Schenck's Mandrake Pills

Will be found to possess those qualities necessary to the total eradication of all bilious attacks, prompt to start the secretions of the liver, and give a healthy tone to the entire system. Indeed, it is no ordinary discovery in medical science to have invented a remedy for these stubborn complaints, which develop all the results produced by a heretofore free use of calomel, a mineral justly dreaded by mankind, and acknowledged to be destructive to the extreme to the human system. That the properties of certain vegetables comprise all the virtues of calomel without its injurious tendencies, is now an admitted fact, rendered indisputable by scientific researches, and those who use the Mandrake Pills will be fully satisfied that the best medicines are those provided by nature in the common herbs and roots of the fields.

These pills open the bowels and correct all bilious derangements without irritation or any of the injurious effects of calomel or other poisons. The secretion of bile is promoted by these pills as will be seen by the altered color of the stools, and disappearing of the salivary complexion and cleansing of the tongue.

The presidency of the aforementioned quorum is as follows: David R. Allen, president; Robert Patrick, Jr., first counselor; Emil Lenhardt, second counselor.

An Arduous Mission.—On Saturday we were pleased to greet Elder J. Z. Stewart, and Isaac Stewart, of Draper, in this county, who had just returned from an arduous and toilsome mission to Arizona, Mexico and New Mexico.

The party was composed of the two brethren above named, Elders Helman Pratt, George Terry, Lewis Garff, and Melton Gonzalez Trejo. The latter returned home a few months since, for the purpose of going back to settle in the south with his family. Elders Pratt and Terry travelled with the Stewart brothers, on the return, as far as Orderville, where they stopped over, and Elder Garff stayed at Lehi.

This company of missionaries left here for their extensive field of labor, being the second mission of Elder J. Z. Stewart and H. Pratt to Mexico, on the 18th of October, 1876.

They proceeded to Prescott, Arizona, where they did some preaching, and then devoted their labors among the settlers on Salt River, who are mainly Mexicans, holding a number of meetings in Phoenix and Tempe. Numbers of the people were favorably disposed to the teachings of the Elders, in fact were convinced of the truth of the gospel, but had not the fortitude to come out boldly and embrace it in the face of the vindictive and virulent opposition incited by the Catholic priests.

The next place visited was Tucson, where the missionaries were invited to hold meetings and preach in Spanish and English, a request to which they responded cheerfully. A number of people at that place signified that they were ready to be baptized, but most of them receded from that position on account of opposition. However, a number were baptized in Arizona.

cases occurred of the healing of the sick by the power of God, creating a great stir among the people, and the Elders were greatly blessed with the spirit of the Lord.

They visited and preached to the tribes of Indians known as the Pimas and Papagos, on the Gila River, who received their teachings, and listened attentively to their teachings. They said it was all good, but wanted time to consider, to revolve what they had heard over in their minds before taking any steps toward obeying it.

In the place they met a party of soldiers in full retreat before a band of hostiles, who had shot and killed the mail driver a short distance ahead. Next day the next driver was also killed and an escorting party of soldiers called until rescued by another force who were out repairing the telegraph line. In that part of Texas where the brethren visited the population are Mexicans, and a number of them visited the priest there and asked him if they should kill the missionaries. He advised them not to do so, but to avoid them and have nothing to do with or say to them. The priest afterwards asserted that the Elders owed their lives to him. They, however, attributed their protection all the way through to the interposition of Divine Providence in their behalf, knowing that they were pursuing the line of their duty. They baptized four persons in that part.

Leaving Texas the party followed the Rio Grande to Los Lunas, explaining, in conversation, the principles of the gospel to the people as opportunity presented.

Leaving Los Lunas they visited the La Guaca or Lake Indians and had an interview with the chief and other leading men of the tribe. They said they liked what they heard and they believed it to be true. The interpreter who acted for the brethren was the same who acted for a Presbyterian minister, and the latter interfered and was the means of hindering further progress of the labors of the Elders in that part.

The brethren also visited the Zunis, and found most of those who had been baptized of that tribe holding fast to the faith and seeking to improve.

The party passed through New Mexico, visiting the settlements of the Saints, striking the Little Colorado, and following the line of that river. At Captain Lot Smith's camp their release to return home reached them.

The brothers Stewart are in excellent health and spirits, and though pleased to be once more at home, they feel that they would not exchange the experience they have gained on their late mission for any consideration, if it was possible to do so. We learn from them that the Elders of the party are also in good health.

Returned Missionary.—This morning we were greatly pleased to receive a call from Elder John Morgan, of this city, who returned from a mission on Friday evening. He left here on the 28th of October, 1876, and traveled and preached through the States of Illinois and Indiana, on foot, "without purse or scrip," warning the people and preaching the gospel at every opportunity. The opposition and bitterness he encountered in those two States was much more virulent and strong than he subsequently met with during his mission. Yet there are many friends to the work in those States. Several families gathered out of that part of the country through the preaching of Elder Morgan and others intend coming to Utah as soon as practicable.

His health failing him there, Brother Morgan proceeded to the South, where he found a field for labor opened up in North Georgia, where, an almost universal interest in the latter-day work of the Lord was manifested by the people. About six weeks after his arrival he commenced baptizing and organizing branches, and, for lack of other assistance, ordaining native elders and calling them into the ministry to preach.

Their services were invaluable, they manifesting much zeal and energy in the work. Three branches, aggregating about sixty members, were soon organized. The opposition commenced on the part of the clergy and press, who became alarmed on account of so great progress being made. Notices were posted warning Elder Morgan to leave the country, and ministers from the pulpits advocated mobbing, hanging and other violent measures. One night the meeting-house in which he was preaching was fired into by an armed mob. After the volley was fired there were some symptoms of alarm on the part of the assembly, which, however, immediately subsided on account of a few words from Elder Morgan, who continued his discourse, turning the better class of the people in favor of the Saints. The press denounced the mobbers and every effort was made to frown down opposition of such character.

At the April conference of 1876, Elder Morgan was joined by four Elders from Utah, who had been laboring in Alabama and South Georgia. After the conference Bishop Lionbee, of Sevier county, and Elder Morgan started through the mountains to find a new field of labor. Elder Murphy going north, the other Elders returning home. After travelling thirty days together, Elders Morgan and Lionbee separated, the latter to visit some relatives in Alabama and visit a branch of the Church he had organized. The former continued to preach in Georgia, where he soon organized a branch of twenty-two members, baptizing a Methodist minister and almost his entire congregation. He ordained the former minister an Elder and set him to work preaching, which he was actively and energetically engaged in at last accounts, and will doubtless do much good among the entire people of North Georgia.

Active efforts were made during the summer to arrange emigration matters so as to enable the Saints from the southern States to journey up to Zion. Elder Morgan was enabled to bring out a company of about eighty, who came through to Pueblo, Colorado, where they went into winter quarters, intending to continue their journey into New Mexico in the early spring. They secured an eligible location, on an island in the Arkansas River, isolated from the influences of the city, and sufficiently near to be convenient to labor. They organized in the United Order, throwing their means together for the common good of all, elected Daniel R. Sellers, of Alabama, president and general business agent, who will do all the purchasing for this company, who all live together as one family, eating at the same table and sharing alike in all things. They expect to be joined by a large number of Saints from the Southern States in the Spring, in time to continue the residue of their journey together. The prospects are good for a heavy emigration from those States that have been visited by the Elders, and he says there are thousands of people who, entirely unacquainted with the religious ideas of the Latter-day Saints, have become disgusted with the condition of the theological world, and only need instruction to bring them to a knowledge of the truth. Patient and energetic Elders will find a broad field of labor open before them in the Southern States, where much good can be done. They will meet with strenuous opposition upon the part of a few, but the mass of the people will listen.

A few nights previous to Elder Morgan's departure from Georgia, the K. K. K., a secret organization of reckless men, led by a minister, came to the house where the Elder was stopping, for the purpose of driving him out of the State, but the man of the house, Mr. Bailey, brought his fire-lock into requisition, and no harm was done. According to the Elder's testimony, the "Mormon" people have many friends among the warm-hearted, hospitably inclined southern people.

Special thanks are due Geo. H. Herrford, Esq., of St. Louis, Ed. F. Lissans, Esq., and Col. Truslow, of Chattanooga, Tennessee, who assisted in securing emigrant rates. Elder Morgan feels glad to return to his mountain home and the association of the people of God.
