The ntest for the position has resulted a boom for Richards, the splendid is a boom for Eichards, the spiendid young halfback from the High school who will next year be playing his second souson, and another boom for Conville the Perdue star, who has gained a large local reputation through his work at fullback.

The matter will be decided Saturday, following the football banquet on Priday evaning, and on this same day, the official picture of the team for 1907 will be taken probably at the Chase studio.

The idea that buge, bulging muscles are essential to athletic prowess is being steadily discarded by the developers of athletic skill today.

It used to be that the man who would succeed in baseball, football, track and tennis felt it a first requisition to build up on his shoulders, back, arms, thigs and calves great piles of knotted muscles.

This was called development, and the possessor's were prouder of such an equipment than a woman of a good figure. But the modern tendency is getting entirely away from this idea.

Men like Delaney, Mike Murphy, Muldoon and Caakley, who know how to turn out winners, have discovered that a quantity of muscles can only be gained at the cost of speed and that Dempsoy never got a peek at Fitz until he met him in the ring at New Orleans in 1391. He could have just as well been good and strong at 140 pounds instead of 154, But Jark was game and stayed 15 rounds, refusing to quit until he was knocked out. It was a walkover for Fitz, and Maj. McLoughlin pocketed his big winning, and was square with poor Jack Dempsey. It was the boginning of the end with Jack. He had lost not only his laurels, but his heart as well. He never recovered the beating he took from Fitz. Dempsey fell into consumption and died at Portland, Or., a few years after. A fine monument creefed by a few admirers marks his grave.

ONLY ONE MAN LEFT.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Mayor Becker of Milwaukee, nursing a sprained ankle, and Edward Payson Weston, the pedestrian, arrived in Chicago this afternoon by train, being the first arrivals of what started out to be a walking trip from Milwaukee to Chicago. J. A. Stenard, the last of the regular entrants, gave out temporarily at Zion City. Later he resumed the walk and arrived at Waukeyan at 2 p. m., claiming that he was still in the race. Alderman Badenoch of Chicago, who is in the race, he says, for exercise, is still walking and was leading at Waukeyan this afternoon.

JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION IN HANDS OF RECEIVER.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 4.—In the United States district court today Judge Waddil decided to appoint receivers for the Jamestown exposition company. He announced that the court, while taking charge of the af-fairs of the exposition company from today, will take two days to consider the names suggested by counsel for re-ceivers and possible names outside of that list. He said that at least two and probably three receivers will be named.

His decision was rendered after arguments and was based on a desire to protect all creditors against any advantage that might accrue to a certain class under a continuance of present conditions. The following were named to the court for the office of receiver: Director General Alvah H. Martin of the exposition; Dr. Carter Perkins of Newport News, J. A. C. Groner, C. Brooks Johnston, Edward R. Baird, Jr., and W. D. Pender, all of Norfolk, and George A. Schmeiz of Hampton. The court took all these names under consideration.

R. Keene's Stables.

New York, Dec. 5.—The first mystery of the turf season of 1908 has appeared in a yearling colt in the stable of James R. Keene at Sheapshead Bay. There is little information obtainable about the colt except that it is of a dark may or brown color and is a wonderful goer. The youngater's name and pedigree are not known to anyone outside the stable, and Mr. Keene's employes do not talk about the horses they have in training. It is said at a recent trial the youngater did a quarter with weight up in 22.3-5, some of those who saw the trial from afar-off making the time 22 flat. It has been fully determined, it is said, that Mr. Keene's sensational 3-year-old of last season. sensational 3-year-old of last season, Peter Pan, will not be trained us a season, owing to injuries received late in the season, but will be sent to the Keene farm in Hentucky.
