SECRETARIES.

Secretary C. E. Stinson of the executive committee said that the following resolutions included in the committee's report:

"We, the Republicans of Salt Lake City, do hereby, in convention assembled, declare our loyalty to the principles of the party, and to the cause which we offered a minority report, for the reason that we did not desire to precipitate a fight in our convention, and we understand that the majority agreed with us in their position, but we did not desire any action on the part of the convention.

George A. Smith, a member of the executive committee, moved that he be allowed to offer a minority report, for the reason that he did not desire to precipitate a fight in our convention, and we understand that the majority agreed with us in their position, but we did not desire any action on the part of the convention.

Mr. McNaughton asked Mr. Stinson if it was not a fact that if the present section of delegates had been present at the convention without protest he could have voted for his motion.

Mr. Stinson moved that the motion be withdrawn.

Mr. George M. Cannon—I would like to hear from the other side. Have they no reason to present why they should be given credit?

Mr. McNaughton said: They are notopoulos. If they have anything to say they can say it.

None of the other expressions of the committee, Mr. McNaughton's amendment was carried, but with a negative vote.

This precipitated another long discussion, but the amendment was finally lost, as was a motion to withdraw the section out the section made by Mr. Stinson.

SAINTS' CONTRACTS.

Speaking to a committee to adopt the report, Dr. George Smith of Ogden, and the committee made a very forcible speech in favor of the convention's concluding delegation. His talk was at times amusing and "brought down the house."

Mr. McNaughton, who said that all the prominent men in the church had been served up to the committee and that their report was made with a due respect to fairness in both cases.

Delegates from Henry said, however, that the original delegation and the committee report, which he hoped would be accepted, were not good enough, and upon a question from Mr. McNaughton admitted that he had moved to the primary at Draper to make the election of the original delegation unanimous.
