Moyle, Nelden, Critchlow and Colton in a Mix-up—Mrs. Horne and Her Resolution the Inciting Cause—The Lie Passes—Statements From the Members Themselves.

[illegible] members of the board of education held a double session [illegible] last night. They were called together for the consideration of matters relating to the public schools. There were present: Messrs. Colton, Moyle, Critchlow and Nelden. The meeting was for the purpose of considering the resolutions introduced by Mrs. Alice M. Horne, requesting the board to employ only competent teachers in the public schools, and to employ none having membership in the Church of the Latter-day Saints, in preference to competent teachers of other faiths. The resolutions of Mrs. Horne had been read in open meeting and were accompanied by an address. It was regarded by many present as a personal attack upon Mr. Moyle, and was so considered by him. Mrs. Horne was asked to supply the names of the teachers whom she charged with being unfit to teach in the public schools, and was alleged in her resolutions to be a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints. She declined to do so, and in addition to the charges made by Mrs. Horne in her resolutions, she made a personal attack upon Mr. Moyle, charging him with being a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints, and with using his influence as a member of the board of education in favor of members of that Church. Mr. Moyle denied the charge, and declared that he was not a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints, and that he had never been a member of that Church. He declared that he had never used his influence as a member of the board of education in favor of members of the Church of the Latter-day Saints, and that he had never employed a teacher because he was a member of that Church. He declared that he had never refused employment to a teacher because he was not a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints. He declared that he had never used his influence as a member of the board of education to prevent the employment of a teacher because he was not a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints. He declared that he had never used his influence as a member of the board of education to prevent the employment of a teacher because he was not a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints. He declared that he had never used his influence as a member of the board of education to prevent the employment of a teacher because he was not a member of the Church of the Latter-day Saints.
