

SPORTS AND DRAMATIC

Stories of The Stage.

From exhibiting a midday in London 15 years ago to owning four theaters that are attended by nearly 15,000 people daily tell the story of the rise of R. P. Keith, American vaudeville king. Keith was the organizer of the continuous performances, and standing room is at a premium in his Philadelphia, New York, Providence and Boston houses even at 4 p. m. for as Keith assumes that players like Harry Houdini, Tim Murphy, Clara Morris, etc., appeared in vaudeville, Keith has actually elevated the vaudeville stage until it is now, for all circumstances concerned, on a par with the legitimate. Every act given in the audience. The good work of Keith has spread to all parts of the country. At his Boston house members of the Boston Symphony orchestra play during the summer.

Mr. Henry Irving declared that Keith's Boston theater is the finest in the world. It was built at a cost of over $1,000,000 and is one of the sights of Boston.

Keith is liberal as to salaries for his players. His general salary for R. P. Keith, receiving $10,000 a year. This sum comprises the programs in the theaters, and he advertises for himself in the newspapers. Keith was paid for the latest play in vaudeville, and Keith declares that Keith has no equal. People who know Keith 15 years ago say he is as much and unquenchable as ever. He has been in the business for 15 years.

Stewart W. Presbury became identified with the dramatic profession in a peculiar way. He is the author of "The Success of the Play," a book which has been a success since it was first published. A. M. Palmer was in the lead of the success at the Madison Square theater in New York. He was the first to play in the manner in which he played, that he presented new plays, and he was about to get ready for a new play for presentation, and he had a very successful one.

Mr. Presbury was willing, but he did not think the manager could make it worth his while. He did not, and then the artist had played one of the biggest successes the stage has ever known. Mr. Presbury's play, "A Fool of Fortune," was a success. Mr. Presbury was the author of the play, and he was the first to play it. He was the first to play it, and he was the first to play it.

One of the plays presented in these days was entitled "The Jewels of the East." The play was a success, and it was a success. The play was a success, and it was a success. The play was a success, and it was a success.

La Guerrero, who is to play at the tenacious theater in Paris in the future, is called "The Spanish Heroine." The play is a success, and it is a success. The play is a success, and it is a success. The play is a success, and it is a success.

TENNIS OUTLOOK

A British Team May Cross the Ocean to Meet the American Experts. Racket Chat.

Some weeks ago H. B. Mahoney, the ex-champion tennis player of England, wrote to Larned, the American expert, inviting the four American club players—H. D. Wrenn, W. A. Larned, G. L. Wrenn, Jr., and M. D. Whitman—to play in the English tournaments the coming season and participate in the growing event in the tennis world there, the all England tennis championship at Wimbledon late next month.

Two of them, H. D. Wrenn, the present champion of the United States, and Whitman, accepted the invitation, but owing to later developments it is doubtful whether any Americans will cross the water this year or at any rate will late in the season. It is now thought that a team of English and Irish players will instead come over here and compete with our men again this summer.

There were only a very few players even among our experts who thought that it was possible to prevent the championship trophy from going across the water last fall in the keeping of one of the Englishmen who came over to this extreme purpose. But when H. D. Wrenn for the second time won out against the English winner of the all comers' the first in congratulating him were the visitors. The Englishman accepted the defeat on that occasion in a thoroughly sportsmanlike manner and was not pleased with the result, but he immediately suggested a plan for friendly contests to be held alternately in England and the United States.

It can be easily understood how these international meets attract widespread attention and interest among all classes to the game, while hundreds who would otherwise take little stock in tennis through the courts to see the championship contests. Moreover, the sport itself is improved for scientific reasons. In the past tournaments have been held in the past tennis has received a direct boost, and better play has resulted.

In 1901 Dr. Dwight, H. D. Sears and the Clarke made the rounds of the English tournaments, and Dr. Dwight secured tenth rank for that year. In 1902 Campbell, then American champion, played in the English tournaments, but without much success. That year a round robin affair between Tim and Mahoney, English champions for 1901 and 1902, and the Americans, Hovey, Larned, Richard and Chene, did much for the American game. In singles the Englishmen lost but one match, that of Mahoney to Hovey, but in doubles Hovey and Mahoney easily defeated the Englishmen. The previous summer an English player, Arthur Chubb, came near causing an epidemic of heart disease among our enthusiasts by almost winning the all comers' only losing in the final to Bob Wrenn.

In 1904 Larned told his luck in England and did not disappoint his admirers, for he was awarded sixth place by the English authorities.

The three Englishmen—Nicholls, Hovey and Mahoney—who came over last year are beyond question on an equality with any in the world. The style of play of the representatives of the two countries is entirely different, and it is a very difficult matter to judge with which party the advantage lies. The play of the Americans is, as a rule, characterized by dash and brilliancy, which, while very pretty to watch and oftentimes effective, is in the main wanting in the power, speed and endurance of the English. The English players, on the other hand, are more conservative, but they are more powerful, and they are more enduring. The English players are more powerful, and they are more enduring. The English players are more powerful, and they are more enduring.

COLLEGE ROWING

The Yale-Harvard-Cornell Middle-Second Test of the Three Representative Strokes.

A rate comparison of difficulties has been made by the three representative strokes of the three colleges. The rate of the three colleges is as follows: Yale, 100; Harvard, 100; Cornell, 100.

showing material for the prospective champion college crew of America. Yale has never had so many experienced rowers as it has now. The crew of six veterans of former years only two are now rowing in the first varsity boat, Captain Whitney and Allen. Six members of last year's crew, including the coxswain, are now rowing in the second varsity boat. service. But, he has gone into Battery A, and he has given up rowing. Besides these Jones, Thomson, 1900, was obliged to stop rowing by reason of a serious internal strain, and M. D. Wrenn left the crew on account of ill health. The loss of five men, including Captain Goodrich, from the varsity crew is sure to prove serious to the crew and has made a gloom over rowing in Cambridge.

Notwithstanding these setbacks R. C. Lehman, the noted English coach, is industriously hammering away at the material at his disposal in the endeavor to turn out a winning crew. About 10 men will be taken to New London for the first week in June, but as announced earlier in the season, the final make-up of the varsity boat will be determined only a day or so before the race.
