

Jenson's Travels.

Thursday, December 29, 1895. A forenoon prayer by the Elders of Zion was made the recipients of another portion of the world in which the child Jesus has been a prominent part and gave us less gazing, gazing. He expressed his entire satisfaction and enforcement of all we had done in his village, and advised the Lord to bless us in our future labors. He also exhorted all his people who were members of the Mormon Church to be strong in the hills, this and come home to their occupations, and company in their flocks like the children of men were troubling them, the principles of truth and salvation. "So far he can be right and become a member, but he considered himself a wicked man, who perhaps could not fit the life of a saint." In referring to the religious questions which had been asked and answered during the conference, he had learned that, the Mormon Elders were prepared to answer any question concerning the Gospel which might be propounded; but that when such questions were put to the Council of England ministers, they, as a rule were silent in the task of giving satisfactory explanations. After breakfast the chief had two vehicles prepared to take Elder Gardner and myself to the railway station at Greytown, and after jumping with about one hundred horses and exchanged words of love and greeting, we bid Fagan good-bye, to continue our labor elsewhere. Eddie Gardner rode by the side of the chief in his carriage, and I followed in the next vehicle. At Greytown, two miles from Paparoa, we boarded the train at 12 m., and rode three miles to Woodside, where we changed cars and rode sixteen miles to Masterton, a town of about 1,000 inhabitants, where we intended to come luncheon and dinner, ride to the coast, and return. Another meeting was held with the Elders and friends have at a time lost of the time in the afternoon. We were successful in obtaining a small amount of money and information on various historical facts and information on church history, and took the name of the meeting house, the name of the church, and retaining my photo mount on me. In the evening I left that same day to New Zealand, where I have traveled many miles, mostly by boat, and by rail, and by road, and by mountain paths, in search of a place to go to school and for small birds.
