

WHAT WILL HILL SAY IN DENVER?

Speculation Rife Regarding His Plans in Tuesday's Gould Meeting.

BURLINGTON CUTS A FIGURE.

Tumor That It May Get More Than a Traffic Alliance With Western Pacific.

There is general speculation in the local railroad offices as to the outcome of Tuesday's annual Rio Grande election at Denver. The fact that Daniel Villard, second vice president of the Burlington and president of the Colorado Southern roads will be present at the meeting has occasioned more or less wise surmise that J. J. Hill proposes to have a say in the election of the next directors. In this connection, the following New York Herald article on the Western Pacific will be read here with interest:

There is reasonable basis for the statement that the Burlington railroad may secure more than a traffic alliance with the Western Pacific railroad, which the Goulds are building from Salt Lake to San Francisco, and which will be completed for freight traffic about the first of January. Reports today that the Burlington might obtain a half interest in the Western Pacific were not entirely backed by officers of the Gould line or its branches. One man closely identified with the Western Pacific said: "Our intention has always been to permit any road that wanted to use the Western Pacific for its California business. It was not by any means built as an outlet for Missouri Pacific or Denver & Rio Grande traffic. We would be glad to have it. Burlington, the Rock Island or the Atchafalaya, whose lines now end in Colorado, route their business over our road, as it is built to handle a large volume of tonnage at low cost. "In these times it is difficult to say just what may happen in the railroad world, so I cannot deny that the Burlington may not some time get an interest in Western Pacific. Any other road might do the same thing. "The Burlington has a direct road connection in the Northern Pacific, which takes it to Puget sound points. Since the Burlington acquired the Colorado & Southern it has been more than once over with the necessity of getting a California outlet. "Rails on the Western Pacific will be joined at the end of this month. There are still about 10 miles of line to be built. Equipment is now being delivered to the road.

DOUBLE TRACK EXTENDED.

Active work on the extension of the double track of the short line north of Woods Cross will begin in two weeks, as the ties have all been distributed and the shipment of rails from the Colorado Fuel & Iron company begun on the 15th. A large part of the line to Farmington has been graded, so that when a sufficient quantity of the 30 pound steel arrives, there will be no delay in pushing the improvement. For the present, the authorization for the double track extension goes no further than Farmington, but when that point is reached work will begin south from Ogden through the mountain cut which is now being enlarged to accommodate the second line of rails. The 30-pound steel is being taken up on the main lines of the Idaho division and replaced with 36-pound rail, the lighter steel being used on the new branches where it does very well. The old 30-pound steel is being utilized on spurs and private yard sidings.

ANNUAL INSPECTION BEGINS.

The annual inspection of the Oregon Short Line system began Monday, last, and will continue until Nov. 6 next. The inspecting party includes the general superintendent, the chief engineer, division superintendent and four division engineers, traveling by special train. They will overhaul everything in the way of physical property, and see that failures are in first-class shape or know the reason why. The Marsh Pit gravel excavated near McCammon, and which is considered just as good as the famous Sherman Hill gravel for ballasting, is being spread over the tracks of the entire system for that end as is feasible. The ties are all covered up, as obtaining street railway construction, which makes them more solid in position and stifles the rattles and chatter hitherto attendant on the motion of a train over the rails.

MORE TEACHERS WANTED.

It was announced in the office of City Superintendent of Schools D. H. Christensen this morning that some difficulty is being encountered in securing sufficient teachers for substitute work in the seventh and eighth grades of the city schools. There are plenty of substitute teachers reporting to supply the places for the lower grades, but a number of teachers capable of handling the work in the higher grades could be used to advantage for substitute work.

IMPECUNIOUS BARTENDER.

Hyram Cahoon, Sued for Divorce. Wants Allowance to Pay Union Dues. This Hyram Cahoon is serving in the last stages of impecuniosity. He is the father of an adult child by his first wife. The third district court this morning in connection with the order issued from the court ordering him to pay his wife Sarah Cahoon, who is suing him for divorce on the grounds of desertion and drunkenness, temporary alimony in the sum of $20 per month. The order also gives to Mrs. Cahoon the right to the household goods amounting to $12.50 per month, and retaining Cahoon from touching $522 coming to him from the estate of his mother. Cahoon asks that the order be modified so as to prevent him from paying his dues in the bartenders' union, which he is a member of, and which unpaid dues renders it impossible for him to secure a job as bartender. The application will be heard by Judge Mechem next Friday.

FUSION MOVEMENT PRESSING ONWARD

Rousing Campaign Being Planned From Headquarters Opened Today.

With four tickets in the field, including the Socialists, the municipal campaign opened this morning in a vigorous manner. The unsettled feeling which prevailed for the last three weeks has passed away and the political opponents of the fusion movement know what they have to meet.

The Citizens and Democrats opened headquarters on the ground floor of the Colonial theater building this morning in the premises formerly occupied by the Carlsens & Anson Music company. Their headquarters are spacious and are well fitted up with comfortable furniture. Chairman Ben T. Lloyd is organizing his forces and will be held Wednesday evening. There will be several speakers and a special musical program. Another meeting will be held in the Sixth ward amusement hall Friday evening when a number of good speakers will appear. The names of the speakers will be announced later.

The Democrats and Citizens are arranging for ward rallies every night for the last two weeks of the campaign. The joint committee is securing dates today and the program will be arranged as soon as possible and announced.

JERRY SENDS OUT SCOUTS.

The activity on the part of the Democrats and Citizens to arouse the "Americans" Jerry Dawson, chairman, sent out a committee early today to obtain dates to hold rallies in ward halls. The committee was made up of Jerry Dawson, chairman, and his of the party split into factions, the "Americans" have decided to make a desperate fight to hold the forces which they will bring in the last municipal campaign.

The Republicans, so far, have only announced one rally. That will be held in the Salt Lake theater on Saturday night, Oct. 23. United States Senator George Sutherland will be the principal speaker of the evening. An important meeting has been called by Chairman Ben T. Lloyd at 4 o'clock Tuesday evening and it is desired that the meeting be well attended. The call is as follows: To the chairman and workers of each of the Salt Lake City political districts. A meeting of the greatest importance to the success of our campaign will be held at the Citizens-Democratic headquarters, Colonial theater building, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 19, at 4 o'clock. Each election district chairman is asked to see to it that at least five workers from his election district attend this meeting. We request that every member of the Democratic and Citizens city committee be present. Five hundred energetic workers will assure the success of our short and vigorous campaign.

We particularly request that the ladies attend this meeting (don't wait for a personal invitation), as we feel that they are especially interested in our campaign.

We have commodious headquarters on the ground floor of the beautiful Colonial theater building, free from objectionable surroundings.

BENJAMIN T. LLOYD, Chairman Joint Campaign Committee.

TWO DEAD INFANTS FOUND BY POLICE

Blood-Smeared Packages the Only Clues to Two Revolting Crimes.

The police are looking for infants killed in two shocking cases that have come to light in the last two days. This morning, the blood-smeared corpses of a murdered infant were found in West Temple street, between Second and Third South streets, behind a small shoe-maker's shop, near the Western Newspaper Union plant. The police were notified, and Sergeant Beckstead started to work on the case. Horror is added to the murder by the fact that the body of the child was wrapped in newspapers and cloth, and was in a deplorable condition when found.

A similar case was reported Sunday, when the body of a murdered infant was found in a deplorable condition in Second North, between Second and Third West streets. The bodies were taken to O'Donnell's undertaking parlor, where they will be held pending an investigation and hunt for the criminals by the county attorney's office. The bodies were taken to Acting Coroner Stanley Banks.

COUGHLIN PROMOTED.

Special Agent John V. Coughlin, who has been attached to the Utah hold division of the local office for several months, has been given a promotion in the office of A. Christensen, chief of the Oregon Field division, with headquarters at Portland. The new position carries with it a good advance in salary, which Mr. Coughlin has earned by his efficient work in the Salt Lake office during the past summer. The notice of the appointment came by wire Saturday, and Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin left for the northwest today. Mr. Coughlin's special work in his new field will be to combine with the presentation of the Oregon land frauds, for which he is well fitted by his qualifications as an attorney.

BARLOW TO PROBE RENIGER EPISODE

Will Try to Fasten Guilt on Policemen in On Strange Deal.

GOVERNMENT TO PROSECUTE

United States District Attorney Will Probably Charge Reniger With Kidnaping Soldiers.

When asked this morning whether he is making a personal investigation of the alleged corruption of members of the police force with the system of George Reniger in duping soldiers of the Fifteenth infantry and holding them until they were released as deserters, in order to collect $50 a head for reward money from the United States government, Chief of Police Barlow stated that he was determined to sift the matter to the bottom.

The chief said that he was not ready to give out the names of the police officers against whom suspicion points strongly now. He said also that the case was rendered all the more difficult by the fact that the force of men who are detailed to Commercial street work is changed from time to time and that inasmuch as Reniger's operations are supposed to have extended over a period of four months, since he was dishonorably discharged from Company L of the Fifteenth infantry at Fort Douglas, an extensive examination of the men under suspicion would be necessary before any definite steps could be taken by the police department.

Certain it is that Reniger amassed a small fortune in duping money by "cutting" the rewards with the policemen of those who have been returned by the leading police officers who are now the greatest police scandals that ever shook the reputation of the Salt Lake City. Exact data exist whereby the guilty men can be run to earth. The records kept at Fort Douglas show the names of every deserter, and the names of those who have been returned by the Salt Lake police, the names of the arresting officers are on file, as it was to them that the United States government held the reward money of $50 in each case.

Col. Walter Scott, commander at Fort Douglas, is absent, and will not return for several days. He is in a good authority that the government and not the city officials will prosecute Reniger and his pals.

Chief of Police Barlow stated this morning that in conference with the military authorities, the latter have signified their desire of having the United States district attorney prosecute the case, and that the military authorities will not return until they were returned in a doped condition as deserters.

The charge is very serious one, and it will go hard with Reniger and his accomplices, whoever they may be. If the government prosecutes the case, the minimum sentence for such an offense is said to be five years in federal prison.

MANY DESERTIONS FORCED.

Since Reniger was "bottled" by the Fifteenth infantry, about 35 soldiers have been forced to desert.

HARRY WHITNEY, GENTLEMAN SPORT

Sudden Publicity of a Hitherto Unknown Young Man Caused by the North Pole Controversy Between Peary and Cook

WHEN Harry Whitney sailed from New Bedford with Peary on the Roosevelt July 1, 1908, he was a young man of twenty-one years, and he had just been graduated from Yale only last June. The statement has been made that Harry Whitney received considerable property from the late Bradish Johnson, his grandfather, a rich man of New York city. Harry is not collected. When he left high school he went at once to learn the copper manufacturing business. After three years at this in Ansonia, Conn., he quit and sailed for New York city for Australia and engaged in raising sheep. He returned to this country and bought a ranch in Arizona.

He divided his time between the ranch and prospecting, and while engaged in the latter he nearly found his death while riding a mustang a winged insect peculiar to that country flew into his ear. He was unable to remove it. He was a husky man of five feet ten inches, but he put spurs to his mount and reached Tucson. When he arrived he was raising mail. Fortunately for him, he was the cousin of the Elks, and members of that order went to his aid and had him removed to a hospital, where he obtained relief. After his recovery he went on a hunt for that was always his ambition. He was noted for it when he lived in New Haven. He went to Colorado, and one of the results of his expedition was the killing of one of the biggest silver tip grizzlies of that section. He remained in the west indefinitely and returned east about the time that Peary was preparing for his last dash for the pole. He became interested in the project while visiting a club in New York city, not because he cared anything about the pole, but because he learned that there was an opportunity of trapping game in the far north. A number of young men at the club where Whitney became an enthusiast agreed to go with him. One of these was a nephew of Andrew Carnegie. When the expedition was ready to start Whitney was the only one of the club who went with it. In fact, he preceded Peary to New Bedford, and while waiting there for the expedition he superintended the building of two power boats of the whaleboat model, and these he presented to Peary on the latter's arrival at New Bedford. The first picture of Whitney that the public saw was the one taken at his while he was standing in one of these boats.

He has the distinction of being the first young American to go to the far north in search of game. He spent the long winter night in that remote land in sledging and when he returned to civilization he had twenty-one musk oxen and arctic deer to his credit, but the polar bear had kept out of his range.

Harry Whitney inherited his love of sport from his father, who was known in New York city and in New Haven as a "thoroughbred." The elder Whitney was a splendid type of the sportsman of the olden time. The family consisted of two sons and two daughters. The latter are Mrs. Charles Dickey of New York city and Mrs. William Blodgett of Fishkill-on-the-Hudson. Harry's mother was the daughter of Bradish Johnson, of New York city and Long Island, and he was a country gentleman of distinction and wealth. The father and mother of Harry Whitney are dead, but his stepmother is still living.

The young man who has been shoved into notoriety without any effort of his own fills the definition of all round sport. He has the spirit of adventure and has the faculty of recording what he sees and hears in a happy vein, for he loves to write. He has a quiet vein of humor and tells a story well.

"Doc" W. O. Norrell was selected this morning as assistant secretary of the "American" campaign committee to succeed Philip T. Tyers, who resigned last week. Norrell is a Lippman man and the fight against Mayor Bransford, who leads the "American" club, is still in evidence about headquarters.

Blind Commission Appointed.—Governor Sperry has appointed Dr. S. H. Allen, Josephine Morris Ransom and Annie K. Hardy of Salt Lake and C. J. Rom of Ogden as members of the commission for the care of the adult blind, authorized by the last legislature. His teeth are said to be irregular, and he is of a nervous temperament, and exceedingly talkative. He has not been heard from since September 4, 1908, when he wrote his mother from Helper, Utah, saying he was going to Reno, Nevada.

Father Says Son is a Bad One.—C. J. Ober, 125 south Sixth West, who charged his 18-year-old son with disturbing the peace and the case came up before Judge Bowman Friday afternoon, takes umbrage at some of the testimony introduced in the courtroom. He claims that his son has figured in the juvenile court a number of times and is utterly incorrigible. He has threatened his life with a rock and an ax, and generally keeps late hours. He shut his son out of the house on the night he disturbed the peace and the trouble followed which led to the arrest. The boy is 18 years of age and not to be erroneously reported in all papers.

Inquiry For Mrs. Izard.—W. John Hunt, a solicitor of Pershore, England, has written the city board of health for information concerning Mrs. Mary Izard, who, he says, joined the Mormon Church at that place and went to Utah with her husband and daughter a number of years ago. The woman's maiden name was Waters, and Mr. Hunt is anxious to communicate with some of her descendants. The only information received of her is that she was supposed to have died in Utah some years ago. Mr. Hunt asks incidentally where the Mormon church is located. There is no information about Mrs. Izard in the records of the city board of health.

STEWART PLEADS GUILTY

(Special to The News.)

Provo, Oct. 18.—Charles Stewart, charged with the murder of Charles Wheeler at Colton, July 30 last, was arraigned this morning before the Provo district court for trial. By agreement with the district attorney, Stewart pleaded his plea of guilty to voluntary manslaughter with the understanding that his sentence would not be longer than 10 years. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

Stewart and Wheeler had been drinking and quarreled which resulted in shooting. Stewart claims that Wheeler threatened him before he drew
