WIRED FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, 17.—The United States steamers Tallapoosa and Ewing, and the steamboat George Leary, to-day conveyed members of the Society of the Army of the Potomac and a number of invited guests to Mount Vernon. To-night a grand banquet will be given the Society.

At the banquet the following toast was given: "The Army of the Potomac," to which Gen. McClellan was to respond. As the name of their commander was announced, and he rose to address them, the veterans sprang on chairs and broke into cheer after cheer. For two or three minutes the clamor was deafening. Men pounded the tables, stamped with their feet, and shouted themselves hoarse, and the space from the gallery to the banqueting room was a surging sea of heads and arms, napkins and hats, and even crutches, with which the owners gesticulated in their enthusiasm and excitement. Gen. McClellan stood calmly bowing during the tumult, and when it showed signs of lessening, stilled it entirely with a wave of his hand. In a voice of deep feeling, and speaking in a measured tone, he began his greeting to his old command. Every voice was hushed; he said: "In days long past and gone forever, when we were young and strong, full of life and hope, with the future all before us, there were such relations between us that it seems to me too cold and formal to address you simply as 'Mr. Chairman' or 'Gentlemen.' Your chairman often brought to me intelligence that I needed up from the jaws of death, and when assigned to the command of a division of new troops he hurried by forced marches to the assistance of his commander on the bloody field of Antietam. There can be no form or ceremony between him and myself. Very many, perhaps most of you, were with me when in this very city I assumed the command of that mass of brave men, unorganized and uninstructed, who composed the nucleus of what afterwards became the Army of the Potomac. Those of you who were with me then were more than brothers in arms; you were my very children." This was McClellan's opening, and in this strain he proceeded to the close. He spoke of the "trying times in which you and I did our best for our country," and recalled the well loved and familiar faces which all missed from their ranks. He said, "I see now this city the capital of this Nation, as it was when I came here from Western Virginia, full of disorganized troops, in imminent danger of attack. I see order and quiet restored as if by magic when you at once responded to my appeal and seconded my endeavor. I remember well the mass of raw troops pouring in badly armed and improperly equipped, but composed of the best men that ever responded to an appeal to arms, actuated by the highest and finest motives of patriotism, discussing no partisan questions, knowing but one thing that the country was in danger, and that they were ready to give their lives to save it. I saw an army come out of that mass; I saw it acquiring order discipline and instructions. Then followed that tedious and "unnecessary" work of fortifications on the capital, a work which set the army free to strike where its blows would be felt, and which more than once saved the capital. I saw that army become capable of being handled in march and under fire, and leave the camps in which it had been created to go to the Peninsula. Those you stood by me and I stood by you, and I do not forget how nobly you passed through your first experience of battle." He sketched at this point some of the principal battles, and alluded to the seven days' fight as made in obedience to orders from Washington, to cover the advance of reinforcements which never came, though the enemy came in sight. "Fortunately," he continued, "this had been foreseen, and days before transports with supplies had been sent to the James to await the army." He then spoke of the gallantry with which the army fought when removed from his command, and the glad welcome with which it welcomed his return at the battle of Antietam; of his withdrawal from the Army of the Potomac, on what he then believed and still believes, was the eve of a decisive battle, never to meet that army again as commander. Continuing, he said, "The army which it was my fortune to organize and create, the army that became the army of veterans, I as its earliest and only living commander, am glad to know was unsurpassed by any of the historic armies of the world, in efficiency, valor or achievement."

The remaining toasts were responded to as follows: "The Loyal Legion," Gen. Robt. C. Schenck; "Grand Army of the Republic," Gen. W. W. Dudley; "Sweethearts and Wives," Chas. Dudley Warner; "The Volunteers," Gen. Fracis A. Walker; "The Press," Capt. Bromley, of the New York Tribune. The speaking was not concluded until after 1 a.m.

Judge McFarland, Commissioner of the General Land Office, will leave Washington to-morrow for Beatrice, Nebraska, where he will represent the Government at the sale of the Otoe Indian reservation.

The Secretary of the Interior delivered an opinion upon the question submitted by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, regarding the propriety of withdrawing from entry and settlement odd sections of land within the indemnity limits of the Northern Pacific railroad. The Commissioner was of the opinion that recent decisions by the Secretary had tended to reverse the usual practice of the Land Office in such cases, namely to withdraw the lands comprised within the granted and indemnity limits upon the filing of the maps of definite location.

The Secretary says: "I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that vast areas of land, public but for the right of selection lying within indemnity limits, are barred to settlement; and that the area of arable lands open to settlement is not great when compared with the increasing demand, and is rapidly diminishing. If the company neglects to make its selections, and takes advantage of withdrawals heretofore made or that may be made hereafter, to withhold lands within the indemnity limit from the operation of the settlement laws, not actually needed to make good losses they have sustained, it will be the duty of the Department to revoke such order of withdrawal." In reply to your suggestion whether the "withdrawal of the indemnity limits of this grant was to stand so far as made," I have to say that I am of the opinion that upon filing maps of approved definite location, withdrawals of lands within the indemnity limits should be made by you to the extent of the first indemnity limits. Such action will be in accordance with the practice heretofore pursued by your office in reference to withdrawals.

Owing to the illness of Juror Geo. B. Sheriff, no progress was made in the Star route trial to-day.

The Northern Pacific.

HELENA, M. T., 17.—The Northern Pacific Railroad Company have purchased over 500 acres of land at Helena for depot grounds. A large amount of land will be set apart for side tracks, depots, machine shops, lumber yards, warehouses, etc., and and the remainder will be divided into town lots. Among other improvements proposed by the railroad company is a $100,000 hotel. The location selected for the depot is very satisfactory to this community, and has given renewed impetus to building operations. Many expensive business houses are being erected. The end of the track is to-day 37 miles east of Helena, and is advancing at the rate of nearly two miles per day. Immigration to Montana is very large, and it is probable that the increase of population for the year will aggregate 30,000 to 40,000. The new settlers are coming in by the Northern Pacific, both from the east and the Pacific coast. Helena, which is the commercial, financial and political centre of the Territory, will probably double her population within the next year.

Death and Disaster.

Denver, 17.—Stockbridge & Ellwell, brewers, at Colorado City, were closed on mortgage.

Detroit, 17.—The private bank of Eugene Angel, at Lansing, closed its doors yesterday, there being a run upon it, amid considerable excitement. It is stated that the late city treasurer, C. B. Wood, is short in his accounts, and that the troubles of the bank have some connection with him, growing out of an endeavor to tide him over his troubles. The exact facts seem to be yet unknown. Many rumors are afloat concerning both bank and treasurer.

New York, 17.—Alice Zimmerman, the young and cultured wife of Frank Zimmerman, artist, killed her twelve day's old daughter and attempted to kill her mother. Some days before confinement she took an aversion to her husband, mother and friends, and when the baby was born she declared she hated it. To-day she induced her mother to leave the room and then plunged the scissors into the infant's neck. She immediately attacked her mother, but was overpowered. She will be sent to an asylum.

The Catalogue of Crime.

JACKSON, Miss., 17.—Henry Fleming was hanged yesterday in Pittsboro, Calhoun County, for a murder committed two years ago. An immense crowd witnessed the execution. Fleming was cool and self possessed; when at the gallows he attempted to kill himself with a small pocket knife. The inflicted wound in the throat was not fatal. His neck was broken by the fall, and the death struggle lasted but an instant.

New Brunswick, N. Y., 17.—Levi D. Jarrard, postmaster and ex-county collector, is missing. He is short over $10,000 in county accounts. His bondsmen are uneasy. A Government special agent is sent for to take charge of the postoffice now in the hands of the bondsmen Jarrard is supposed to be in Canada.

Chicago, 17.—A pretty and intelligent young woman giving the name of Kitty Mitchell, and said by the police to be a daughter of a member of the New York Legislature, was arrested this afternoon for shoplifting. Her plan, as she confessed, was to steal articles and soon bring them to the store from which she got them and get their value in money, stating she bought them, but had decided they were not what she wanted. The victimized merchants could not refuse the goods, as she always retained and showed the price tags.

Chicago, 17.—The executive committee of the Cigar Maker's Union, yesterday afternoon heard the testimony of six young girls employed by one Behrman, on Kensie Street. It was shown they worked from six in the morning to nine at night, and three nights each week till 11 p.m., making bunches of cigars. The majority receive $3 per week, and in order to make a profit off this scanty pittance he charges them every minute lost time. When the health inspector visits the place the proprietor manages to secrete children under age employed. Other tyrannical practices are alleged, and it is claimed the place is only a type of others in the city.

Paterson, N. J., 17.—There was a mass meeting of silk operatives to night to consider whether to order a strike or only resist further reduction of wages. A resolution was passed against a reduction, but before the meeting could go any further a communistic crowd broke it up with great noise and threats of violence to the executive committee of the Silk Growers' Friendly and Protective Union in the United States, this committee having taken a firm stand against communism.

Victoria, B.C. 17.—Accounts from the mainland state that the conduct of the men who attacked the Chinese was cowardly and brutal. White men who had an altercation with the Chinese beat them off with picks. At night, when the Chinese were in bed, their camp was attacked by a crowd of white men, armed with clubs, who struck down the Chinese as they rushed out of their cabins in the dark. Nine were left on the ground for dead. The mob set fire to the houses, and decamped. As the white men left, some Chinese hastened back to the camp, and tried to put out the fire, but there being no water, everything burned up. Pic Fook died in the morning. The Chinese sent to Lyton for hostages to bring the murdered man and wounded to town. There being no white doctor willing to assist the Chinese, a Chinese doctor from Yale attended them. He says three more of the wounded will die. Nine Chinese had frightful wounds about the head; in one case the brain was oozing. The coroner found it impossible to procure a medical examination of the murdered men.

He characterizes Errington, who has been the medium of communication between Great Britian and the Vatican, as a sneak and renegade, and says the attention of the Vatican should be called to the crimes fostered by England's enforcement of its infamous code.
