Members of House Say They Can Not Live on Present Stipend.

FIVE THOUSAND NOT ENOUGH.

while in Sympathy With Gallinger's Bill. Many Will Decline to Vote On it When Time Comes.

Special Correspondence. Washington, March 12 .- Should they vote their convictions, no doubt a large majority in both houses of Congress would support Senator Gallinger's bill for an increase of salaries all along the But they are not likely to so vote. Nearly every man will say that a salary of $5,000 is not sufficient to enable him to live in Washington save in the most modest way. They cannot live at first class hotels unless they have other sources of income. The vast majority class hotels unless they have a majority sources of income. The vast majority live in a quiet manner in small houses, second class hotels and in boarding houses. The few who have large houses and live at the best hotels are in the millionaire class. Notwithstanding these facts they hesitate to vote themselves facts they hesitate to vote themselves reased salaries.

MIGHT HAVE PASSED LAST WIN-TER.

Had the matter been pressed in the last session of Congress it might have passed. The increase would then have applied to the present administration passion of the present administration applied to the present administration and the present Congress, but the sug-gestion was made only a short time be-fore the Congress expired, too late for any consideration. Under Senator Gal-linger's bill the increased salaries would not affect officers of the present admin-istration or the next Congress. Perhaps consideration may be given to increased salaries in the short session of Congress next winter.

next winter. This question of salaries recatls a This question of salaries recails a rory of a western senator who thought the best hotel in this city would suit him, and when he looked at the rooms pecessary for his comfort the clerk said they would cost $400 a month, which did not include meals. After a long wait the clerk asked if they would be attignetory.

iong wait the clerk asked if the work be satisfactory. "I must do some figuring," replied the western man. "I must find out if the remaining $16.63.2-3 cents of my monthly salary will pay car fare and ncidentals.

SUGAR AND STARCH

Please the Palate; But Sometimes Play Hob With Digestion.

Sugar and starch, as found in ordi-nary food are intended to supply energy and strength, keep up steam to drive the human machine, and this they do if operly digested. But when the digestive apparatus has had too much work crowded upon it, or when it becomes weakened from any cause, the food decays( there is no other word so expressive) in the stomach and intestines, and not only pro duces gas to distend the stomach and crowd and weaken the heart, but proand motes other disease conditions which develop into serious liver, stomach and sometimes heart trouble.

It is important that the food present the sugar and starch to the stomach in such form that they may be readily digested and pass to the nerves and blood to energize the machine without over taking the organs. Grape-Nuts food does this perfectly. It is prepared by mechanical (not chem-ical) processes, similar to those through which food passes in the healthy human
