George M. Cannon, a well known young business man of this city, has filed in the Federal court a petition that he be adjudged to be bankrupt. The failure of Mr. Cannon can be traced to circumstances in real estate prior to the panic of 1893, obligating him to the extent of about $[illegible]. In 1893 the property which he had purchased, like that of all others, depreciated in value and continued to do so until in many instances even the principal upon which loans were secured was wiped out. A short time ago Mr. Cannon addressed a letter to all his creditors requesting them to grant him an extension upon condition that he would make and issue [illegible] covering his indebtedness. In this letter he made a full statement of the financial condition, and he [illegible] all but one of his creditors, T. M. Thompson, endorsed the proposition and were willing to give Mr. Cannon a fighting chance. Mr. Thompson commenced suit and secured judgment, and [illegible] such action [illegible] to the remainder of his creditors, Mr. Cannon determined to place his affairs in the bankruptcy court so that all would be treated alike. With the petition was filed an account of the affairs of the petitioner.
