

SOCIETY

The week has been too warm for any great social activity, but a few pleasant functions enlivened the days. On the holiday several patriotic affairs were given, at least the details were carried out in patriotic designs and colors, but nearly all were quiet and informal.

Miss Ida Savary entertained at her home on Monday night a number of her friends being present and sending a delightful evening. Music was among the pleasant features. Mrs. George G. Morris favored the party with several beautiful songs.

Mrs. William Drenth was one of Monday's hostesses, her function being a luncheon, and covers being laid for about ten. The table was artistically decorated in yellow, and green, nasturtiums being used with ferns. The guests were Miss Charlotte Druehl, Miss Helen Hoxrud, Miss Louise Maddison, Miss Margarette Donnellan, Miss Emily Jessup, Miss Lucy Gaby, Miss Ruth McCusick.

The Butte golf club were guests of honor at a buffet luncheon given at the Country club on Monday. The decorations being marigolds, nasturtiums and ferns. The hostesses were Mrs. Robert Walker, Miss Maud Thorn and Miss Marge Miller. At 7 o'clock a table d'hôte dinner was served. Mrs. David Hempstead being the hostess.

Miss Stella Salisbury was guest of honor at a delightful dinner on Tuesday given by Mr. J. E. Cogriff at the Country club. The decorative color was pink and this was prettily carried out with pink tulips, sweet peas, and watermelons, the latter cut in half, decked with sweet peas and forming effective corner pieces. The place cards were tiny boats with the monogram of the guest of honor done in gold. After the dinner bridge was played. Covers were laid for 16.

Miss Katherine Judge also entertained on Tuesday for Miss Salisbury, a pretty luncheon being enjoyed by about 12 guests.

On Thursday night Mrs. Susan Young entertained at an enjoyable party at her home in honor of her brother, Col. Willard Young, who is here from New York visiting with relatives. It was chiefly in the nature of a porch party, the guests sitting on the veranda and enjoying an evening social chat and interesting reminiscence concerning hitherto unpublished data in the life of Brigham Young. Later adjournment was made to the parlor, where Miss Maud May Hahcock gave some delightful scenes from "Taming of the Shrew." Dainty refreshments were served.

Yesterday Miss Hazel Beattie was guest of honor at a "parlor shower" party given by Miss Kathie Douglas, a number of the mutual friends of each assembling, and showering the bride to be with numerous dainty gifts. The rooms were decorated in pink sweet peas, and a pleasant afternoon spent with sewing and chat.

Today Miss Tess Williams entertained at a "handkerchief shower" in honor of Miss Beattie, the affair being in every way delightful. The bride elect was endowed with a life's outfit of handkerchiefs, and an enjoyable social time spent.

Forty guests enjoyed the pretty afternoon affair on Wednesday, at which the Misses Moffatt were hostesses. The rooms were bright with yellow and red nasturtiums, and in informal but delightful time spent.

A unique and pretty affair was the Italian luncheon given by Mrs. Harry B. Windley on Wednesday. The event was to bring together a number of Salt Lake who met last year in Italy, and the Italian idea was carried out in decorations and menu. Covers were laid for Mrs. J. C. Hooper, Mrs. Agnes Osborne, Mrs. Graham Putnam, Mrs. Thomas Marionsaux, Mrs. Frank Maddux of Nebraska, Dr. Grace Stratton of Omaha and Miss Cobb.

Miss Emily C. Jessup entertained Thursday afternoon members of her classes in the state university summer school at her 8 street residence. There were music and games illustrative of instruction in music for children, and the decorations were wild flowers brought from the mountains around Park City. Refreshments were served. The guests were Mrs. Will Druehl, Miss Charlotte Druehl, Miss May Hempey, Miss Marhan, Miss Maud McCargher, Miss Millie Smith, Miss Youngberg, Misses Carolyn and Gertrude Arbuckle and Miss Madeline Brinton.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Webber entertained at dinner on Wednesday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Franklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoxrud entertained at an informal 5 o'clock tea on Wednesday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Graves. The rooms were bright with flowers and ferns, and a number of intimate friends assisted.

Miss Mildred Swensen and Harry B. Griffin were married on Wednesday at the residence of Dr. Helmick.

and children left this week for San Francisco. They will return via the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. David Keith and Mrs. Charles Rockledge leave for the Keith cottage at Terminal Island next Monday.

DINNER GOWN OF CHIFFON AND RIBBON TRIMMED LACE.

White double chiffon, sometimes called chiffon cloth, is used in quantity for this dainty dinner gown. The lace, which is used with similar lavishness for its adornment, is embellished with much shirred satin ribbon, and the front of the gown displays star-shaped rosettes deftly fashioned from a soft supple satin ribbon in white, with a narrow ribbon rucked to a tufted rosette for a center. There is a transparent yoke of all-over lace, to which is attached a berthe of edge lace, with the pattern picked out with ribbons and a ruche of narrow coral pink ribbon introduced for a note of color effect. The chiffon part is shirred around the body, and the sleeve of lace is open on the outer arm to admit a full puffing of chiffon. The skirt is managed in three sections, each simulating flounced, and start from either side of a narrow tablier front of lace, decorated with ribbon rosettes. An upward lift to these flounces on the hip line makes for a very smart effect, and the hem at the foot is finished with a flat applique of the same lace, but in this instance the ribbon embellishment is omitted.

TAILORMADE TYPE OF TRAVELING WRAP.

These so-called raincoats are at their best in the tailored type, and of this mode the pictured model is an excellent illustration. The garment is fashioned from giffonette, a novel waterproofed fabric which gives not a hint of this desirable quality in its appearance. The shade is one of the new cinnamon browns with collar and cuffs in a lighter tint braided in seal brown seutache. The bodice portion of the coat has an overlaid yoke that is continued in bretelle straps to below the belt, and the fullness is prettily bloused at the waistline in the front, back and sides being drawn down snug. The skirt has a hip yoke with fanciful outline, and to this fullness is applied in shirring. The sleeve is a full puff, dropped into a braided cuff, and handsome buttons effect the double-breasted fastening.

Miss Katherine Judge entertains today in honor of Mrs. Baldwin.

Two interesting weddings will take place next week, that of Miss Hazel Beattie and Edward P. Kimball on Tuesday, and Miss Katherine Dwyer and Louis B. Critchlow on Thursday. Both events will be quiet ones, only members of the families to be present.

Mrs. William Igleheart entertained at a delightful Reception yesterday, in honor of Miss Cunneen her guest, a large number of guests being present. The rooms were effectively decorated, and assisting in serving were Miss Loren Leary, Miss Lela Potter, Misses Hess and Mildred McMillan and Miss Gussie Gentch. In the evening Mrs. Igleheart entertained at a second affair.

Mr. Hugh Satterlee gave a delightful dinner party at the University club on Tuesday night, and afterward entertained his party at "The Fall of Pompeii." The guests were Miss Jane Young, Miss Miller, Miss George Miller, Miss Allison McClellan, Messrs. Arthur and Richards of Butte, Brodie.

A number of Salt Lake people pleasantly surprised Mr. John Watt at Layton, Utah, early in the week he having recently returned from a mission to Los Angeles. Some of the Utah people who were there with him went down by train, and the host coming to the station to meet one person by appointment, to his surprise found there a dozen or more to greet him. He at once proceeded to find a conveyance with which to take them to his farm, and from a farmer near by obtained a header box in which he took the merry party to his farm some three miles distant. They spent the day on the farm enjoying the fruit, etc. and having a general good time. They returned in the evening to the city. The party consisted of Miss Kathie Douglas, Misses Rachel and Maud Patrick, Mrs. Laura Cory, Miss Rosa Toronie, Miss Hertha McCurrum, Miss Hansen and Miss Wahlquist, Messrs. ### OGDEN.

Thursday, Hon. Lorin Farr celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday. In honor of the occasion about 75 children, grand children and a few friends assembled at his beautiful home, corner of Washington avenue and Twenty-first street, and spent an evening of real pleasure. Though Mr. Farr is advanced in years he is yet very bright in intellect and full of life, and many times during the evening delighted all present with merry jokes. The evening was enjoyed by all present, in music, sociability and feasting. An elaborate birthday supper was served throughout the evening. Toasts were given, congratulations extended to the aged sire on his arriving at his advanced age, enjoying such wonderful health and spirits and wishing him many years of comfort and happiness that his last days may be his best days. A large birthday cake surrounded by various colored candles occupied the center of the table. The home was artistically decorated for the occasion with the national colors, and a profusion of flowers, and Chinese lanterns were strung on the porch. Hon. Lorin Farr was the first mayor of Ogden, and has been one of Utah's most thrifty and prominent citizens, doing much for the upbuilding of our city and state. For a man of his advanced years it is doubtful if there is a man in this country who walks so quickly and travels so much as he does. He spends the greater part of his time traveling to all parts of the United States, always enjoying himself and never forgetting to say a good word for Utah and her people. He is a most interesting conversationalist.

THE MODE VOLUMINOUS IN LINEN.

There is a very distinct vogue for those loose and almost shapeless little jackets, and in the wash materials of the summer time they are especially effective. In that of the picture it is hard to tell whether it be coat or cape, for the outlines of both are present. In reality it is a cape, into which the semblance of a sleeve has been cleverly inserted, collar, cuff and front reverse being a sulphur yellow linen embroidered in white and a dull brown. The empiement over the shoulders and extending in odd fashion down one side of the front is decorated with large pearl buttons, and these likewise appear on the back of the cuff. The skirt is one of those many good models arranged in kilt. The pleats are stitched down for a short distance over the hips, and then well pressed to the foot, where a plain turned hem makes the sole finish. The length is just such as will escape the floor, and perhaps display the smart shiny black shoe in walking. The fit is smooth over the hips, while the width at the hem is some half a dozen yards or so.

Shurloff of the Weber stake celebrated his seventieth birthday at his beautiful home on Twenty-fourth street. There were present 42 children, grand children, one great grand child, also a number of close friends to participate in the festivities. The hours passed quickly by at various kinds of pleasures. A bounteous birthday dinner was served and many congratulations were extended for many years of life and health to be added upon our worthy, honored president. The home was prettily decorated with the Stars and Stripes, sweet peas, carnations and other sweet scented flowers. President Shurloff was the recipient of many elegant birthday presents. The event was a joyous one, long to be remembered by all who participated in the pleasures. Not only does the family of President Shurloff join in wishing him many joyous returns of his birthday, but the whole Weber stake joins in these wishes and all others necessary for his pleasure and comfort.
