was sung by the students. The words and music were those of the song of the University of Michigan, Prof. McClellan's alms mater, and the song was given in honor of that school, whose colors are the same as those of the college. No song for the college has, as yet, been written, Elder John Nicholson, delivered the commencent address, He spoke ou the subject of the founding of the Church schools in Utah, paying a tribute of praise to Brigham Young, Karl G. Masser and others as educators and teachers. Time did not permit of extended mention of Horace S. Eldredge, Edward Stevenson and others who had contributed to the financial support of the institution. He commended the heard on the complete education given in the college, because of its comprehensiveness and its efficiency in fitting young people for the duties they now to God. After paying an eloquent tribute to the boards of education and the college frouity, he closed with the words, "It is customary for speakers on occasions like this to direct the attention of the students to the magnitude of the field which is open to the exercise of their powers. In this regard it may aid each of you to keep in mind certain truths that are of surpassing grandeur.
