

Selected Poetry.

PRIDE.

BY JOHN G. SAGE.

"'Tis a curious fact as ever was known—But often in human nature shown, That pride, like pigs of a certain brood, Will manage to live and thrive on food As poor as a pauper's postage;
Of all the notable things of earth,
The queerest thing is the pride of birth.
Among our "ferocious democracy!"
A bridge across a hundred years, Without a prop to save it from sneers—No such a couple of rotten planks May end in a loom of stronger twine, That plighted some worthy relation.
Because you flourish in worldly affairs, Don't be haughty and put on airs, With insolent pride of station, Don't be proud and turn up your nose At poorer people in plainer clothes;
But learn for the sake of your mind's repose That all proud life is—wherever it goes Is subject to irritation."

BREVITIES.

A physician in New Orleans, on being inquired of concerning a friend, replied that he had been arrested for taking what did not belong to him, and what he had no business to meddle with.
"By whom was he arrested, and what did he take?"
"He was arrested by Death for taking the yellow fever."

A Kentuckian traveling in Minnesota not long since, stopped at a cheap hotel and complained of the towel in the wash room. "Pshaw," said the landlord, "I don't see why you should find fault with it. Two hundred men have wiped on it this morning, and you are the first to complain."

A sick man, slightly convalescing, recently in conversation with a pious friend, who congratulated him upon his recovery, and asked him, who his physician was, replied:
"Dr. Jones brought me through."
"No, no," said his friend, "God brought you out of your illness, not the doctor."
"Well, maybe he did, but I am certain the doctor will charge me for it."

A gentleman remarked that—who used to be given to sharp practice was getting more circumspect.
"Yes," replied Judge Hoar of Massachusetts, "he has reached the super-active—he began by seeking to get on, and then he began to seek honor, and now he is trying to get honest."

"Come till America, Pat" writes a son of the Emerald Isle to his friend in Ireland, "this is a fine country to get a living in. All ye have to do is to get a three-cornered box and fill it with bricks and carry it to the top of a three story building, and then the man at the top does all the work."

It has recently been discovered in Vermont that the falling leaves of forest trees, indiscriminately gathered, are much better for tanning purposes than bark. An invention for the application of the discovery has been taken out.
The leather tanned with dried leaves is softer, and in every respect better than that tanned with bark. The discovery will prove of great value to our Western tanneries.

A lawyer at a circuit town, in Ireland dropped a ten-pound note under the table, while playing cards at the inn.
He did not discover his loss until he was going to bed, but then returned immediately. On reaching the room, he was met by the waiter, who said:
"I know what you want, sir, you have lost something."

"Yes, I have lost a ten-pound note."
"Well, sir, I have found it and here it is."

"Thanks, my good lad, here's a sovereign for you."
"No, sir, I want no reward for being honest, but," looking at him with a knowing grin—"wasn't it lucky that none of the gentlemen found it?"

Brown, on his first journey per coach not long ago, worried the driver, beside whom he sat, with incessant childish questions about everything on the road.
At last he got his quietus thus:
Driver—There's been a woman lying in that house more than a month, and they haven't buried her yet.
Brown—Not buried her yet? pray tell me why not?
Driver—Because she isn't dead.

A new system is being introduced into some of the leading ladies' seminaries at the North, which is well worthy of imitation in this section. It is no less than requiring the scholars to attend, at least one hour a day, to the domestic duties of the house, the object being not so much to train them for household labor as it is to render them independent of hired domestics—an object destined to become one of the greatest importance ere long.

The Worcester Palladium relates a cure for paralysis which is interesting to the afflicted. The editor met a gentleman who, although he walked with apparent ease, said he had been almost a hopeless paralytic, but had been substantially cured by the use of an air-pump. The theory of the cure and the application of the instrument were as follows: Paralysis is produced by the failure of some of the organs of life to perform their functions. They need recuperation. He applied a cup or receiver to the surface of the part affected, and by means of the pump he removed the pressure of the external atmosphere. There was then a rush of air internally, as much as the clogged condition of the system would admit, toward the vacuum produced by the pump. The blood was carried along by the air, and by mere mechanical force, made to circulate in the affected limb, which thus recovered its vigor and activity.
