DESERET EVENING NEWS: SATURDAY, APRIL 13, 1901.

(his wife), Papetal and Arala (his wife), Jete, Tuauri and Taiho. Two of these, namely Papitai and Tuauri, were na tives of Tahiti, the others were natives of Tubuai. In the afternoon the Sacrament was administered, and the visitors returned to their homes rejoicing. At Mahu, Elder Pratt established meetings for Bible instructions and prayer, the same as at Mataura.

Friday, Aug. 23 (1844), Brother James Clark, one of the newly baptized con-verts, salled from Tubual for Tahit with the intention of emigrating to the body of the Church in America. He received a certificate of membership from Elder Pratt.

Sunday, Sept. 8th, Elder Pratt preached to the people for the first time in the native language, having been on the Island about five months. was tolerably well understood. Af ter this he generally preached in native every Sunday, and also met with the natives on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings for Bible instructions. Saturday, Sept. 14, (1844), a vessel ar rived at Tubuai, bringing the news that Protestant missionaries were coming from Tahiti to "play hell" with Elder Pratt for having broken into their sheep-fold. The following day, Sunday, September 15th, before Brother Pratt had finished his morning services, a runner brought him word that the missionaries had arrived; and in the evening he was in formed by letter that they had been or shore at Mataura and given the "Mor-"tremendous thrashing." christened some infants and told the lies they knew of Joseph Smith and the Saints. After that they had gone or board again, but would be on shore again that day. The next morning (Sept 16th) Elder Pratt, accompanied converts, went to Mataura, where the missionary stopped, and found them in the house in which Elder Pratt had kept school in teaching the natives to sing. Elder Pratt was followed in by a number of the baptized members of the Church, but when he reached r his hand, the Protestant missionaries refused to shake hands with him, say ing: "We do not give you the hand til we are better acquainted." There wer: four of them. One of them, Rev Howe, at length turned to Elder Prati who had taken a sent and very sancti-moniously remarked: "I understand you have come to these islands in the ca-pacity of a preacher?" Elder Pratt answered in the affirmative. "And what do you preach?" was the next question "The sacred truths of the Lible." was the reply. "I suppose," continued Mr. Howe, "you are aware that many years ago the London Missionary Society established a mission here at a very vast expense, (the whole stress was on the words vast expense), the cost of trans-lating the Bible," etc. "Well," answered Elder Pratt, 'and now you are opposed to having the Bible preached after you have accomplished the translation?" This Mr. Howe denied, and said he had no objections to Elder Pratt preaching the Bible, but he un-derstood the "Mormons" had another Bible. Elder Pratt explained the nature of the Book of Mormon. A lengthy con-versation ensued, during which the ministers were beaten on over point. At last Elder Pratt raised his hand toward heaven and called on all the heavenly hosts to witness the testimony he bore. He then testified to the divinity of the mission of Joseph Smith and the restor-ation of the fulness of the Gospel through his instrumentality. "I roared on them like a lion," writes Elder Pratt, "I believe my eyes flashed, for I felt as if I could swallow them all at one mouthful. The Spirit of the Lord rested upon me; it threw them into confusion and they knew not what to say. They finally told me that as long as I preached the truth, they would pray that I might be upheld; but if I preached error they should pray it might fall to the ground. Then I sald:

village. After finishing my discourse, and setting things in order, I told the udlence that if there were any among them who desired to be numbered with the people of God and who would repent of their sins and devote the remainder of their days to the service of the Lord I would baptize them; and all such might present themselves at the water's dge at the ringing of the bell. Haif an hour later we repaired to the place appointed and three persons presented themselves for baptism, namely Ruipiti and his wife Tehina and Tehauroa. In the afternoon I administered the Sac-rament. After the meeting all the Ma-taura brethren returned, except Brother Hill who remained with me over night. nd in the evening he assisted me in onfirming the newly baptized members." Oct. 1st. Elder Pratt went to Mataura nd preached for two hours to the crew f the Unity, which were British sail-rs. The next day he delivered another sermon to them of three hours' ength. On the 4th he returned to Mahu, where he remained about two weeks, spending his time in preaching to and conversing with the natives in their own language, teaching his Bi-ble class, studying, etc. By this time he was quite proficient in the language. On the 15th of October he removed with his effects to Matuara; and though he did not expect to be gone from Mahu more than a week at a time, many of the natives shed tears at his departure. All the sisters in the Church made him presents, and he was given food enough o last him for several days. Nabota to last him for several days. Nabota and his wife and their adopted daugh-ter accompanied him in a cance, in which they sailed around the west side of the island. On their arrival in Ma-taura they were halled with joy, and Elder Pratt was pleased to find the white brethren progressing nicely with the building of their schooner. The day after his arrival at Mataura. Elder Pratt reopened his school, the children all being glad to see him re-turn. On the following Sabbath (Oct. 20th) he devoted most of his preaching to counteracting the influence which the Protestant missionaries, during their late visit, had brought to bear upon the people. On the 24th he baptized three natives; the next day he went to Mahu in a canoe, and on the following Sun-day (Oct. 27th) the Saints from Mataura came over and attended meeting there; one native was baptized. On the 28th he commenced a school at Mahu, but returned to Mataura on the 1st, where he resumed his missionary abors. On the 6th of November he abors. married three white men to native wo-men, namely George McLain to Paa-haaho, Ornon Clifford to Valho, and leorge Prescott to Metua. Later he erformed the marriage ceremony for wo native couples. Under date of November 9th, Elder

Pratt writes in his journal: "I put on board the Lucy a hog, five pecks of ar-row root and 50 cocoa-nuts for Brothers Rogers and Grouard, and regret much that I have not more to send, as I fear that they suffer for the com-forts of life." The Lucy sailed for Tahiti the next day.

forts of life." The Lucy sailed for Tabiti the next day. True to his promise, Elder Pratt di-vided his time between the two villages, holding meetings on the Sabbath. In-structing his Bible classes, administer-ing to the slok and showing the people by precept as well as example that he was a servant of God. On the 20th of November he baptized three at Mahu. On the 25th he received 20 pounds of flour as a present from a Mr. Johnson, the captain of a vessel, who had stopped at Tubual for some time. This was the first meal or flour that Elder Pratt had had at his disposal since he came to the island. Soon afterwards the captain of articles of clothing, which he needed, and in this manner his wants were supplied. Dec. 1st, he baptized and confirmed four more na-tives at Mahu, among them a slok girl tives at Mahu, among them a sick girl who had to be carried to the water. On

"Our prayers will be united." Elder Pratt let them have a Boow of Mormon, a Voice of Warning, and Orson Pratt's "Remarkable Visions." They then sep, arated, the missionaries now shaking hands with Elder Pratt with the cordiality of old friends. The natives felt hurt for Elder Pratt, when they saw the missionaries refused to shake hands with him. King Tamatooa told him not to lay it to heart and he and his native subjects subsequently took Brother Pratt's part and defended the cause with great boldness when he was not present Seut. 17th, after writing to his wife in America, Elder Pratt returned to Mahu, where the people rejoiced to see him again as they had feared that the Protstant missionaries might take him from them. In the letter to his wife of this date he writes:

of this date he writes: "It is now a year since I have heard a syllable from home, and three months since I have heard from the brethren at Tahiti. * * Brother Charles G. Hill I have adopted in Brother Hanks' stead, he is one of the heaven heaven stead: he is one of the honorable men of the earth-intelligent and kind. I have great reason to esteem him. My American brethren are all extremely kind and willing to divide the last with me. Could I get a letter from you, it would do me more good than all the letters I ever had in my life. Often at the dusk of evening, when all is still and silent, except the distant roar of the base upon the oreal roar of the breakers upon the coral reef, do I take a long and lonely walk upon the beautiful sand beach that skirts the island, and as I gaze upon the broad ocean that separates us, my mind is wafted to Nauvoo, to my home and wafted to Nauvoo, to my nome and fireside, and as I (in my mind's eye) gaze upon the happy circle, I ask: Has grim death made any inroads there? I am led to say. There are none gone; for I committed you to the care of my heavenly father, when I left you; and when I have done so, I have never been disconcinted." disappointed."

After forenoon services on Sunday September 22nd, Elder Pratt baptized eight more natives at Mahu. On the 28th a number of the Saints came over to Mahu from Mataura, and the next day (Sunday, September 29th) attended services. Under this date Elder Prat-writes the following in his journal "The Church assembled this morning. taiked both in English and native.
