

BETTERMENT OF INDUSTRIAL WORK

The Trend of Woman's Thought is in That Direction Now—Prominent at the Milwaukee Biennial.

This morning's session of the Federation of Women's clubs was opened at 10:30 by President Coulter. There was quite a large attendance and keen interest was manifested in all the details of the session. The first feature of the meeting was the report of the secretary which shows that out of thirty clubs only one-third of them had made a report. Most of the clubs which had hitherto confined their work to the study of literature had become interested in the Ladies' Kindergarten club and other altruistic subjects, such as political economy, sociology, civil government, etc. The secretary stated that it was now prepared to do more work than at any time in its history.

The report of the following clubs and their officers were properly endorsed:

SALT LAKE CITY CLUBS.

Ladies' Literary—President, Mrs. B. M. King; secretary, Mrs. Iglehart. Utah Woman's Press club—President, Mrs. H. E. Scheller; secretary, Mrs. Ella M. Hyde. The Cleoan—President, Mrs. J. H. Moyer; secretary, Mrs. Oscar Moyer. Woman's—President, Mrs. J. Q. Jones; secretary, Mrs. Kinney. The Inquirers—Secretary, Hattie Peak. Council of Jewish Women—President, Mrs. Simon Ramberger; secretary, Theresa Simon. The Reviewers—President, Mrs. Frank A. Vincent; secretary, Mrs. Ellen Elliott. The Reapers—President, Mrs. Mary M. Morris; secretary, Minnie H. James. The Poet's Round Table—President, Mrs. Peyton; secretary, Mrs. M. Dale. The Authors—President, Mrs. C. F. Wilcox; secretary, Mrs. Charles Crismon. The Althean Lyceum—President, Mrs. Mable Jones; secretary, Miss Jean Horne. OGDEN CLUBS.

The Aglaia—President, Mrs. Gideon; secretary, Mrs. G. C. Bent. Child Culture—President, Mrs. Sara Whalen; secretary, Mrs. Katie Wright. La Coterie—President, Mrs. U. J. Welmer. Historical—President, Mrs. Edward Bischoff; secretary, Mrs. J. M. Bishop. PARK CITY CLUBS.

Woman's Athenaeum—President, Mrs. E. Whitehead; secretary, Mrs. Walter Scott. Da Capo—President, Mrs. Allen.

PROVO CLUBS.

Utah Sorosis—President, Mrs. D. D. Hill; secretary, Mrs. Pearl Yates. Nineteenth Century—President, Mrs. Flora Bonham; secretary, Mrs. Rosetta Swab.

ORANGEVILLE.

Union Club—President, Mrs. Sarah A. Folmer; secretary, Mrs. Mabel Moore.

VERNAL.

Thalia—Represented by the secretary, Miss Ethel Ashton.

HEBER CITY.

Ladies' Shakespeare—President, Mrs. W. S. Willis; secretary, Mrs. Alexander.

MANTI.

Ladies' Literary—President, Mrs. D. C. Brown; secretary, W. K. Reed.

BRIGHTMAN CITY.

Cllo—President, Miss E. L. Rankin.

MUST SETTLE DUES.

At the conclusion of the report a spirited controversy arose over a motion put by Mrs. Hilliard of Ogden to the effect that those clubs who had not paid their dues before the first vote should not be permitted to cast their ballot during the convention. Mrs. Hilliard was informed that the by-laws contained such a provision and the motion was therefore ruled out of order.

Mrs. Kinney of Salt Lake then moved that the by-laws be suspended and that the clubs be permitted to vote, as there were many who could not avoid being late in the payment of their dues. Mrs. Iglehart said that the clubs were organized for the purpose of obtaining a business training as well as anything else and she therefore thought that the rules should be rigidly enforced that the lesson of promptness may be taught.

Mrs. Johnson of Springfield said that she was willing to sacrifice her vote, holding that that would be a just punishment for her tardiness. There was some more discussion pro and con, when the vote was called and the motion was lost. Those clubs therefore who had not paid their dues by the time the first vote was taken will have no vote in the convention.

CORRESPONDENCE AND FINANCE.

There was a brief report of the corresponding secretary, which was followed by the report of the treasurer, which was as follows:

Balance at beginning of year...	$2.05
Money received	62.40
Literary fund	$127.35
Balance on hand	48.35

HEBER CITY.

Mrs. Willis of Heber City made a report of the Ladies' Shakespeare club of that city. She said that the club was working under much difficulties, but that it had succeeded in making a very good report of following a regular program the club took up of miscellaneous studies, principally that of literature. The average attendance was seven.

MANTI.

Mrs. Brown, representing the Ladies' Literary club of Manti, submitted a report for that organization. She said that she had been very much interested in the work of the club, but despite that plague it had not been able to do much. In addition to studying literature the club had established a free kindergarten during the summer school, and was also maintaining a mother's class.

SPRINGVILLE.

Mrs. Johnson, representing the Woman's club of Springfield, made a very interesting report. She said that her club was studying Roman history, and reading Shakespeare's plays and novels with the brilliancy of Kate Upson Clark, the wit of Octave Thanet, the poetry of Alice Williams Brotherton, the wisdom of Charles Perkins Stetson, and the music of Mrs. Proctor Smith, as were all the members of the Federation, that they simply did not know when to go home nor where home was, that they were all so interested today and their boots not half beached on the shore of Lake Michigan is due solely to the kindness of a gallant gentleman, too honorable to betray their mischievous condition and too modest to disclose his own name. "Bless the men," said Kate Upson Clark, "bless the men, the best product of civilization, might of us had our fare to Milwaukee paid by one of these men, we have had nice little letters asking us if we were sure we had enough money and enclosing something quite acceptable. There isn't one of us who hasn't a good word to say for them."

The aim of the General Federation of Women never did so much disinterested, unselfish work for humanity as they are doing today, and the best lesson to be learned from it is to be selfless and live for a purpose. "The excellent paper read by Mrs. Moore was followed by a very thoughtful paper on 'The Measure of Success,' by Miss Eva Rasmussen of Brigham City, which was in part as follows:

"Each of us has a gift to offer the world, that gift a life, and one which we may make our best possible or our worst possible. It is not a matter of what we owe our abilities or our talents, but we owe ourselves developed from what we can make out of our abilities and talents."

"The only factor which we need today—there never has been—has been the need for strong, healthy, human lives, strong in body, mind and soul, and healthy also in the same three-fold relation. The only way to get this is to lift it out of its sameness, its ugliness, its sin. Our earth is a fit abode for beauty and harmony—imperfect human life can be but a portion."

Edward Atkinson has said: 'The law of life is the law of service. We are members, one of another, and the very existence of society rests upon the interdependence of each and all. We are placed at the disposal of each and all alike, with out distinction of race, color or condition, are time and opportunity. These being given, each of us has a duty to perform. Just laws the measure of your success will be the measure of the services which you are capable of rendering to your fellow men."

"The only factor which we need today—there never has been—has been the need for strong, healthy, human lives, strong in body, mind and soul, and healthy also in the same three-fold relation. The only way to get this is to lift it out of its sameness, its ugliness, its sin. Our earth is a fit abode for beauty and harmony—imperfect human life can be but a portion."

Continuing the paper states that, "Mrs. Love considers the most significant feature of the two years past to be the growing interest of the women of the federation in the women and children who are wage-earners in America. 'Our work,' she says, 'has heretofore been for others, now we produce in the broadest sense to work with others.'"

"Perhaps no part of the convention interested us more than the earnestness which those prominent in its industrial department showed in the leadership of Corinne S. Brown of Chicago (Mrs. Brown is a woman of unique personality and determined that she and the committee of which she is chairwoman should be heard and heard well.)"

Mrs. Otley of Chicago pleaded eloquently for co-operation between club women and wage-earning women, the forming of unions among the people on the wage-earning women in America and for the elimination of the wage-earning child. Mrs. Hanwood of Evanston followed, and stated most impressively, 'White slavery exists in the South today, mostly little children, white souls are cheaper.'"

Charlotte Perkins Stetson, the only woman of vision of the day, said Mrs. Ughart Lee named to the reviewers the other afternoon, 'The woman of the greatest brain before the American public today' held the tremendous power of the people on earth, and mothers of them all. I know just how easy it is for women to follow the same deeply rooted lines that they have followed since the world was, but even if it is hard for us to change it is for us to do it."

"I wish you all might have heard of, I might adequately describe Mrs. Frederick Nathan's work in this connection. Among the many brilliant, attractive women the peace of that serene thoughtful face lingers longest as far and away the most beautiful. Mrs. Nathan's work was greater than that of any other woman in the world, and she was able to form a league during her stay. The league seeks to encourage merchants and manufacturers to make and sell goods under proper conditions. These conditions are that fair pay be given to those employed in manufacturing the goods and that the places where they are made shall be healthful."

Mrs. Moore then reported at length upon her educational work at the Biennial and devoted much of her time to the discussion of the Free Traveling Library, which institution is growing rapidly and is doing an immense amount of good."

In conclusion the report says: 'Two of the Utah delegates, one a star speaker and the other a humble delegate-at-large, were discovered at midnight, in a city as light as day, so satiated, so thoroughly penetrated, that they would be neither wise nor wise to say intoxicated, with the brilliancy of Kate Upson Clark, the wit of Octave Thanet, the poetry of Alice Williams Brotherton, the wisdom of Charles Perkins Stetson, and the music of Mrs. Proctor Smith, as were all the members of the Federation, that they simply did not know when to go home nor where home was, that they were all so interested today and their boots not half beached on the shore of Lake Michigan is due solely to the kindness of a gallant gentleman, too honorable to betray their mischievous condition and too modest to disclose his own name. "Bless the men," said Kate Upson Clark, "bless the men, the best product of civilization, might of us had our fare to Milwaukee paid by one of these men, we have had nice little letters asking us if we were sure we had enough money and enclosing something quite acceptable. There isn't one of us who hasn't a good word to say for them."

The aim of the General Federation of Women never did so much disinterested, unselfish work for humanity as they are doing today, and the best lesson to be learned from it is to be selfless and live for a purpose. "The excellent paper read by Mrs. Moore was followed by a very thoughtful paper on 'The Measure of Success,' by Miss Eva Rasmussen of Brigham City, which was in part as follows:

"Each of us has a gift to offer the world, that gift a life, and one which we may make our best possible or our worst possible. It is not a matter of what we owe our abilities or our talents, but we owe ourselves developed from what we can make out of our abilities and talents."

"The only factor which we need today—there never has been—has been the need for strong, healthy, human lives, strong in body, mind and soul, and healthy also in the same three-fold relation. The only way to get this is to lift it out of its sameness, its ugliness, its sin. Our earth is a fit abode for beauty and harmony—imperfect human life can be but a portion."

BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT.

Mai Lucy Leeton Sues Senator Sullivan of Mississippi for Fifty Thousand Dollars.

Paid Her Much Attention and Her Tuition—Relationship Was Not Entirely Platonic.

Washington, Oct. 25.—A suit for $50,000 damages for breach of promise against United States Senator William V. Sullivan, of Mississippi, was filed in the District of Columbia supreme court this afternoon by Mai Lucy Leeton, of Oxford, Miss. The plaintiff in her affidavit alleges that she, "an unmarried woman, at the request of the defendant undertook and promised to marry him and the defendant undertook and promised to marry the plaintiff, which he, without cause or right, has refused to do." The plaintiff claims that she met Senator Sullivan about October 7, 1895, in his law office at Oxford, he being employed to defend her brother-in-law, she claims that he made proposals of affection for her "and began by wiles and artifices to induce the plaintiff to accompany him on a journey to Chattanooga, Tenn."

The plaintiff claims she refused to go with him but allowed him to respond to her suit, but she was at the time married but not living with her husband. Plaintiff claims that Senator Sullivan promised to procure a divorce for her, "and that he would keep her forever with him, and that she was at the time married but not living with her husband. Plaintiff claims that Senator Sullivan promised to procure a divorce for her, "and that he would keep her forever with him, and that she was at the time married but not living with her husband. Plaintiff claims that Senator Sullivan promised to procure a divorce for her, "and that he would keep her forever with him, and that she was at the time married but not living with her husband."

During the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She claims the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman. The plaintiff refused to do this, and the defendant offered her $1,000 to go home and not expose him before said woman.

At the time plaintiff claims she had an offer of marriage from a young man who lived near her home, and asked the defendant to consent to break off their relations. The latter, she claims, urged that she should not marry the young man, but wait and marry him the following summer. The affidavit recites that the couple lived together in Washington, and that the defendant refused to marry her, and that she was not financially able to marry her. Also that plaintiff hearing defendant was ill in June, 1900, came to Washington to see him and found him rooming at a woman's home, whom he had brought from Holly Springs, Miss. She