SIMPLE YET MOST EFFECTIVE.

At first glance this graceful reception toilette gives the impression of extreme elaboration. A closer study, however, reveals the actual simplicity of the hand needlework, which forms the only trimmings of the gown. The embroidery is executed in coarse floss, which stands up richly from the fabric, and the long lines of the pattern are rarely in keeping with the graceful sweep and flow of the gown material—a very soft and supple Directoire satin. The skirt, draped across the front in the small "Paquin folds," sweeps downward into one of the small trains, which Paris women have enthusiastically adopted for house wear. Notable is the draped sleeve, in one with the bodice, and caught lightly to the underleeve of tucked chiffon.

members on every other Monday afternoon. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. W. D. Foster on Monday, Nov. 2. The members of the club include Mrs. W. D. One of the chief events of the coming week is the large informal dancing party to be given by the Governor's club at the Odell next Friday evening. The younger set has been looking forward to this event for some time, the members of the club having acquired quite a reputation as entertainers, and this affair being their first venture of the season. The preparations are going rapidly forward, and at this date marks the anniversary of the club's existence in social affairs, the members are leaving nothing undone to assure a good time for all who attend. The affair taking place on the eve of Halloween will no doubt give the club ample opportunity to carry out the decorations in goblin effects so popular at this time of the season.

There is an indisputable suggestion of lavishness about the rug muff—the beholder being impressed with the seemingly careless disregard of expense in the superfluous quantity of costly fur employed. The felt is flung across the inner muff, the long ends hanging free and showing their rich lining when the muff is moved. In this lining are often hidden mysterious little pockets for the stowing away of various feminine knick knacks. Most of the large rug muffs are developed in long-haired pelts, with accompanying heads and brushes; but matched chinilla with its well-defined striped pattern is very effective in this form. With the big muff may be worn one of the new collar-stuffs, which combine a deep rever effect with graceful stole ends of the fur.
