He lived five hours after leaving the "briny," and after his death, was towed to Consy Island Beach by a tug boat, where he will be converted into lamp oil. The monster measured 33 feet in length, and 29 feet in circumference. The fellow had evidently been stabbed by a sword-fish, and at the time he reached the shore was well nigh dead.

Touching and amusing hospital stories begin to be current; for instance, a Prussian and a Frenchman find themselves opposite to each other; both fire and both are wounded. Presently they find themselves in two adjoining beds of an ambu ance; the Frenchman was of Lorraine, and spoke a little German. Of course , talking soon commenced, and in an hour or two they were fast friends, and began planning arrangements for — "after the war." LONDON.—A despatch from the Hague says that great agitation prevailed upon the discovery that the King was told he must not take the initiative. The crown prince has warned the ministers that, if they did not take sides now, Holland would regret her inactivity. The Cabinet appealed to the people. Petitions from all parts are in favor of the States-General, not the King, having the right to declare war. This has calmed down the bilious feeling of King William. The majority of the population side with the crown prince.
