ety was one by Dr. Nathan Allen, entitled, "Population; its Law of Increase." This is a subject that should possess great interest to every lover of his country and his country's prosperity; for no country which depends for its increase in population upon foreign immigration can ever maintain its position as a great nation as a great sitton as a great nation among surrounding peoples. Dr. Allen makes some astounding statements which should astounding statements which should attract attention and excite inquiry. A remedy should be provided for the terrible evils which he declares exist.

He says that the census of the State of New York taken in 1865, which was taken by families, showed that 115,252 married women had never given birth to a chlid; 124,317 had only had one child, 123,319 two, and 108,324 three saw it, for irrigating purposes, the curchildren. Thus 471,212 women-more than half of the married women in the State-averaged only one child and seven-tenths to each woman. These include both the foreign and the native classes—the foreign always possessing the largest families. By another law of mortuary statistics, it follows that each
