PRANKS AT SCHOOL.

All Fool's Day the Cause of Mischief At the University.

All Fool's day was celebrated in rath er an hilarious manner at the state university, where a number of boys took it into their heads to play pranks on their instructors. The first instance of the kind was carried out by the third year normals and second year preparatory, who locked Dr. Parsons, the instructor in physics, out of his room. The doctor, after trying hard to gain entrance conceived the idea of climbing up to the transom, by which means he discovered the cause of the bolted door. Needless to say, the boys let him in shortly after, but not soon enough to avoid their be ing reported to the president. The dis-cipline committee later took the matter in hand and it is probable that sus-pensions may follow as a result. In the Museum building Instructor

Fox, teacher of English, was locked in with his class and as the room in
