Last night shortly be-ore midnight, Charles Jernberg, r eighbor of the Coles, heard a noise fore midnight, Charles Jernberg, a beighbor of the Coles, heard a noise near his home, and on investigation found Miss Cole, with a stone tied in her mouth for a gag, and her feet tied together. She was carried into the house, where she related that she was caught near the river at 7:30 o'clock at night, and had been tied and gagged by two men, who then left her to get a buggy. She found that she could hob-ble and started for home, half jumping and hobbling along. She had nearly reached the Jernberg homo at 1705 north Main when she was overtaken by the men, but they were fightened by a cow that broke through a nearby fence and caused them to run, fearing that friends were approaching. Dr. Castle and the police were sum-moned, while Jernberg and John and Oscar Erickson took up the chase after the men who had disappeared. So far no arrests have been made. The Volunteers have discovered that

The Volunteers have discovered that it is a losing proposition to try to run a restaurant in connection with their free dispensary and have therefore dis-continued the same. Good, wholesome meals were screed there to the un-fortunates and others for the sum of 10 cents per meal. If all who called for help would have peal the 10 cents $x-penses could have been paid, but many worked the "stand off" plea and as a result there is now nothing doing in the restaurant line. This morning Miss Florence Kohler, the professional surse in charge of the dispensary, announced that Emmett Gaines, the man from Indianapolis, who was taken care of by the Volun-teers and treated for a bad case of scarlet fever and later for diphtheria, had been cured, thanks to careful and scientific nursing, and has left for his home. For many days little or no hope was held out for the man's recovery, but he was kept at the Volunteer head quarters and nursed day and night untit health was restored. Miss Kohler is now where Gaines was treated. The man giving the home of H. Wilder, and ked from Ogden and was in a most pitable condition when he called at the dispensary for treatment. BIG APARTMENT HOUSE

One more new apartment house is ready to be added to the long list of those being built. This is to be erected by L. E. Riter at Second and B streets, to contain 18 apartments, to be built of Utah fire brick as far as the first story and of pressed glazed brick above that motor and to contain a unique point, and to contain a unique en entrance, which will be a dis-garden entrance, which will be a dis-tinctive feature. Instead of presenting a solid front of masonry the building will be built in three wings, with a gateway and entrance in the center of the front, extending between two side wings. In-side of the gateway, which will be de-signed to match the building, will be a rose garden and a fountain, three doors leading from this court into the various wings of the building. In each wing will be located a laundry and proper servants' quarters, and the apartments will be of three or five rooms each. Ware & Treganza are the architects and work has so far prog-ressed that building will commence within two weeks, the cellar excavation being now partly completed. The same firm of architects are now completing plans for a Main street business block to be located on the premises of Mrs. Sarah A. McChrystal at 52 and 54 South Main street. The block is to cost $60,000, and will replace the buildings in which the McWhirter bakery and the Wonder Millinery store are now housed.
