

Would Have Them Take Livelier Interest in Legislation and Administration of Government.

TRAINING OF AGRICULTURISTS

Why Shouldn't State Establish Schools For Their Education as Well as For Lawyers and Doctors?

Lincoln, Neb.; Sept. 4 .- William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the presidency, today made two avowedly non-political speeches to his home folks. The first was at the state fair grounds, where he participated in the grounds, where he participated in the dedication of the new auditorium, and the second was at the Tabatha home, near Fairview, where the new building was dedicated, as a hospital for the aged. In his fair grounds speech, which was to a multitude of persons, Mr. Bryan confined himself mostly to an appeal to the farmers to take a livelier interest in legislation and ad-ministration of government, both state and national. He was introduced in a short, happy address by Gov. Shel-don, who has just been renominated by the Republicans for governor, and don, who has just been renominated by the Republicans for governor, and, who was a captain in Mr. Bryan's regi-ment in the Spanish-American war. Mr. Bryan referred somewhat humor-ously to his own experience as a soldier, and said that among the candi-dates for president this year he was the only man with a war record. He wid that underlying partisan feelings in this country was patriotism deeper and stronger than all else, as illustrated by the ready response to the call for volunteers in the Spanish-American war. His personal experience typified this. Less than two years after his defeat by Mr. McKlinley, he said, he had voluntcered his services at Wash-ington for the war. This offer, how-ever, was not accepted, and he turned to his own state, which gave him a commission, and he raised a regiment of Nebraskans. Most of the officers in this regiment, like Gov. Sheldon, he said, were Republicans, though the majority of the enlisted men were Democrats. He facetiously referred to the fact that were Republicans, though the majority of the enlisted men were Democrats. He facetlously referred to the fact that his regiment occupied a position in Florida midway between the camps of the Rough Riders and the Second Mis-sissippi. This was a dangerous po-sition, he declared, when the rela-tions between the Rough Riders and the Second Mississippi were such that he could not tell at what moment his camp would be a battleground between them. them.

BRYAN TO THE FARMERS. Addressing himself in serious vein to the farmers, he said, among other things

"My friends, we are more stingy in making the appropriations for the farmer than any other large class of our people. Why, it was a century after our government was organized, or about that, before we succeeded in getting a department of agriculture established. We are in the greatest agricultural country in the world, and agriculture is the greatest industry in our country, and yet almost a hundred years elapsed before the farmer got a seat around the president's council chamber. How backward we have been in recognizing the farmer's place in My friends, we are more stingy in chamber. How backward we have been in recognizing the farmer's place in our government and among our insti-tutions. In the time that has elapsed since the creation of this department of agriculture a great deal has been done, and yet that department is in its infancy. What will you think when the for every dollar we I tell you that for every dollar we spend on that department we spend more than $25 on the army and navy. more than $25 on the army and navy. More than $25 spent in getting ready for wars we ought never to have than we spend on agriculture. The agricultural school is developing: its advancement is one of the great advancement is one of the great marked characteristics of this generation. I think I am safe in saying that in no other department of learning has there been so much progress as in that department which relates to agricul-

cultural college. Why, for years it has been deemed a part of the duty of the state to train lawyers through law schools established by the government. And we have trained doctors through schools connected with our state in-stitutions, but, my friends, we are just beginning to learn that the training of the farmer is just as important as the training least benefited directly by the expenditure of the money that is raised. Read the amount spent on ships and then figure, if you can, what por-tion of that gets to the farmer. Take up the other large appropriations, and with the exception of pensions, I do not know of any large appropriation in know of any large appropriation in which the farmer has anything like his share in proportion to his number. These have been some of the methods of discrimination. I believe that with more farmers in the councils of the na-tion, more farmers prepared to exert an influence upon public thought through the pen and the pencil and by the tongue, that we shall have a change, and that that change will help to retard, if not to stop, the tendency now from the farm to the town. "But what, my friends, is the danger "But what, my friends, is the danger of the concentration of our population in the great cities? I do not mean to say that the causes that I have given are the only ones that have tended to build up the cities. Nearly everything has contributed, but these influences have always, when you trace them back to the cause been operating, and the fact that the farmer's influences in leg-islation has not been what it ought to have been in one of these influences. Take the rebates that have built up great centers and destroyed the smaller great centers and destroyed the smaller towns. Why have they been given? Because the farmer has not had a voice in the regulation of the railroads. And so I night take up other questions. And what is the menace of the central-ization of the population in our great cities? I believe the farm is the great training school, and I know that the people from the farm have strengthened every branch of business: but my people from the farm have strengthened every branch of business; but, my friends. I believe as we get away from the country, as we get further from the soil, we are less and less impressed by these great laws of nature that ought to have a controlling influence in our lives. Man, as he lives close to the soil, lives close to God. It is easy to teach religion to one who sees the miracles performed every day. It is easy to inspire regard for the Creator in one who sees every day the handiwork of who sees every day the handiwork of the Almighty and labors constantly amid the mysteries of natural life. And on these farms we have been rearing the man and woman whose influences have helped to keep this country great and to promote the movements which have for their objects the welfare of the world. But there is another reason why I am anxious that the farmer shall have a great influence. As I have been studying the causes of evil, as I have studying the causes of evil, as I have been studying the abuses that need to be remedied. I have found that the fundamental trouble is a mistaken un-derstanding of the law of rewards. The farmer, more than any one else, is brought into close touch with the di-vine law of rewards. The farmer knows that God has given him a fruitful earth that God has given him a fruitful earth, the showers that are necessary and the warmth of the sun, and the farmer knows that if he is to convert raw maknows that if he is to convert raw ma-terial into wealth, it must be by dill-gence and by intelligence; and the farmer is impressed, day by day, year by year, with the idea that his reward. ## BENGAL TIGER RAJAH ATTACKS HIS TRAINER

New York, Sept. 5.-Rajah, the Ben-gal tiger, which with its mate, Moki, and eight lions takes part in the act of Henry Falkendorth in the Bostock arena at Coney Island, attacked his trainer in the presence of 500 spectators last night and inflicted a deep scalp wound. Thirty-five stitches were re-quired to close it. The physicians fear concussion of the brain.

concussion of the brain. Falkendorth, on July 12, was so badly clawed up by the other tiger, Moki, that he was confined to the hospital for a month. When it came Rajah's turn to leap up to his pedestal last night it leaped upon Falkendorth in-himself. Both men died almost in-stantly. Miss Edsal is believed to be fatally wounded.

I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with eramp colle, so bad, in fact, that I was almost afraid-to take the risk; her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a death-like look on her face. Two or three ladles were working with her and giving her whiskey. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colle, Cholera and Diarr-hoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a dou-ble dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water hero it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had uite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her rubbing her hands, and in twenty min-utes I gave her another dose. By this time, we were almost into Le Grande, where I was to leave the train. ## JORDAN MURDER CASE.

Medical Examination Indicates Woman Was Killed With Blunt Instrument.

Boston, Sept. 4 .- Evidence throwing new light on the probable manner in which Honora Jordan of Somervile, known on the stage as Irene Shannon, was killed, was revealed today, it is said, by the medical examiners who have been performing an autopsy on the dismembered body of the wife of Chester S. Jordan.

Chester S. Jordan. Jordan in his confession stated that his wife was killed by being knocked down stairs, and that he then cut up the body and placed it in the trunk in which it was found by the police. While the medical examiners decline to state their findings at this time, it to state their findings at this time, it was learned that the examination indi-cated that Mrs. Jordan met her death by being struck on the head by a blunt instrument, possible a flatiron, caus-ing a fracture sufficient to cause death. Then, it is claimed, she was strangled.
