Haywood was first questioned as to his family history. He said his father and stepfather were both miners and he first began work as a miner under the latter. Haywood was born in Salt Lake City in 1869. His father was born in Ohlo and his mother in South Africa—the daughter of an English army officer. Haywood said he first went to work at the mines when he was 9 years old. He was mar-ried at Pocatello, Ida, and has two chil-dren—daughters. Tokio, July 11.—The massing of the American fleet in the Pacific about which the American papers have ap-pealed to Marquis Itô for an opinion, is semi-officially discussed by Itô's ad-ministration organ today. The paper says: "We cannot help feeling some misgiving with regard to the signifi-cance of the intended massing of American battleshins in the Pacific, es-pecially in view of the grandlose an-nouncement attributed to President Roosevelt to the effect that the navy would furnish the world with a startl-ing demonstration of America's de-fensive capacity. It is difficult for us to accept the assurance that the com-ing maneuvers do not possess any con-nection whatever with the Japanese-American situation. We regret that Washington thinks it necessary to take what resembles a precautionary meas-ure. He said an engraver in the employ of the United States government many years ago told him the secret of detec-tion. Mr. Dash said the engraver told him there was one portion of a bill which even expert counterfeiters could not accurately reproduce. This part was the border. The engraver said the reason for this was because the bor-der was done by machinery and was always true, whereas in counterfeit work the border had to be done. by hand and was, of course, not as cor-rect as the original bill. "It was not long after the engraver told me this," said Mr. Dash, "before a man came into my place of business and presented a $20 bill. At first glance the bill looked all right, but remember-ing what the engraver had told me about the border, I examined the bill closer and saw the border was not per-fect. The bank took the bill, but the next morning a runner brought it back marked 'N. He had sat in judgment on the lowest of men in their least attractive cir-cumstances, dissecting diseased char-acter, probing vicious motives.
