved, but the national guard will remain armed. The French troops will deliver up their arms, flags and field artillery within fourteen days. The French troops may retire into Paris, armed. The cannon of the forts are to be delivered up, but the encientes are to be dismounted, and the carriages delivered to the Prussians, but the guns themselves are to be left. A line of demarcation is drawn between the enciente and the forts; the French portion extends to the enciente only and the Prussian portion to within five hundred paces from the encientes, with certain topographical fortifications. Fort Vincennes will remain in the hands of the French. Paris remains completely invested from a military point of view, but thirty-three miles of road will be repaired and permitted to convey sufficient supplies for the daily nourishment of the population."

A Washington special says the Senate special committee on the investigation of Southern affairs has been in session daily since its organization and have examined a number of witnesses relative to affairs in North Carolina, and are understood to be in possession of startling facts relative to the secret organ which carried the election in that State.

Bourbaki's army and the fortress of Belfort are not comprised in the armistice. The Prussian line of demarkation for the southern armies is to be the line of the Loire.

Favre returned to Paris yesterday evening. Gen. Velden, chief of Gen. Vinery's staff, and Captain Larrson, aide of Trochu, with three directors of the Mediterranean, Orleans and Western railroads, accompanied him.

Not more than three weeks' rations remain in Paris at the present time. The French in Versailles generally rejoice at the approach of peace.

By the latest report of the negotiations, it appears that Bismarck demands two provinces, a colony, twenty war ships and 4,000,000,000 francs as the final terms of peace. The capitulation will only be regarded as a military act, and apart from all political negotiations.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Influence at work for the restoration of the Imperial family—"Alabama" question—Confirmed in full—Bourbaki [attempts suicide.

LONDON, 29.—A Versailles dispatch has just been received, which says: On the 12th the Saxon corps at 10 o'clock of that day occupied Roumanville, Noissy and Nogent; the Bavarians occupied Charelton, Montrouge and Venvres, and the Silesian corps Avey and Bicetre.

Paris is to pay ten thousand millions of francs. The official dispatche from Versailles was read in the churches of Berlin to-day.

A strong influence is at work favoring the restoration of the Imperial family, under a regency composed of the Empress, Trochu and Favre. The Emperor will not enter Paris, but will return to Berlin on Tuesday, leaving the Crown Prince in command of the Prussians.

Provisions for Paris are being forwarded by way of Dieppe.

The capitulation and armistice settles nothing political, nor do they ensure the end of the war. All depends upon the Assembly.

To-night there is the intensest excitement among the French in London.

Gladstone, replying to the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, who urged the settlement of the Alabama claims, said he was assured that Her Majesty's Government had given its assent to every allowable proceeding looking to a settlement and is still so disposed, believing that the long unsettled state of controversy was disadvantgeous to both countries.

A dispatch has been received at the British Foreign Office confirming, in full, the previous reports of the capitulation of Paris, to which it adds, that one division of the troops of the line, besides the national guards, will not be required to disarm, and that communication with Paris is provisionally restricted. There is no prospect, now, that Favre will come to London, and no other has been referred to to represent France at the Conference.

Bismarck, alluding to the reported negotiations between Napoleon and the Prussian government says: "The Emperor refers everything to the Regency." Bismarck denies that he has ever negotiated for the restoration of the Bonapartes, or that he intends to interfere in the domestic concerns of France.

The rumor that, on the opening of Parliament, Disraeli intended to challenge the vote of confidence in the ministry, is pronounced groundless.

Two new French divisions have been formed of recruits in Havre.

Great numbers of cattle have been collected by the Germans at Rouen, Gousse and Lagny, to be driven into Paris as soou as she capitulates.

There is a considerable force of the enemy in Echeloued, between Brienne and Rouen, and detachments have entered Cambrai, Villat and Pont d Demur.

Bourbaki attempted to kill himself after his defeat at Belfort. His injuries are so severe that his life is despaired of.

PRUSSIA.

Rejoicings—Prayers for peace.

BERLIN, 29.—The city is in a perfect frenzy of excitement now that the capitulation of Paris is known. The telegram of the federal chancellor gives official confirmation to the news, which was received at a late hour last night. To-day the church bells have been ringing since day break and the several services in the churches were attended by crowds of worshippers. Sermons on peace were delivered and prayers and thanksgiving for it were offered before and after the morning service in the churches. An immense crowd gathered in front of the queen's palace and the ladies of the household appeared at the windows and waved their acknowledgements to the people.

BERLIN, 29.—The scenes on the streets are beyond description. Every person on his way to church, as he meets his neighbor, is stopped and embraced, and the women are congratulating each other with tears in their eyes. The news of the capitulation certainly creates, in the public mind here, a charitable feeling, and there is a strong desire to act generously towards the fallen foe.

SWITZERLAND.

Fugitives crossing into Switzerland.

BERNE, 29.—The Germans have pushed to Champaigne in the rear of the French, who endeavored to prevent pursuit by barricading the roads. Fugitives from the French army are crossing into Switzerland.

HOW VANDERBILT STARTED.—Every little while the newspapers contain an account of Vanderbilt's beginning. Most of these accounts are apocryphal. His own statement of his first real success is this: He was a young man on Staten Island. He was master of rowing. He was athletic, strong and daring. One night a stranger came to the landing and wanted to be rowed across to Gowanns. The night was dark and stormy and the wind blew a gale. Not a boatman could be found who would leave. The landlord said. "There is nobody who can row you over but Corn. Vanderbilt"—for so he was called. It was doubtful, he said, whether he would do it. Vanderbilt was found, and, in answer to the request, replied: "It's pretty rough, but if you'll give me ten dollars, lay down in my boat and not stir, or do just what I bid you, I'll try it." He rowed the man over and back in safety. As soon as he landed at Staten Island the stranger said: "Young man, how would you like to run an opposition steamboat?" "Nothing would suit me better," was the reply. "Have you pluck enough to obey orders?" said the stranger. "I have," was the response. "Suppose I was to tell you to run into a steamboat, what would you do?" "Run into her, by——." The bargain was sealed amid the storm that night, on the island, and Vanderbilt entered on his well known career as a steamboat man.
