> Meat marketmen say that Utah farm ers and ranchmen have turned then attention more than ever before growing turkeys and other poultry for the Thanksgiving and holiday market The result is that there will be less im portation from eastern growers, and money hitherto sent out of the state will be kept at home. One Market row dealer has ordered 500 turkeys for the Christmas market from entirely Utah sources, and other dealers are following suit. This is making it unpleasant for the express companies, and one express official said this morning. "It is quite different, this getting one dollar for 300 pounds of poultry from Sanpete valley, from $3 per hundred from Kansas growers. Our receipts at present are $50 per day less than they were a year ago at this time, although this it not entirely due to the failing off in the foreign poultry shipments."
