ed by an audience of nine thousand, and was, like the former performance, a decided success. Madames Leutner and Rudolph each sang solos. The chorus of the Jubilee singers appeared in their quaint melodies and were repeatedly encored.

CANADA.

BELLEVILLE, Canada, 22.—The night express went down past this place at 12:30 this morning, fully loaded with passengers, among whom were many ministers of the English church on their way homeward from the Synod at Toronto. About eleven miles below Belleville station, the engine jumped the track, carrying death and fearful tortures to scores of passengers in the forward cars. The baggage car remained on the track and telescoped the smoking car and a second-class passenger car, leaving them on top of the engine, and the escaping steam from the boiler. Here the poor creatures were hopelessly jammed for some time, breathing vapors and death, and suffering all the agony of an immersion in a boiling cauldron of super-heated water. J. M. Roddy, an eye witness says, immediately after the disaster he went to the second-class car, and the smoking car were telescoped and from the locomotive, steam from which, leaving from the cars, was so dense that he could see nothing, one after another of the scalded wretches. Crowbars were immediately put into requisition by the passengers from the first-class cars, all of whom escaped injury, and openings were made. Many were found entangled and were extricated with the utmost difficulty. The timbers having to be broken. Five persons were found dead and carried to the roadside, where the wounded lay for nearly three hours, in the most fearful agony, when Dr. Hendrick of Belleville arrived and had them removed to a Pullman car. On their arrival here everything was promptly done to allay their sufferings. Medical men were summoned, and straws were procured, and a large freight shed was turned into a temporary hospital, where the patients received every possible attention. The medical men and their assistants were untiring in their attentions, while the clergy vied with each other in the sight at the scene of the disaster was one to baffle description, and the terrible cries of the sufferers rent the air of the broken cars who made every possible effort to grant their request for water. Their condition, under the influence of their terrible injuries, was fearful to witness, while prayers and curses, uttered in a manner surprising and heard. After the injured arrived here death brought to some of them a happy relief from their terrible agonies. Those least injured were taken about washed in bandages and conveyed freely concerning the occurrence of the night. The express and baggage car was forced past the broken engine without injuring the express messenger or baggage car, as was the second-class car, and the latter in going forward, knocked the safety valve off the boiler, and remained on top of the engine, allowing the water to fill the car, which was crowded with passengers, many of them lumbermen en route for Omaha. Two first-class cars and a Pullman car were comparatively uninjured, and the passengers were not in any danger. Five men and women were fearfully scalded and otherwise injured; six died on the spot and their bodies were brought to Belleville, four more have died and others are dying. Not more than one-third of the injured will live. John Hobbert the engineer was instantly killed; and the fireman was so badly injured that one of his legs will have to be put in. H. Nelson the conductor, and the other train hands escaped uninjured.
