Oyster Bay, Sept. 13 .- A letter writ. ten by the president to Conrad Kohrs, of Henena Mont., an old-time friend was made public tonight. The communication, it was explained, was called forth by William J. Bryan's statement that he was the president's heir and natural successor. The letter in part says:

THE LETTER.

Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, N. Y. Sept. 9.-1908.-My Dear Mr. Kohrs: Sept. 9.—1908.—My Dear Mr. Kohrs: I have received your letter about the candidacy of Mr. Taft, the man who I feel is in an especial sense the representative of all that in which I most believe in political life. Every good citizen should desire to see both prosperity and justice, pros-perity and fair and righteous dealing as between man and man, obtain per-manently in this great republic. As a people we are justly proud of our busi-ness industry, of our energy and in-telligence in our work; and it is entire-ly right that we should ask ourselves as to any given course of conduct, "Will it be profitable?" But it is also no less emphatically true that the bulk less emphatically true that the bulk of our people, the plan people who found in Abraham Lincolm their es-pecial champion and spokesman, re-gard the question, "Is this morally gard the question, "Is this morally right?" as even more important than the question, "Is this profitable?" when applied to any given course of conduct. Indeed, in the long run our people are sure to find that in all deal-ings, allke in the business and the poli-tical world, what is really profitable is that which is norally right. The last few years have seen react each say that which is morally right. The last few years have seen a great awakening of the public conscience and the growth of a stern determination to do away with corruption and unfair deal-ing, policital, economic, social. It is urgently necessary that this great re-form movement is healthy if it goes on by spasms: if it is marked by per-lods of frenzied advance followed, as such periods of frenzied advance must always be followed, by equally violent periods of reaction. The revolutionary and the reactionary really play into one another's hands, to the extent that each by his excesses necessarily tends to arouse such disgust, such a feeling of revolt, in the minds of quiet peo-nle as tomporacily is exceeded in revolt, in the minds of quiet ple, as temporarily to restore the other

WOULD AVOID EXTREMES.

WOULD AVOID EXTREMES. To permit the direction of our public affairs to fall alternately into the hands of recolutionaries and reactionaries, of the extreme radicals of unrest and of the bigoted conservatives who recog-nize no wrongs to remedy, would mere-ly mean that the nation had embarked on a feverish course of violent oscilla-tion which would be frought with great temporary trouble, and would produce no adequate good in the end. The true friend of reform, the true foe of abus-es, is the man who steadily preserves in righting wrongs, in warring against abuses, but whose character and train-ing are such that he never promises ing are such that he never promises what he cannot perform, that he al-ways a little more than makes good what he does promise, and that, while steadily advancing, he never permits himself to be led into foolish excesses which would damage the very cause he champions. In Mr. Taft we have a man who cour port, and the policies for which I stand are his policies as much as Held Amid Scenes Such as Engmine. The is not possible in the space of this letter to discuss all of the many and infinitely varied questions of mo-ment with which Mr. Taft as president would have to deal; let him be judged by what he has himself done, and by what the administration, in which he has played so conspicuous a part, has done. mine THE HOST WAS NOT CARRIED.

which he has played so conspicuous a part, has done. I have striver as president to cham-plon in every proper way the interests of the wage-worker; for I regard the wage-worker, excepting the farmer, the tiller of the soil, as the man whose well-being is most essential to the healthy growth of this great nation. I would for no consideration advise the wage-worker to do what I thought was against his interest. I ask his I would for no consideration advise the wage-worker to do what I thought was against his interest. I ask his support for Mr. Taft exactly as I ask such support from every farsighted and right-thinking American citizen: because I believe with all my heart that nowhere within the borders of our great country can there be found another man who will as vigilantly and efficiently as Mr. Taft support the rights of the working man as he will the rights of every man who in good faith strives to do his duty a: an American citizen. He will protect the just rights of both rich and poor, and he will war reientlessly against law-lessness and injustice whether exer-cised on behalf of property or labor. On the bench Judge Taft showed the two qualities which make a great judge: wisdom and moral courage. They are also the two qualities which make a great president.

ake a great president. Sincerely yours, THEODORE ROOSEVELT. Mr. Conrad Kohrs, Helena, Mont. nake

London, Sept. 14. — Archbishop Bourne has sent to the newspapers a copy of the correspondence which preceded the change in the plans for the Catholic procession, from which it appears that Premier Asquith sent to the archbishor on Thursday morning the archbishop on Thursday morning the first intimation of his wish that the ceremony of carrying the host through the streets of London should be abandoned. Archbishop Bourne, in reply to the premier in a long statement, protest-ed against changing the plans at the last moment. In his comunication the archbishop declined to accede to the premier's request unless the lat-ter accepted full responsibility. He pointed out at the same time that a similar procession had taken place in many parts of England without hindbe abandoned.

similar procession had taken place in many parts of England without hind-erance, and he would under no cir-cumstances agree to an arrangement that would place Catholics in the po-sition of being tolerated under certain conditions. The archbishop said in conclusion: London, Sept. 13 .- A great procession of Catholic clergy, which brought the eucharistic congress to an end, was held this afternoon amid scenes such as the English churchmen who planned it had never anticipated. Cardinal Van-QUESTION TO ASQUITH.

E₂ was accompanied by a bodyguard of 11 peers, of whom the Duke of Norfolk was the most prominent, and a concourse of cardinals, archbishops and bishops, who also archoisnops and bisnops, who also were attired in unceremonial robes instead of vestments, which originally it had been proposed they should wear. On Saturday, Homé Secy, Gladstone wrote from Scotland to Archbishop Bourne, supporting Premier Asquith's request, but admitting that he should not think any reasonable person could object to such a procession. From that on, the negotiations con-tinued through an offocial of the home secretary's office, and when the matter was settled, both Mr. Asquith and Mr. Gladstone, whose communi-cations were couched in most cour-teous terms, expressed their personal teous terms, expressed their personal thanks to Archbishop Bourne, assur-ing him that every precaution would be taken to protect the procession from insult or annoyance. It is evident, however, that the Cath-olics consider that they have been bad-by treated. Father Sprankling, adminster of St. George's cathedral (Catho Nic), yesterday referred to Premier Asquith's action as one that would go down to posterity as an insult to mil-lions of Catholics.

VANNUTELLI'S VIEW.

Cardinal Vannutelli, in an interview after the procession, said: "It has been an admirable affirmation of faith and sympathy, which will not be easily forgotten by those who witnessed it. The demonstrations of sympathy came spontaneously and were well accepted by all non-Catho-lics, who, by their demeanor, protested against the attempts, artificially con-Long before the hour set for the ceremony it was impossible to get near the line of march. The police had not expected such crowds and met with much opposition in their attempts to keep the path clear, which they hardly succeeded in doing, so that the papal legate and his followers had to push their way through a narrow lane, being frequently and unpleasantly jostled about. In very truth his friends and brothers, that their interests are his, and that his great qualities are to be spent with lavish freedom in their service. The honest man of means, the honest and law-abiding business man, can feel safe in his hands because of the very fact that the dishonest man of great wealth, the man who swindles or who his follows would not set of great wealth, the man who swindless or robs his fellows, would not so much as dare to defend his evil-do-ing in Mr. Taft's presence. The hon-est wage-worker, the honest laboring man, the honest farmer, the honest mechanic or small trader, or man of small means, can feel that in a pe-culiar sense Mr. Taft will be his rep-resentative because of the very fact that he has the same scorn for the demagogue that he has for the cor-ruptionist, and that he would front threats of personal violence from a mob with the unqualling and lofty indifference with which he would front the bitter anger of the wealth-iest and most powerful corporations. Washington, Sept. 13 .- The department of agriculture has just published the report of Special Agent Saylor upon the progress of the beet sugar industry in the United States for the last calendar year. Mr. Saylor reports that the close of the year indicates that business interests are more united than ever in the manufacture, refining and distribution of home sugar production. Mr. Saylor reports that speculative possibilities have taken the sugar in-dustry to the west, and he thinks the beet will grow faster in that section of the country. He states that recent of the country. He states that recent legislation promoting the production of denatured alcohol to be used in the arts and sciences will redound to the credit of the sugar industry. SERMON BY GIBBONS.

The great edifice was crowded, the audience following with rapt attention the sermon of Cardinal Gibbons, who preached eloquently. When the congregation poured out of the edifice they found that the crowd already was assembling for the proces-sion, which had been the cause of so much controversy. Large forces of po-lice were assisted by some 15,000 Catholics, who had volunteered to line the route, but even this strong army of men was unable at times to prevent the participants in the parade from being participants in the parade from being shouldered by the curious. Before the procession started vespers were sung within the cathederal, at the conclusion of which the prelates passed down the nave singing "Faith of Our Fathers," which was taken up by the congrega-tion and the vast crowd without.

PROCESSION EMERGES.

As the head of the procession emerged from the cathedral doors, a emerged from the cathedral doors, a cheer went up, which was fepeated as cardinal after cardinal came slowly out, followed by archbishops, bishops, minor prelates of the church and a great army of white surpliced men singing hymns. Most of the prelates carried their vestments over their arms but the legate was in full dress, his scarlet robes and red hat lending dis-tinction to his commanding form. The tinction to his commanding figure. The hands of the pope's representative, which were to have carried the host, showered continual blessings upon the people, who reverently bowed the knee. On either side of Cardinal Vannutelli were his chief captains and the guard of honor, composed of Catholic peers. Following the legate came the mem-bers of the pontifical mission, the car-dinals in their order, two by two, each with his train bearer and chaplain; the archbishops and other prelates, includtinction to his commanding figure. archbishops and other prelates, includ-ing the representatives of absent bish-ops, the whole procession being up-wards of a mile long and occupying meable a boart to long and occupying nearly an hour to cover the route

AROUND THE CHURCH.

In the streets surrounding the cath-edral the prelates passed through avenues of kneeling adherents of their faith, the curious who might have came to jeer being crowded out of this came to jeer being crowded out of this vicinity. At one or two points fur-ther away, however, three processions had to practically force a passage through the crowds which broke through police lines. At one place, where several streets converge, the crush was so great that the spectators broke up the procession, but the police, stationed at this point in strong force, managed eventually to clear a narrow lane, through which the papal legate and the others passed in single file. The crush here was frightful for half an crush here was frightful for half an hour and the police had to use heroic measures. It was an anxious time for the officials, and reserves were hurried for our scheme of the serves were nurried to the scheme nor to robect the crowd from itself than for any other purpose, for, although there was some isolated jeering, the people were more intent on sightseeing than on interfering with the Catholics.

On their return to the cathedral, the prelates marched around the in-terior of the edifice, the legate carry-ing the host as he would have done in the streets had the government not internosed an obtention in the streets had the government not interposed an objection. Those who had been crowded out of the cathedral were permitted to participate in the ceremony as the legate, robed in his vestments, ap-peared on the balcony outside of the building and presented the sacred sacrament and pronounced the bene-diction.
