There appears a disposition on the part of the general legislature to elect the municipal election in this State to the same time as that at which the general elections are held. If this step be taken it may be found that the conservative sentiment of the citizens in municipalities is decidedly opposed to such policy, at least until the existing law receives a full test. The act of legislature in this case is to be construed as a political party measure, passed as a law intended to remove, so far as practicable, municipal elections from those of a more general character to which party questions or national matters have more or less influence. The purpose of this was to give the voters a greater amount of liberty in their choice of municipal officers than is possible where such choice is burdened with general questions that involve state or national issues that do not enter into municipal politics. The law thus enacted has not had opportunity to be tested in practical operation as yet, since the first election under it would come next year.

THE CZECH EXPOSITION.

Reports concerning the serious illness of the czar continue to circulate in Europe. In a recent Berlin dispatch it is pointed out that the official reports are of similar character as those sent out announcing Alexander, when he was on his last journey. Then people were informed first that he was suffering from influenza; then from the effect of pneumonia; then from heart trouble; from gastritis; from kidney trouble; from nervous prostration, from cancer of the stomach; and so on to death. It is about the same now. Czar Nicholas is said to be in the vicinity of Warsaw, the next day of weakness of the lungs, the next of epilepsy, of tumor of the neck, of inflammation of the ear, of leucorrhoea resulting from the head-wound inflicted by the Japanese assassin, of metastasis, and of a general debility of the whole system. Those who claim to be well informed believe that the young emperor who only recently dined at the White House with the brilliancy of his coronation ceremonies already is doomed. They think he is about to pay for the honor of being emperor with his life. The burden of work and responsibility was too heavy for his constitution. The first symptoms of breaking down, it is stated, appeared in the form of kidney troubles. Then came the signs of general weakness—violent vomiting after slight meals, complete exhaustion and weakness as a consequence of trivial exertions. It was then claimed that a brain disease had set in, the expansion of which is lost a tumorous growth has appeared on the inside of the cerebral pressing against the brain. In consequence of this condition the czar's health has been completely broken up and he is unable to perform the duties of his office. He is said to be in the real executive power in Russia.

THE CLOSED LECTURE.

The last of the series of four lectures given this week by Madame Von Finkelschtein (Wednesday) evening, instead of the earlier hour at which the others were commenced. It will begin at 8:30 instead of the earlier hour at which the others were commenced. The reason for this is the M. L. A. lectures by Roger C. W. Penrose, in the Assembly Hall, Elder Penrose's address will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock and it is thought not probable that he will be able to attend both of the M. L. A. lectures and then return to the Taborian, adjoining the Assembly Hall, to take up his 8:30 lecture. The address of Madame Von Finkelschtein, Mountair's interesting address.

This evening's Palestine lecture will be an Patriarchal Life in the Holy Land, and is one of the most interesting addresses presented by the gifted lady. Her descriptions of country and city life, in the Monday and Tuesday lectures, were far excellent, even those who need the severe snow storm last evening looking thoroughly repossessed for their return. And all who can do should listen to this evening's address. We understand that the lady will visit other cities in the State, with a series of lectures presented here, and to the residence of those places. The News heartily commends her, as returning before her audience the subject matter of her discourse is an important matter that those interested in the Holy Land should feel to avail themselves of.

PRESIDENTIAL BURIAL.

The claims that have been advanced by the statement of a board of health officer that he was almost of the belief that in nearly five per cent of human burials there is still life in the subject, and the announcement that some one in Vienna has discovered a new kind of life, which will furnish a powerful argument, whether death is a true or a false state, have been given in the last number of the Medical Record. That journal takes a decided stand against the assertion of Mr. Keane, about the possibility of many persons being buried before actual death has taken place, and says:

Although in appointments he sees with the consent of the council.

(2) That municipal councils should be composed of but one house, the double-house system being antiquated.

It is in our opinion that the best municipal system is the one in which the council is elected by the people, and the executive is elected by the council.

CITY TREASURER'S BOND.

The City Council at its Tuesday evening meeting adopted the following resolution: Resolved, That the City Treasurer be authorized to issue bonds for the purpose of raising money for the city.

SHEEP AND LICENSES.

The legislature of Wyoming as well as those of Utah are being asked to institute a license system for the sheep business. The law now before the legislative body at Cheyenne provides for the following license:

THE BRITISH ARMY.

The British Government formerly brought the coffee intended for the army direct from the coffee plantations in Java and the term "Old Java's" is familiar to all. Mr. J. H. Hannon, now manager of the great United Coffee Co., of Chicago, was located in Java for about ten years, producing coffee for the British army and he has the ability to judge of the quality and flavor of coffee will have the pleasure of being able to supply the British army.
