

INCREASE IN TRADE WITH THE ORIENT

Is Making the Construction of a New Coast Line a Necessity.

RECONSTRUCTION IN MEXICO

Tehuantepec Railroad Being Put Into Good Shape to Handle a Great Amount of Business.

The railroad situation as it affects coast business is becoming more interesting as each day succeeds another. That another and independent route and system to the Pacific ocean from this city will be in existence in a comparatively short time there is now no reasonable cause to doubt; and that the port of connection with Pacific ocean steamship traffic will be at Los Angeles is another very reasonable conclusion. The Rio Grande Western may be safely counted upon to be too ambitious to confine itself to Utah in a westerly direction, and while the branch line running south to Maryvale is being successfully operated as a local affair it is reasonable to assume, and confidently asserted by some people who claim to "see through a brick wall" from a railroad point of view, that repeated extensions of this line will finally bring it to the coast or to a connection which will furnish a permanent outlet to the ocean on the coast of southern California. With the advent here of the Burlington there will be another road to be cared for in the matter of a coast connection, and it is assumed that the cordial relations existing between the Burlington and the Western will prompt some mutual moves toward the construction of a vent to the Pacific. Prospects for redoubled Oriental trade are as good as to make such an artery of trade an approaching absolute necessity.

RAILROAD NOTES.

Vice President Hancock of the Oregon Short Line went north last night.

S. H. Babcock of the Western left here this morning for San Francisco.

Burlington surveyors are said to be coming down Weber canyon on their way to Salt Lake.

General Agent McMillan of the Burlington has his office in the Williamson building.

Motive Power Superintendent Dunn of the Oregon Short Line is up at the Castello.

PARDON FOR WOODMANSEE.

Mayor Thompson Takes Compassion on the Young Man.

H. A. Woodmansee, the young man who was convicted in Judge Timmon's court yesterday afternoon on the charge of paroling a $20 gold piece from an old man named Holmes, and sentenced to put in twenty-five days on the boulevard or pay a fine of $25, is now a free man.

Young Woodmansee has a wife and two children, and it is said that he is also the sole support of his mother. When this present trouble came upon them they were not in the best condition financially. These facts were brought to the attention of Mayor Thompson, who did not hesitate to issue a pardon for the young fellow.

HE REFUSED TO WORK.

Prisoner Becomes Defiant as is Daily Punished.

Another defiant prisoner is enjoying the seclusion of the black hole at the city jail. He is John Harris, doing ten days for destroying property. Yesterday while on the boulevard he cut his shoes and asked for a new pair, which Chief Hilton promised him. Last night he made his threats that he would either get shoes or not work. This morning he flatly refused to join the gang and was locked up in the "black hole." "Put me in the hole if you want to," he said, "but before I'll squeal I'll go to—At last accounts he was squealing.

BIG SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

Nearly Two Thousand Pieces to be Auctioned by Salt Lake County.

Property Acquired Through Tax Sale Delinquencies—Contains Some Good Buys—Deeds are Bonafide.

THE public will be interested in knowing something of the big list of property advertised for sale by Salt Lake county, in this issue of the "News." The list comprises nearly 2,000 separate tracts of ground that are to be sold at auction by County Clerk Dunbar, from the front door of the joint city and county building, beginning at 1 p. m., Tuesday, May 22, and continuing until all have been offered.

But what is the sale, for what purpose is it made, where do the proceeds go, and are bonafide deeds issued? These are the essentials of a composite question that many will ask in order that all persons interested may understand the matter thoroughly and govern themselves accordingly, the "News" this afternoon secured the following statement from Commissioner Woolley:

"These parcels of land have been acquired by the county, through the owners failing to pay taxes upon them and, later, fail to redeem them after the delinquency sale. The title vests absolutely in the county and the county will issue deeds with all the customary rights to purchasers."

"The original owner has no greater legal right in them now than any one else. His right has completely disappeared. The only way he can hope to recover is by outbidding his competitors. The county clerk will first offer a piece of property at a figure at least equal to the taxes and costs thereon. It may be worth $500 or a $1,000 with all costs represented at say $25. Thirty-five dollars will bid the property in if it is the only bid. If it runs up to $75 the successful bidder, whether original owner or competitors will get his $500 or $1,000 piece of property for $75. Just how many such buys as this there are I cannot say. But this is just an illustration. Much of the property is in outlying subdivisions and not worth so much, but there are some good snags and investors can make money by keeping their eyes open."

SOMETHING THAT TALKS.

Three Crown Baking Powder will speak for itself if once used. So will our Three Crown Extracts and Spices. These goods are guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money will be returned.

Don't forget in your next Grocery order to insist on having the Three Crown Brand. They are sold by all up to date Grocers.

PADEREWSKI HAS ARRIVED

The Great Pianist Reached This City Last Night.

Manager Goerlitz Grows Reminiscent in Thinking of Twenty Years Ago.

The private car containing Paderewski and his business manager, Mr. Hugo Goerlitz, rolled into Salt Lake last night. Manager Pyper and several newspaper men at once went in their cars, and were admitted to the great Pole's presence. He was found practicing on the piano, which he carries with him everywhere, but he gave his visitors a few moments and entered into a lively conversation on his experiences in the West, his impressions, and American politics, a subject he never tires of discussing. He lives in his private car, and remains there most of the time. This afternoon at 4:30 he went to the Tabernacle, where Professor Daynes played for him a dispatch from Denver announcing that the first day's sale there amounted to $1,478, and had just visited the Theater Box office, where a steady line of purchasers was buying tickets for tonight's performance. "It looks as though we should have about a $1,500 house to-night," he said. "So we shall carry away as our share more than we did four years ago when we played at the Tabernacle."

"Our receipts then were $3,000, but our expenses for rent, advertising, etc., were about $1,800. Our business everywhere has been as great as ever and in Montana, where we charged the same as we do here, we met with extraordinary success. Our rates will be $1.00 higher in Denver than in Salt Lake."

Mr. Goerlitz grew very reminiscent as he walked up and down Main street and saw the changes which had occurred since he and his wife, Amy Sherwin, spent six months here twenty years ago. "That was a very dark period of our lives," he said, "and I, too, would have looked as big to us then as $1,500 does now. I often think of the kind friends who aided us then, and regret that so many of them have passed away. My wife and I often talk of the performances of 'Pianoforte,' 'Trial by Jury' and 'Martha,' which were given for our benefit in Salt Lake. I remember Mr. Pyper very well then as one of the jurors in 'Trial by Jury.' Dr. John White took a prominent part. Jim McCurdy was foreman of the jury. Miss Maud Bennett, whom I recently met in Maine, was one of the bridesmaids as I remember. And I was many other ladies and gentlemen who helped us out. My wife is now in London, where she appears very often in operettas and concert. She wrote me recently to look up and look up her old friends in Salt Lake."

ANOTHER BURGLARY.

Joseph Kimball's Residence Visited Yesterday Afternoon.

Another daylight burglary is on record. Yesterday Mr. Joseph Kimball's residence, No. 16 Third street, was entered during the family's absence and a purse lying on the mantle piece in the parlor, was taken. The purse contained $25 cents cash and a check for $25 on the State Bank of Utah.

BOARD OF PARDONS.

List of Cases Considered at Today's Meeting.

At a meeting of the State board of pardons held today the following applications for pardon were considered: Frank E. Clift, grand larceny; commutation of sentence. Wilbert Baum, convicted of grand larceny. George Harmon, having stolen property in possession. Oscar Foy, grand larceny. George Climes, grand larceny. William D. Reeves, grand larceny. James Smith, grand larceny. James J. Booth, rape and adultery. (2 counts) parole. Louis H. Harmer, adultery. Lindsay B. Young, housebreaking. Henry Wilson, Lily Mitchell and Henry Lewis, having burglar tools in possession. The last named are the Helena prisoners, whom the Montana officers are here after. It is thought the two men will be pardoned and taken to Helena this evening. No decision had been reached at a late hour this afternoon, the board being all afternoon in executive session.

PAWNBROKERS SUE.

Clare H. Watrous filed a suit against Erratien Lichtenstein and Moses Lichtenstein in the Third district court today, to recover a diamond ring and a lady's gold watch pawned with the defendants, and which it is alleged they have now converted to their own use. The watch is valued at $200, and was pledged for $11, and the ring is valued at $50, and pawned for $22. Plaintiff demands judgment for the return of the jewelry or $500.

AN AFFIRMATION AND REVERSAL.

Case of Skeen vs Marriott Decided by Supreme Court.

INFIRMITY OF HUMAN LAW.

Case of Rudolph Konold vs His Grande Western Railway Co. Is Reversed.

The Supreme court handed down two opinions today, reversing the judgment of the lower court in one and affirming the other. The case reversed was Rudolph Konold vs the Rio Grande Western, appellant, and the one affirmed, Martha I. Skeen et al, appellants, vs John Marriott.

The first named action was an appeal from the judgment of the Seventh district court, Jacob Johnson, judge, in favor of the plaintiff Konold for $8,000 for injuries claimed to have been sustained by him by reason of the explosion of the boiler of the locomotive, which he was running, as engineer, upon defendant's road. The accident occurred at Lower Crossing, Utah, between Helper and Grand Junction, on May 27, 1896. Konold claimed the boiler of the engine was old and worn out and sued for $25,000. The case was tried last July, and a verdict for $8,000 was returned, whereupon the defendant company appealed.

The Supreme court finds that the evidence was not sufficient to show that the defendant company's rules and regulations, so far as they related to the train on which plaintiff was injured, had been abrogated. The admission of testimony on this line, the court finds, was a part of the case made by the counsel for plaintiff to certain instructions of the court to the jury, predicated upon the evidence relating to the abrogation of the company's rules, which the court has now found to be sustained. The court, after a further review of the evidence and instructions of the lower court, orders a reversal of the case, and instructs Judge Johnson to grant a new trial. The opinion is by Justice Baskin, Chief Justice Bartch and Justice Miner concurring.

This case was once tried in Ogden and reversed, the court holding that the action had to be commenced in the county where the accident occurred. Action in the Skeen case was brought to have declared and established an express trust in favor of Martha I. Skeen, Rebecca Holman, Benjamin Marriott and John Marriott Jr. in a certain alleged fund of $4,000, which it was claimed, was delivered to the defendant John Marriott by Trezor Southwick, one of the plaintiffs to the suit.

The complaint in substance alleged that on February 13, 1888, Trezor Southwick delivered to the defendant John Marriott $4,000, to be held by him in trust for his own use and benefit during his life and for the use of Martha I. Skeen, Rebecca Holman, Benjamin Marriott and John Marriott Jr. at his (Southwick's) death; that the defendant disregarded his trust and instead a part of the money in trust expended the remainder for his own use and benefit; that he disowned his trust and was old, infirm, and afflicted with weakness of mind, etc.

Plaintiffs pray for an equitable decree of the trust, the appointment of a receiver, and other relief. The defendant's answer was a general denial of the allegations of the complaint. The case was tried before Judge Hart, who sat in place of Judge Klapp at Ogden, on May 1, 1895, and judgment rendered in favor of defendant, when the plaintiffs appealed.

The evidence showed that at one time the defendant was the husband of the first wife, three of whom were living at the time the alleged trust was created. The first wife died in 1886. All the wives had children by the defendant. The first wife had a son, Trezor Southwick, who was the defendant's third wife. In 1886 the defendant, expecting arrest on the charge of adultery, conveyed his estate, worth about $15,000, to his wives then living, but left none to the children of his first wife. To his third wife he conveyed a piece of land, and to his second wife, Washington avenue, Ogden, where she resided with her children, and twenty-one acres of land on Salt Creek, and gave her 100 head of sheep. In January, 1897, he was arrested on the charge of adultery, and sentenced to six months in the penitentiary. He disposed of his property without consideration, but with the understanding that the wife and children of the first wife were to be transferred back to him, and some of it was transferred, but not all.

In a lengthy review of the case, Chief Justice Bartch, who wrote the opinion, finds that the proof was insufficient to establish an express trust. To hold differently would be to open the doors to fraud and endanger the titles of individuals to their property. Says the court, "while we are clearly of the opinion that the proof is wholly insufficient to establish a trust, there is evidence in the record tending to show that the defendant provided in his life time equitably, out of his estate, for all his families and children, except the four who are plaintiffs herein; that he intended also to provide for those four before his death (which occurred shortly after the trial); and that the property here in controversy in justice ought to belong to them as their proportionate share of their father's estate. If these things be true, then the unavoidable misfortune which will come to the children upon the announcement of this decision, must be attributed to the neglect, unintentional doubtless, on the part of the owner of the property, to declare an effectual trust, and to the infirmity of human law to reach such a case. In such event, our powers, we can but hope and trust that the love and affection which ought to exist in every household, and the ties of consanguinity will be strong enough to do that justice, which the security of titles to property forbids us to do. While in such a case, under such evidence, a trust can neither be established or enforced by a court, yet, as we have seen, the law is not so unjust as to prevent the parties themselves from discharging obligations of good faith and honor."

The court then orders an affirmation of the lower court's judgment. Justices Miner and Baskin concur in the decision.

WARDEN DOW HOME AGAIN.

State Prison Official Returns from a Month's Visit East.

State Prison Warden George N. Dow returned today from Lawrence, Mass., where he went a month ago to visit his sister who, at that time, was sick, but is now almost well again. While away Warden Dow visited nearly all the principal cities of the East. He reports having found business exceptionally good everywhere. "Everyone I met," said the warden, "was complaining of the times being prosperous; so I guess that everybody says must be true." At Lawrence he found an immense wool-growing plant in course of erection. The mill, he said, has a capacity for handling 100,000,000 pounds of wool a year. "I told one of the directors of the company," said Mr. Dow, "that Utah was a great wool producing country, and he said he guessed he knew that better than I did. The population of Lawrence is between 50,000 and 70,000. Warden Dow returned feeling well and glad to be home again.

Splendid Showing of Copper Ore on the 1900 Level.

A Telephone Message Conveys the News to President McKinley—Fine Ore also Uncovered on the 800 Level.

A telephone message to President Sam McIntyre of the Mammoth Mining company conveyed the good news that the ore body on the 1900 level had been disclosed today. The message, which was received late this afternoon, states that the ore shows excellent copper values and will doubtless run high in gold. This ore body has been expected for several days past. It was tapped at a distance of about 125 feet from the shaft.

The same message also states that fine body of ore has also been disclosed on drift from the upraise about half-way between the 900 and 700 levels.

From Deep Sorrow to Great Joy

What Mother's Love and Tender Care Failed to Accomplish Hood's Sarsaparilla Promptly Effectuated.

"I would cry every time I washed my baby!" This plaintive sentence tells a volume of mother's agony. In such a dreadful condition from eruptions and sores, Mrs. Guerino's child received the tenderest care that mother's love could give, and the most skillful medical attendance that father's means could provide. Yet all failed until they turned to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which in this as in thousands of other cases has seemed to be the last resort, yet it has not failed. The result was inevitable—just as certain to cure as that day follows night. Evening's weeping turned to morning's rejoicing. That is what Hood's Sarsaparilla will do for you if you will only let it. Just read Mrs. Guerino's letter. It is a characteristic Hood's Sarsaparilla testimonial:

"My baby was three months old when festers broke out on his neck. The openings appeared like boils, spread down his back and along the spinal column until it appeared as one mass of sores. Our doctor prescribed for the case, but the disease spread and the little one's sufferings increased and he became a mere shadow. His pitiful wailing was heart-rending. It nearly crazed me, weary and worn-out as I was from constant watching and nursing. The discharge of matter was so profuse that it was necessary to dress his back three times a day. Every time the bandages were removed blood would flow and for a time even powders and different salves did not check the trouble. It became necessary to wrap the little body in silk. When the trouble appeared at its height our anxiety was increased by the appearance of a boil just outside the lid alongside one of his eyes. We feared lest the scrofulous matter got into the eye, and even if his life was spared to us, that his sight would become affected."

"I had about given up hope of saving my baby, when I was asked why I did not try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Eager for anything that held out hope, I procured a bottle of Hood's. I also got a cake of Hood's Medicated Soap and a box of Hood's Olive Ointment. I immediately laid aside all the doctor's medicines and gave the infant the smallest dose of the Sarsaparilla prescribed, and then took off the bandages and washed the mass of sores with the Medicated Soap. Next I applied the Olive Ointment and adjusted a fresh wrapping of silk. A change was noticeable the next Sunday, giving assurance that we had at last hit upon the treatment to successfully battle the poisonous blood. "Slowly but with a perceptible gain, the discharge grew less, the inflammation disappeared, the surrounding skin took on a more healthy color, and what a short time before had been a mass of raw flesh began to scale over and gradually a thin skin formed and the scales dropped off. Not a scar or blemish around the eye, neck or back or anywhere on his body is to be found, and now at eight months old he is as bright, healthy and full grown as any child of that age. Less than two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, aided by Hood's Medicated Soap and Hood's Olive Ointment, accomplished this wonderful cure."

"I cannot begin to express my gratitude towards Hood's Sarsaparilla and your other medicines for the good they accomplished in my baby's case." Mrs. N. GUERINO, 37 Myrtle St., Rochester, N. Y.

For the cure of all blood diseases and Spring Humors, Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled. Try it.
