E. E. Rich is receiving 100 large black bass from Utah lake, through Commissioner Sharp, with which to stock one of his Farmington ponds. Mr. Rich has four of these ponds, each 100 feet long, 50 feet wide and five feet deep, which he has been using for reservoir and irrigation purposes.

Dr. Foster, secretary of the California state board of health, was a visitor this week at the meeting of the Associated Medical Authorities of Utah. He says that the laws in Utah relative to hygienic conditions, are in a very backward condition of development, and that the law relating in particular to the recording of vital statistics is no good. However, when classed as a whole with the health laws of California, Dr. Foster does not know that the Utah statutes are worse than the California.

Traveling salesmen representing eastern clothing establishments say they no longer carry around large trunks of samples of clothing with them, and no longer hire sample rooms at the hotels.

The manufacturers and jobbers found that this cost too much money. So the traveling men now carry around samples of the goods fastened together, with models or photographs of the styles. This is satisfactory, and the number of hotel sample rooms has been abridged, and the receipts for extra luggage on the railroads have been materially diminished.

Isaac Goldberg, a Hebrew youth of 16, blew in last evening on "the blind baggage" of Rio Grande train, en route to San Francisco. He said he wanted to see something of the country, and not having first class fare he was forced to beat the railroad companies. Goldberg claimed to have made Chicago in the tool box on the back of the tender of a Lake Shore engine; he was arrested in Chicago, but was released to go on his way. The much traveled youth says he wants to find work on the Pacific coast, as he prefers that locality to the Atlantic coast in the winter time.

BURGLARY AT MURRAY.

Tripp Bros. Store Entered and $300 Worth of Goods Stolen.

Tripp Bros. store, near the Highland boy smelter, Murray, was last night entered by burglars and about $300 worth of goods stolen. The men tried to gain entrance by the back door, but were unsuccessful. Then they went to the front door, which they pried open. They then helped themselves to groceries, shirts, shoes, sweaters, gloves and pocket knives, and then took their departure without being detected.

The burglary was not discovered until this morning when the matter was reported to Deputy Sheriff Beckstead. First officers detained a number of suspicious looking characters, whom he lodged in the Bingham Junction jail, awaiting an investigation. Later Sheriff Emery and Deputy Sheriff Steele went out to Murray and after viewing the premises, proceeded to scour the country in the hope of locating the gang and recovering the stolen goods.

Mattison, of Milford, Va., who says: "It works like magic, and is the best preparation I know of. It couldn't be any better." The Montana football team will arrive in Salt Lake tonight and will be met by a delegation of students. The game will take place on the University campus at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, and as the home boys have been doing some vicious work this week it is expected they will give a good account of themselves.

SPLIT, BRITTLE, DULL HAIR.

All Come From Dandruff, Which is Caused by a Germ.

Split hair, dull hair, lusterless hair, brittle hair, falling hair, all owe their origin to dandruff, which is caused by a measly little microbe that burrows into the scalp, throwing up the cuticle into dandruff scales and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root, causing the several deplorable conditions of the hair till it finally falls out. Modern science has discovered a remedy to destroy the dandruff microbe, which is combined in Newbro's Herpelide, the delightful hair dressing. Always itching intensely and makes hair soft as silk. Take no substitute; nothing "just as good." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpelide Co., Detroit, Mich. Z. C. M. I. Drug Co., Special Agents.

UTAH YOUNGSTER LOST IN ST. LOUIS

Robbed by a Sharper He Made His Way Home Through Kindness Of a Conductor.

THE STORY OF HIS ADVENTURE.

Arrived in Salt Lake Penniless and Tells of His Parents of Whose Whereabouts He Knows Nothing.

A week ago at St. Louis, Levan Peterson, a 10-year-old boy who went to the fair from Moroni, Utah, with his parents, became separated from them. Last night he arrived on the "Overland" from the East alone, and tomorrow leaves Salt Lake for Moroni. He has made the trip through the kindness of trainmen, and will go on to his home with the help of a conductor on the local train.

The boy is a bright looking little fellow, and tells a straight story of how he became lost, and started for home after trying for two days to find his parents. Where they are now he has no idea. The boy was robbed of what money he had by a grifter just before leaving. He did not know the sort of ticket to buy, and gave $15 to a man at the depot and asked him to buy him a ticket that would take him to Salt Lake. The fellow took the money, but he purchased a ticket for $2 to a suburban station, and did not return the change. This fraud was explained to him by the conductor when he tried to continue past the station, and when he told what had happened the conductor allowed him to stay on the train without a ticket.

He said this morning when asked about his strange trip home: "Well, when we got to St. Louis papa and mamma and me went to the fair house a long way from the fair grounds. It belonged to a woman named Andrews. I don't remember the name of the street it was on. I went off to play with some fellows and didn't find my way back. Then when I did get back papa and ma were off. The woman said they had got another boarding place. I tried a couple of days to find them, and then I wanted to come home. I had about $15 and I didn't know the kind of ticket I had to get, so I asked a man at the station to buy me one. He said he would, and told me it would cost $15. I paid him the money, but the ticket he gave me wasn't no good. It was only a $2 ticket, and went a little ways out of St. Louis. The conductor wanted to put me off at first, but then he helped me. He let me stay in the car, and sleep on the seat. I got to Salt Lake last night, and went to a restaurant across the street for something to eat. A man who was eating there paid for the dinner and let me sleep in his room last night. The conductor promised to take me down to Moroni in the morning, and he did. I paid him for anything, and the conductor has promised to help me all I need."

"How did you like the fair?" he was asked.

"O I didn't see much of it. I got lost soon after we got there."

"Don't you think your parents are hunting in St. Louis for you, and are worrying because you went away?"

Yes; maybe they are, but I didn't know what to do so I thought I better go home."

"Don't you know anybody in Salt Lake?"

"Yes, President Lund used to live near our house in Moroni, and he knows papa, but I don't want to ask anybody for anything, and the conductor has promised to help me all I need."

The gentleman whom the boy met in the restaurant, and who is providing for him while in Salt Lake, is Humes Devaughn. He is a transient, stopping over for a day in Salt Lake on his way to the fair. On his arrival there he is to report the matter to the Utah building, and make an effort to aid the boy's parents. Several other parties who are about to leave for St. Louis were told of the boy's arrival today, and will try to locate the parents, and assure them of the boy's safety.

Devaughn has taken quite a liking to the little fellow, who is very manly in his actions, and states that he will see that he is properly started off for Moroni in the morning.

USED THE "STRONG ARM."

How a Stranger Was Relieved of $90 And a Railroad Ticket.

A Barracough, a farmer 22 years old, was robbed of $90 and a ticket to Los Angeles, by two men companion in a restaurant on west Second South street, about midnight last night. He reported the matter to the police at once and the detectives are now working on the case.

Barracough, who is an Iowan, stayed over in Salt Lake a day on his way to Los Angeles, and fell in with two men whose good nature and willingness to oblige seemed to him the best recommendation. After roaming about the city for several hours, and after taking a number of drinks together, the three went to a small restaurant near the depot, to get their supper.

Barracough foolishly took his roll out of his pocket and counted it on the restaurant lunch counter. One of the men then stepped behind him, and gave him the "strong arm," while the other seized the money. The two made their escape before the surprised farmer could recover his presence of mind. He reported the case at once and is being held as a witness by the police.

SHE SHOT TO KILL.

Mrs. Woodard, Colored, Tries To Carry Out Threat of Long Ago.

Mrs. Edward Woodard, a half-breed negro and Indian woman, was arrested at 9:30 o'clock last night on a charge of assaulting her husband with intent to kill him. Woodard bears, as the result of the encounter with his wife, a furrow in his scalp that was caused by a pistol ball that plowed its way through the skin for a distance of five inches.

The Woodard family troubles have been aired in the police court on several occasions, and about three months ago Woodard agreed to leave town and remain away from his wife. He returned to the city last night, and a few minutes after his arrival in Franklin avenue, where the two had lived, trouble was again renewed. Woodard claims to have been walking on the opposite side of the narrow street when his wife saw him and asked him to come and talk to her. He claims that upon his refusal to do so, she fired three shots at him with a .35-caliber revolver, the first ball striking him on the head and the others going wild.

The woman told a different story when arrested later in the evening by Officer Simpson. She says that Woodard went to her door, and upon her refusal to open for him, he began to kick the door to pieces. She says that she did not know whether he was drunk or sober and fired through the door.

On their last appearance in the police court, when Woodard was tried on a charge of having made a vicious assault on her, she said, while giving her testimony that he would shoot Woodard if ever he returned to molest her.
