

passing state in which they allege they found the accounts of U. S. Marshal Maxwell. Herewith we give the text of the jury report, as it appears in the Herald of this morning—

BEAVER, 13.—Following is the text of the report of the grand jury, who have been investigating the accounts of the United States Marshal:

To His Honor Jacob S. Boreman, Judge of the Second District Court in and for the Territory of Utah:

We, the grand jury, empanelled for the December term of the Second District court, in pursuance to your honor's instructions to investigate and inquire into all matters pertaining to the books, documents and official records of public officers, after a thorough examination of the United States Marshal's books and duplicates of accounts rendered, and now on file in the clerk's office of the Second District court, respectfully submit, as the result of our labors, the following statement and report:

We find the United States credited by a draft on the United States Treasurer, dated July 8th, 1875, $13,209.00, by an act of Congress approved March 3d, 1875. The above sum or draft was drawn for the purpose of defraying the Territorial expenses in the Second District Court of this Territory. We find the following accounts current rendered by the United States marshal for the July term, 1875:

To compensation for petit jurors, $736.

To compensation of witnesses, $2,192.10.

To compensation of marshal, $2,536.76.

To expenses of supply to prisoners, $1,929.25.

To audited expenses of court, 1,043.85.

To marshal's commission on disbursements exclusive of abstract No. 4, $118.02.

Total, $8,556.18.

The account current for the September term of the court presents the following total of expenses, $1,514.37. The figures show that there is still a balance due to the United States, by taking these accounts on their faces, of $3,129.45. We have examined witnesses and jurors whose names appear on the jury rolls for the July and September terms of the court, and so far as our examination goes we find that none of them, witnesses or jurors, coming before us, have received any pay or compensation whatever for services rendered, and attendance on the said court during the July and September court terms, for their time and services so rendered on the part of the Territory, and for territorial business.

We have also examined officers of the court and guards to prisoners, and they also testify that they have received no pay or compensation for such territorial business, although we find the vouchers show receipts in full for such pay to the United States Marshal. The means and time are not at our command to further examine witnesses and jurors in relation to the compensation of any they have received from the United States Marshal, but from the uniform and corroborating testimony of those who were brought before us in person, we seriously infer that others who have not been examined would report a like state of facts in their respective cases, and if such be the case we are forced to the conclusion that very little of the $13,200 appropriated to the Second District Court, by the act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1875, has been used and expended for the purpose for which it was given.

We find in our examination of the books of Deputy Marshal Stokes that they are regular and correct, showing the records of all sums paid to him, and disbursements of the same. We will pursue our investigations and examinations of the accounts and documents of public officers more diligently at some other time, but at this sitting we are necessitated to stop with this report.

We would further ask leave to speak of the impossibility of running and upholding the dignity of the court so long as the deplorable state of things continues, of all and every one complaining that they can get no pay or compensation for their time and services in attending on this court. The Second District is about flooded with worthless certificates in the hands of jurors, witnesses and officers, on which they cannot get a cent. Such a state of affairs is very much to be deprecated, and should be checked at the very earliest season. If it continues we must apprehend that it will be impossible for our court to run; that crime and criminals will go unwhipped of justice, and the dignity of the law remain and continue unvindicated.

We, the undersigned, members of the grand jury for the December term, 1875, of the Second District Court, recommend that the above report be published in the Salt Lake Tribune and Beaver Enterprise.

NEW MUSIC.

Gathering Shells From the Seashore, song and chorus, composed and published by W. L. Thompson, East Liverpool, O.

Critics have pronounced this to be one of the most beautiful compositions of its kind that has appeared for many a day. It has real claims upon the attention of the musical, being a gem of rare pathos and beauty. Its popularity is deservedly great, and although it has but very recently reached this city, one hundred and twenty copies have already been sold at the music store of Calder and Careless.

"Our Little Darling's Grave," published by H. S. Stedman, Indianapolis, also pronounced one of the sweetest songs of the day.

"There is Sorrow in Parting," song and chorus, words by W. C. Baker, music by C. F. Shattuck. Published by C. H. Ditson & Co., Broadway, N. Y.

"Wait till the Moonlight Falls on the Water," ballad, words and music by S. Bagnall, published by O. Ditson, Boston.

"I Fear Those Beaming Eyes," ballad, by Howard Glover; published by C. H. Ditson, N. Y.

"My Darling under the Vine's cool Shade," serenade, by A. Conrad; published by O. Ditson & Co., Boston.

Ave Maria, composed by L. Alibites; published by Ditson & Co., N. Y.

Captain Folsom's March, composed by D. W. Reeves; published by Ditson & Co., Boston.

Rameaux (Palm Branches), sacred, composed by J. Faure; published by O. Ditson & Co.

Rakoczy March, for six hands, by F. W. Kretschmar; published by O. Ditson & Co., Boston.

All of the above can be purchased at the music store of Calder & Careless, East Temple St., Salt Lake City.

NEW BOOKS.

The Human Voice, its anatomy, physiology, pathology, therapeutics and training, with rules of order for lyceums, by R. T. Trall, M. D.

In his preface the author says the object of this little work is to present the facts and principles applicable to the culture of the human voice, and to furnish all who desire to read and speak well, and have to rely mainly on self-education, with a plain and intelligible guide in theory and practice. For sale at Dwyer's.

Tales of the Argonauts, by Bret Harte, including "The Rose of Tuolumne," "A Passage in the life of Mr. John Oakhurst," "Wan Lee, the Pagan," "How Old Man Plunkett Went Home," "The Fool of Five Forks," "Baby Sylvester," "An Episode of Tiddle Town," and "A Jersey Centenarian." For sale at Dwyer's.

Also two splendid holiday picture books—"Chatterbox" and "Little Wide-Awake," just the thing for children. Go and see them and you are sure to buy if you can spare the dimes. They are for sale at Dwyer's.

Cincinnati Illustrated. From the establishment of Snyder & Hoole, book-binders, Cincinnati, we have received specimen copies of D. J. Kenny's "Cincinnati Illustrated," designed as a guide for the visitor to the "Queen City" of the West, for 1875.

The work is separated into three divisions—the first devoted to "The City and its Institutions;" the second to "Street Architecture, Commerce and Manufactures;" and the third to "Scenes on the River, the Inclined Planes, the Suburbs and Drives." It contains a map of the city, and three hundred engravings illustrative of its ecclesiastic, monumental, medical and business architecture, accompanied by very readable descriptions of the various sights and scenes of interest in this great and rapidly growing city.

Part one commences with a brief account of the founding of Cincinnati, which is followed by engravings and descriptions of the various approaches thereto, by rail and river; also of the hotels, modes of conveyance, places of amusement, city government and statistics, great public charities, municipal departments, the public buildings, telegraph and express companies, educational establishments, medical colleges, libraries, musical organizations, club houses, boat clubs, gymnastic associations, secret societies, military organizations, churches, fountains, bridges, banks, clearing house, parks, florist and nursery gardens, and "Over the Rhine."

In part two are engravings and descriptions of the principal business establishments, arranged by streets; also statistics of the various branches of manufacture carried on in the city.

Part three commences with a diagram of the suburbs, with descriptions of scenes on the river, the inclined planes, the suburbs, the various grand drives—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, also of famous residences, summer resorts, &c., &c., the whole forming a complete mirror and guide book of this famed city, got up in charming style, the paper being fine, the printing first-class, the binding elegant, and very many of the engravings beautiful. It is a model of a guide book, and its compiler and author deserves a large share of encouragement for the care and ability he has shown in the performance of his work.
