THE OUTLAGE BUSINESS.

transfer the sensational "outrage business" to Utah, leaving no stone unturned, no sort of lie untold, to effect their purpose. An immense effort has been made to scrape up a big "outrage business" out of the Company, but that contract was annulled owing to the exposure made during the investigation of stupendous effort, also on an excountable, except on the hypothesis just concluded Lee trial, though on edingly slender basis, has b inaugurated in relation to the little stranded town of Corinne and the neighboring Indians, who are setting the alarmists an excellent example in seeking peace and in learning and practising the arts of useful industry.

It is no matter what the subject. Indians or court business or any thing else, so that it can be made to furnish anything like the shadow of a basis for this "outrage business," it is all acceptable, and is gladly pounced upon and manipulated with the extreme recklessness of propriety, fairness and truth, characteristic of these outrage-mongers.

With all intelligent and fairminded men, these ineffably mean and shabby attempts to connect the principal "Mormon" authori ties, and the "Mormon" people generally, with these begus outrages, and throw the responsibility upon them are held at their just value, and the unscrupulous individuals who are engaged in inflating this "outrage business" at their just value too. As a matter of course in all these "outrage business" sensations there is a great cry but precious little wool, excepting that which is drawn over the eyes of the very gullible portion of the public who receive these outrage

SH AMEN CHICK OF TOP AND THE TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES

The Black Hills Business.

CHICAGO, 12 — A Washington special says that Mr. Cowan, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, anticipates a good deal of trouble over the Black Hills question. Reports sent into the department from the Black Hills Territory show that the miners are constantly pouring in in spite of all the army can do. The army can order away the miners where it finds them, but it is now cenceded to be an impossibility to keep people from going there. The Indians are very warlike, but have agreed to remain quiet till after the council of the commission sent out by the department. Mr. Cowan says that if this council should result unsatisfactorily for the Indians, he would exipect nothing else upon their part EASTERN. pect nothing else upon their part out a general outbreak.

Dead-An Open Letter.

"Under Williams the Department of Justice was a Southern outrage mill, constantly grinding out bloody-shirt enormities and horrifying the country with ku-klux stories, massacres of negroes, and all sorts of terrible doings. Under Judge Pierrepont that office has ground out nothing but legitimate business, and even the newspapers that used to second Williams are now quiet on the outrage business, but they are very dull in consequence."
