

Today's Ogden News

BOTH POLITICAL PARTIES ACTIVE.

Democratic Central Committee making Arrangements for Opening Their Campaign.

DR. G. A. DICKSON FOR COUNCIL

On Republican Ticket in Place of E. Stewart Who Declined To Run.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—The Democratic central committee met last evening for the purpose of making arrangements for the opening of their campaign. The most important business transacted was the selecting of W. B. Wilson as secretary. Mr. Wilson has had a great deal of experience in election work and with H. W. Gillingham will make a good, clean campaign for the Democrats.

The committee appointed the various ward workers, and decided on a plan for reaching every voter throughout the city. They also appointed a finance committee and the other necessary committees for the conducting of the campaign.

It was decided to secure headquarters as soon as possible and to keep them open all the time until election day is over. The Democrats are doing all their work very quietly, but effectively, and feel confident they will be able to elect some if not all of their ticket.

A special meeting of the Republican central committee was held last evening at the city hall. Dr. G. A. Dickson, city physician, was selected a councillor from the Fifth ward, to fill the vacancy on the ticket, caused by the resignation of E. E. Stewart. He is a very strong candidate, and has many friends. Chairman Hulanicki reported the opening of headquarters in the Opera House block. C. G. Christman and Dr. Dickson were appointed a committee to select a successor to the doctor on the central committee.

DISTRICT COURT HEARINGS.

Motion to Non-Suit in Damage Case Argued—Divorce Granted.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—In the case of Bertha Peterson vs. H. McMartin et al, suit brought to recover damages alleged to be due for injuries sustained by plaintiff's husband who was thrown from his bicycle a few months ago while intoxicated from liquor purchased from defendant, a jury was sworn until noon yesterday. At the afternoon session a non-suit was granted to defendant. Brik Larsen, J. P. Becker and Theodore Schumacher, they being only the housemen of the other defendants. After that non-suit was granted, the defense moved for a non-suit as to all the other defendants, which was argued at length and not completed when court adjourned until Monday.

In the case of George A. Fuller vs. Matthew Burnette, the court granted a temporary restraining order. The suit is brought by Mr. Fuller, who claims that he is the owner of a certain piece of land at Eden, in the center of a fork of Wool creek, which he waters for irrigation. Matthew Burnette, who is the defendant, claims that the defendant steps up the ditch forcing the water to flood upon plaintiff's land and settle in a swill, doing him considerable damage, and desires a permanent restraining order restraining defendant from in any way interfering with the water or ditch.

The divorce suit of Mary E. Smith against A. D. Strango, was heard by the court and decree of divorce granted plaintiff, who was also restored to her maiden name and given custody of her minor child.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Excellent Work Done in High School Commercial Department.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—The regular meeting of the board of education was held last evening. O. J. Sullivan, instructor in the commercial department, appeared before the board and made a talk on the work being accomplished in his department. He said this year the students would visit a number of the large business houses and banks for the purpose of gaining a practical insight into commercial life. He made an excellent report which is a good recommendation of the work being done at the school, that out of 200 graduates from the department whom he had recommended for positions not one of them had failed.

Florence Congdon of the Des. school, and James L. Barker of the High school applied for raise in salary. Applications referred to the teachers' committee.

The treasurer reported an overdraft of $1,542.92.

Two new cases of diphtheria were reported having developed this week. Miss Rosalia C. Salbeck, of Salt Lake came to Ogden this morning and gave her first lecture to the primary teachers of the city schools. Her subject was "Primary Education," which is the foundation of all school work and should be commenced well.

HONOR MR. AND MRS. ALLISON

Retiring Superintendent and Matron of Industrial School Reported.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—The officers and employees of the State Industrial school met at the institution last evening at 7 o'clock, giving a surprise to Supt. E. M. Allison and Mrs. Allison, the matron, who retire from the school Nov. 1. The party was given as a mark of esteem and respect to Mr. and Mrs. Allison, who for many years have so ably conducted the school, and retire now to take life quiet and easy. Thomas C. Meyers, one of the officers of the school in behalf of the employees, presented Mr. and Mrs. Allison, each with an elegant rocking chair, bespeaking the kindly feeling entertained by all.

TEA

Do we set-up for a teacher?

Indeed we do; and there's need?

Write for our Knowledge Book, A Schilling & Company, San Francisco.

SHOCKING DEATH OF LITTLE BOY.

Ten-Year-Old William Barendregt Dragged for a Block by Frightened Cow.

Libel Suit Default Set Aside

Mayor Glasman Testifies He Is Not The Editor But Business Manager Of Standard.

Harvest of Grim Reaper.

Mrs. Richard Howell of Slaterville Victim of Paralysis—Inga Poulton Dead.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—Death's harvest in Weber county during the past few days has been very heavy.

Mrs. Richard Howell, a well known and highly respected resident of Slaterville, died yesterday at the family residence of paralysis with which she was stricken Tuesday. She is survived by a husband and six children. This is the fourth death in the family in the past few months, three brothers having passed away in that time. The funeral services for Mrs. Howell will be held at her home, 1016 Grant avenue, of general debility. Deceased was the wife of P. G. Poulson, and well known and esteemed in Ogden. The funeral will be held from the residence Monday at 2 o'clock.

Hendrick, the little three months old babe of Mr. and Mrs. Gerret Bachway, died at the home 2211 Stephens avenue yesterday of summer complaint.

The funeral services over the remains of Miss Mary S. Purdie, eldest daughter of Wm. N. Purdie, who died Wednesday, will be held Sunday at 2 o'clock at the Fourth ward meeting-house.

Tomorrow at 12 o'clock the funeral services over the remains of Mada Wangsgard, who was killed Thursday at Huntsville, will be held at the family residence. Interment will take place in the Huntsville cemetery.

The remains of Oliver H. Brown, who died at Weston, Idaho, Thursday, of stomach trouble, will be buried yesterday. The Modern Woodmen will conduct the funeral services Sunday at the residence in Indiana avenue.

GLASMAN DEFAULT VACATED

Defendant Claims He Was Not Properly Notified in Time to Answer.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—Before Judge Armstrong, the case of George Glasman against William Glasman was called, the defendant's attorney, R. S. Farnsworth moved the court to set aside the default of defendant entered in the case which deprived defendant of filing an answer in the case. The defendant claimed that he was not served with the summons in sufficient time to file an answer within the time specified by law. Affidavits were read from employees of the Standard and from the witness stand substantiated these facts and further testified that he was not the editor of the Standard and does not own a share of stock in the paper. That Mr. Frank Francis is editor-in-chief of the Standard and while Mr. Glasman is business manager only, which positions they have held since January or February of this year.

Mr. Francis took the witness stand and testified that he is editor of the Standard and Theodore Tracy testified to similar facts.

The court after hearing lengthy arguments from Attorneys Pratt for Mr. Glasman and Farnsworth for Mayor Glasman, granted the motion setting aside the default, giving defendant permission to answer the complaint.

BRIEFS AND PERSONALS.

One of the main wires that carries the current along Washington avenue was broken last night, putting the entire street car system out of operation for some time, until the wire could be repaired.

The Weber county special teachers' examination was commenced yesterday by Supt. Peterson, and will be completed today. Eight teachers are taking the examination.

Wm. Read, who was committed to the state industrial school from Logan, who had been made a trustee, escaped from the institution, but was captured a few hours later by Asst. Supt. Thompson.

Mrs. Otella Parry presented her husband with a fine baby boy yesterday.

The boys who were arrested on the charge of burglarizing the cracker factory, were given a hearing before Judge Patton. They were severely lectured and promised to do right in the future; hence sentence was suspended during good behavior.

IT OCCURRED THURSDAY.

Merchants of the Western Cities are spending enormous sums of money in fitting up retail establishments where their patrons may feel at home when visiting their stores.

The Hallday Drug Store was opened to the public Thursday and many bear witness to the fact that it is one of the most elaborately furnished stores in the Intermountain country. The Hon. Jas. Mack is President of the Company. Mr. T. L. Hallday, Vice President and Manager. Mr. Joseph Jack, Secretary and Treasurer. W. Clayton and W. H. Jack constituted the Directorate of the Company.

The magnificent fixtures were all designed and manufactured at Salt Lake by J. P. Paulson, manufacturer of Bank, Store and office fixtures, at their extensive plant, 170 to 174 South Second West. The finish is of Curley Birch inlaid with white Holly, and is certainly a credit to the firm, and shows conclusively that this city can compete successfully on any line of goods manufactured here, with foreign houses.

The Soda Fountain is constructed of Onyx and Mahogany is the finest between Denver and San Francisco, costing over $5,000, and must be seen to be appreciated. It was manufactured by the L. J. Carbone Co. The decorations are in keeping with the rest of the store. The design is of Tulips and the bordering is of Turkey red. It is certainly a handsome Drug Store, and located as it is, opposite the Salt Lake Theater on the southwest corner of State and First South, will be very popular. On another page of this paper is a view of the interior, which gives you an idea of it, and shows how you are down town see for yourself.

SHOCKING DEATH OF LITTLE BOY.

Ten-Year-Old William Barendregt Dragged for a Block by Frightened Cow.

LIBEL SUIT DEFAULT SET ASIDE

Mayor Glasman Testifies He Is Not The Editor But Business Manager Of Standard.

Ogden, Utah, Oct. 21.—As the result of serious injuries inflicted Tuesday evening, William Barendregt, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Barendregt, died at the Ogden General hospital last evening.

The little boy's death is a most distressing affair. Tuesday evening he came home from school and went out to the barnyard to do his evening chores. He placed a rope around the cow's horns and led her to water. Thoughtlessly, while holding the cow he wrapped the rope around his waist, the animal became frightened at something near the water and started to run away. The boy tried to loosen the rope from around his waist, but was unable to do so. He screamed for help, and this seemed to cause the cow to run faster. A gentleman tried to catch the rope, but was unable until the cow had dragged the boy almost a block through the sagebrush and fences. When the boy was at last loosened from his terrible plight he was picked up and carried to the home, 1122 Twenty-fourth street. Dr. Perkins was summoned and had him removed to the hospital. He had received two severe scalp wounds several inches long, and severe internal injuries. He was given every possible attention, but his injuries were too serious, and he died at the hour mentioned.

The parents are grief-stricken over the sad affair. The family came to Ogden about two years ago from England. The funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Fourth ward meeting-house.

WEBER STAKE ACADEMY.

Night School Makes a Good Start—Crowded Condition of Study Room.

Ogden, Oct. 21.—President Shurtliff made a short visit last Tuesday morning.

The conservatory of music continues to grow in popularity as well as in numbers. Night school commenced the winter's work last Monday with a fair attendance. Twenty-two good substantial students registered the first evening. The school is in charge of Prof. McKendrick, Bradford, and Shurtliff.

Last Tuesday the study hall was occupied by holding separate meetings of the boys and girls. Miss McKay spoke to the girls and Principal McKay and Prof. Lind and Bradford addressed the boys.

Bishop McQuarrie occupied the time at devotional Wednesday morning. This week, James Widdison, Wm. Mitchell and John Peterson, all returned missionaries and former students of the academy, visited the school. Elder Peterson addressed the students at devotional.

Another evidence of the progressiveness of the school comes this time from the lecture committee. It is in the shape of a 16-page prospectus of the lecture course. It is very valuable in that it contains, not only the names of the lecturers, but also the topics of the public should know relative to the lecture course. It gives also a great number of eastern testimonials, ably supplemented by what fellow townsmen think of the course.

Two years ago when the school exhibit was sent to St. Louis, as was the case with the Lewis and Clark exposition, there was no thought of competing for a prize, and so the school was very much surprised when Principal McKay read a letter to the effect that the Weber Stake academy was awarded a bronze medal, at the Lewis and Clark fair.

Before the school year grows very much older, more seating room will have to be forthcoming. Nearly every seat in the study hall has been taken, and the study hall is crowded upon it, when there should be but two.

During the past week there has been considerable activity manifested by the "Academy" staff. A query brought forth the answer, "We are rusting 'rads,' increasing our subscription and getting material together for the first issue that we expect out in the near future."

Janitor VanDrafft, while riding a wheel over a crossing last Thursday, was knocked to the hard pavement by a team and suffered a fracture of his right thigh bone. His sympathy of both students and faculty go out to Mr. Van De Graff and family in this misfortune.

AMUSEMENTS.

Emma Eames came, sang and conquered. Looking back over the long list of great concerts which have made Tubernacle entertainments famous, we can think of only a few that better deserve the name of a music festival than last night's event. The audience was a beautiful one, although it did not quite approach in numbers that which Nordica and Melba drew, but it was well distributed over all portions of the house, and it must have presented a grand spectacle to the performers as they faced it from the platform.

The receipts of the evening were something under $3,000, more than could have been anticipated when it is considered that Eames, in spite of her strength as an operatic star in the east, was only slightly known to the masses in the west.

The great singer had a beautiful reception as she emerged through the arch upon the gallery and took her place on the platform. Not only did the audience give her a grand salute, but the five hundred singers, in themselves an inspiring background, rose en masse to greet her, a mark of distinction which evidently pleased her to the utmost. Eames is a regal, queenly, and a beautiful woman, as well as a rare artist. Her voice is a brilliant soprano; its strength and quality well distributed through all the registers, low, middle, and high. It is a true and bell-like—perhaps colder than that of either Nordica or Melba, but as true and clear as either. She rendered the difficult aria from "Aida" in noble fashion, and as an encore, gave the "Spring Song" by Henschel, its birdlike features being charmingly done. Two other numbers, "The Elegy" by Massenet, and the Bach song "Mein Glaubiges Herz," both given with calm and refinement, were exquisite gems, and her recall had to be yielded. The grand number of the night, Eames' appearance with the choir in the familiar "Inflammatus" from Stabat Mater, was a magnificent achievement on the part of the soloist, choir, and the accompanist. She sang in this with beautiful effect throughout, and the highest praise that could be rendered her is that the single respect in which she fell short of Nordica was in the tremendous volume of tone that the latter poured forth on the high "ce" which is sustained several times against the entire strength of the accompaniment. But for the fact that this was the closing number, and that it was somewhat late when the program ended, it would surely have been tumultuously encored.

The artists in support of the singer were as much of a surprise as the singer was a delight. It is not too much to say that no single star that ever appeared in the Tubernacle has presented such a list of assisting artists. The cellist Holman is a master. In appearance he looked as though he might have stepped out of the time of one of those distinguished groups of musicians made up of Liszt, Wagner, Schumann, etc., and he had no sooner fingered his instrument than he showed that he was the rarest sort of artist. His most beautiful playing was the Chopin Nocturne given as an encore. It has been heard many times in Salt Lake, but certainly never with the depth of feeling that Holman conveyed to it. He conveyed the audience to a whirlwind of emotion, and it was difficult for him to leave the platform after he once appeared. His accompaniment to Madam Eames' songs are equally excellent.

Another artist who swept the audience off their feet with enthusiasm was the baritone Mr. Gorgora. With a magnificent voice, a fine presence, and a magnetic temperament which projected the actor as well as the singer, he had not uttered half a dozen notes before his audience was enthralled, and at the conclusion of the performance to Pagliaro, a perfect uproar ensued and would not be still until he had responded with an encore. The selection was the "Forsaken Song" from "Carmen," and the opening strains of the prelude had no sooner been heard than the audience greeted it with a royal round of applause. In this number he was equally magnificent. His rarest achievement to the minds of the audience, however, was the old familiar ballad, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," the rendition of which was the acme of tenderness. Gorgora is an artist who could draw an audience, and entertain it, entirely by his own strength, and it is to be hoped we have not heard the last of him.

The pianist, Mr. Wheeler, did some fine work, both as accompanist and soloist, and had a big recall after the rendition of "Liebestod."

Too much praise cannot be accorded the local artists. Prof. McClellan played and Prof. Stephens sang and were determined to impress with the sense of the company they were in, and were determined to fitly hold up their end of the program. They did it in notable style. Prof. McClellan's prelude to "Liebestod" was a rare exhibition of the tremendous art at the beginning and the dainty at the close, and he was most heartily applauded. Mr. Stephens never had his singers under better control, and their delicate accompaniment to Eames in the "Inflammatus" was the best rendition they have ever given. In all the many times they have rendered that noble selection, they have faced it from the platform.

The receipts of the evening were something under $3,000, more than could have been anticipated when it is considered that Eames, in spite of her strength as an operatic star in the east, was only slightly known to the masses in the west.

The great singer had a beautiful reception as she emerged through the arch upon the gallery and took her place on the platform. Not only did the audience give her a grand salute, but the five hundred singers, in themselves an inspiring background, rose en masse to greet her, a mark of distinction which evidently pleased her to the utmost. Eames is a regal, queenly, and a beautiful woman, as well as a rare artist. Her voice is a brilliant soprano; its strength and quality well distributed through all the registers, low, middle, and high. It is a true and bell-like—perhaps colder than that of either Nordica or Melba, but as true and clear as either. She rendered the difficult aria from "Aida" in noble fashion, and as an encore, gave the "Spring Song" by Henschel, its birdlike features being charmingly done. Two other numbers, "The Elegy" by Massenet, and the Bach song "Mein Glaubiges Herz," both given with calm and refinement, were exquisite gems, and her recall had to be yielded. The grand number of the night, Eames' appearance with the choir in the familiar "Inflammatus" from Stabat Mater, was a magnificent achievement on the part of the soloist, choir, and the accompanist. She sang in this with beautiful effect throughout, and the highest praise that could be rendered her is that the single respect in which she fell short of Nordica was in the tremendous volume of tone that the latter poured forth on the high "ce" which is sustained several times against the entire strength of the accompaniment. But for the fact that this was the closing number, and that it was somewhat late when the program ended, it would surely have been tumultuously encored.

The artists in support of the singer were as much of a surprise as the singer was a delight. It is not too much to say that no single star that ever appeared in the Tubernacle has presented such a list of assisting artists. The cellist Holman is a master. In appearance he looked as though he might have stepped out of the time of one of those distinguished groups of musicians made up of Liszt, Wagner, Schumann, etc., and he had no sooner fingered his instrument than he showed that he was the rarest sort of artist. His most beautiful playing was the Chopin Nocturne given as an encore. It has been heard many times in Salt Lake, but certainly never with the depth of feeling that Holman conveyed to it. He conveyed the audience to a whirlwind of emotion, and it was difficult for him to leave the platform after he once appeared. His accompaniment to Madam Eames' songs are equally excellent.

Another artist who swept the audience off their feet with enthusiasm was the baritone Mr. Gorgora. With a magnificent voice, a fine presence, and a magnetic temperament which projected the actor as well as the singer, he had not uttered half a dozen notes before his audience was enthralled, and at the conclusion of the performance to Pagliaro, a perfect uproar ensued and would not be still until he had responded with an encore. The selection was the "Forsaken Song" from "Carmen," and the opening strains of the prelude had no sooner been heard than the audience greeted it with a royal round of applause. In this number he was equally magnificent. His rarest achievement to the minds of the audience, however, was the old familiar ballad, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," the rendition of which was the acme of tenderness. Gorgora is an artist who could draw an audience, and entertain it, entirely by his own strength, and it is to be hoped we have not heard the last of him.

The pianist, Mr. Wheeler, did some fine work, both as accompanist and soloist, and had a big recall after the rendition of "Liebestod."

Too much praise cannot be accorded the local artists. Prof. McClellan played and Prof. Stephens sang and were determined to impress with the sense of the company they were in, and were determined to fitly hold up their end of the program. They did it in notable style. Prof. McClellan's prelude to "Liebestod" was a rare exhibition of the tremendous art at the beginning and the dainty at the close, and he was most heartily applauded. Mr. Stephens never had his singers under better control, and their delicate accompaniment to Eames in the "Inflammatus" was the best rendition they have ever given. In all the many times they have rendered that noble selection, they have faced it from the platform.

The receipts of the evening were something under $3,000, more than could have been anticipated when it is considered that Eames, in spite of her strength as an operatic star in the east, was only slightly known to the masses in the west.

The great singer had a beautiful reception as she emerged through the arch upon the gallery and took her place on the platform. Not only did the audience give her a grand salute, but the five hundred singers, in themselves an inspiring background, rose en masse to greet her, a mark of distinction which evidently pleased her to the utmost. Eames is a regal, queenly, and a beautiful woman, as well as a rare artist. Her voice is a brilliant soprano; its strength and quality well distributed through all the registers, low, middle, and high. It is a true and bell-like—perhaps colder than that of either Nordica or Melba, but as true and clear as either. She rendered the difficult aria from "Aida" in noble fashion, and as an encore, gave the "Spring Song" by Henschel, its birdlike features being charmingly done. Two other numbers, "The Elegy" by Massenet, and the Bach song "Mein Glaubiges Herz," both given with calm and refinement, were exquisite gems, and her recall had to be yielded. The grand number of the night, Eames' appearance with the choir in the familiar "Inflammatus" from Stabat Mater, was a magnificent achievement on the part of the soloist, choir, and the accompanist. She sang in this with beautiful effect throughout, and the highest praise that could be rendered her is that the single respect in which she fell short of Nordica was in the tremendous volume of tone that the latter poured forth on the high "ce" which is sustained several times against the entire strength of the accompaniment. But for the fact that this was the closing number, and that it was somewhat late when the program ended, it would surely have been tumultuously encored.

The artists in support of the singer were as much of a surprise as the singer was a delight. It is not too much to say that no single star that ever appeared in the Tubernacle has presented such a list of assisting artists. The cellist Holman is a master. In appearance he looked as though he might have stepped out of the time of one of those distinguished groups of musicians made up of Liszt, Wagner, Schumann, etc., and he had no sooner fingered his instrument than he showed that he was the rarest sort of artist. His most beautiful playing was the Chopin Nocturne given as an encore. It has been heard many times in Salt Lake, but certainly never with the depth of feeling that Holman conveyed to it. He conveyed the audience to a whirlwind of emotion, and it was difficult for him to leave the platform after he once appeared. His accompaniment to Madam Eames' songs are equally excellent.

Another artist who swept the audience off their feet with enthusiasm was the baritone Mr. Gorgora. With a magnificent voice, a fine presence, and a magnetic temperament which projected the actor as well as the singer, he had not uttered half a dozen notes before his audience was enthralled, and at the conclusion of the performance to Pagliaro, a perfect uproar ensued and would not be still until he had responded with an encore. The selection was the "Forsaken Song" from "Carmen," and the opening strains of the prelude had no sooner been heard than the audience greeted it with a royal round of applause. In this number he was equally magnificent. His rarest achievement to the minds of the audience, however, was the old familiar ballad, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," the rendition of which was the acme of tenderness. Gorgora is an artist who could draw an audience, and entertain it, entirely by his own strength, and it is to be hoped we have not heard the last of him.

The pianist, Mr. Wheeler, did some fine work, both as accompanist and soloist, and had a big recall after the rendition of "Liebestod."

Too much praise cannot be accorded the local artists. Prof. McClellan played and Prof. Stephens sang and were determined to impress with the sense of the company they were in, and were determined to fitly hold up their end of the program. They did it in notable style. Prof. McClellan's prelude to "Liebestod" was a rare exhibition of the tremendous art at the beginning and the dainty at the close, and he was most heartily applauded. Mr. Stephens never had his singers under better control, and their delicate accompaniment to Eames in the "Inflammatus" was the best rendition they have ever given. In all the many times they have rendered that noble selection, they have faced it from the platform.

The receipts of the evening were something under $3,000, more than could have been anticipated when it is considered that Eames, in spite of her strength as an operatic star in the east, was only slightly known to the masses in the west.

THE POWER BEHIND PE-RU-NA.

WILL CURE YOU PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH OF THE HEAD, THROAT, LUNGS, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BLADDER AND PELVIC ORGANS.

STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

IN FAMILY USE OVER 30 YEARS.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

THE PRIZE OF TWO MILLION HOMES IS A STRONG WALL OF DEFENSE FOR PE-RU-NA AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.