Elder John B. Maiben addressed the congregation. It was written that "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." He was happy to have the privilege of bearing testimony to the everiasting Gospel, revealed in this dispensation. He was reared as Episcopalian, but in 1848 first heard the Gospel message through an Elder, in his native land. His long acquaintance with the Church had given him no reason to regret having obeyed the Gospel, of the truth of which he had received a testimony, as promised by the ceived a testimony, as promised by the Lord Jesus. Obedience to those principles brought peace and life and redemption to the human race. He had had considerable experience in traveling among the Latter day Saints had had considerable experience in traveling among the Latter-day Saints, had associated with those who had obeyed the principle of celestial marriage, and almost universally among them was to be found a spirit of reverence and regard for things of heaven, and an effort to exemplify the truth in their lives. When he first heard that plural marriage was practiced by the Saints he was filled with grief, but turned to his heavenly Father for light, and by the testimony of the Holy Spirit learned of the divinity of the principle. Snortly afterward, the principle, which before had been held in abeyance, was publicly proclaimed by the Elders of the Church. When the speaker became familliar with the condition of the people in this Territory, his experience of the practice of the principle by the people was that it had largely tended to their purification and salvation. Owing to the disturbed condi-tion of affairs, the work was not progressing as rapidly as it might do under more favorable circumstances. The Territory had been divided into Temple districts; but there was no law prohibiting the giving of more to the prohibiting the giving of means by the Saints for any of the Temples, and the work on that, at Manti had received material assistance from those not liv-ing in the Manti district. material assistance from those not living in the Manti district.

At the last General Conference the speaker had telt a union of spirit among the people such as he had never before witnessed, indicating the progress toward salvation which was being made.
