Handsome Big Offices Completed in the GALA DAY IN NEW TOWN. Atlas Block. This morning finishing touches were being put on the new home of the Chi-cago & Northwestern in the Atlas block. Today the "Big Road" has the handsomest quarters of any foreign line in the city, in fact, there are few offi-ces in the west that are finer. The offices, situated at 38 west Second South, are decidedly spacious, being of dimensions of 28x90 feet and light and airy. The interior effect is patterned after that of the old quarters on East Temple street, all the furniture and fittings being of polished mahogany, re-lieved by plate glass and green marble baseboards. Behind the spacious coun-ter are three private offices for the use of the general agent and shippers. The occasion was the formal opening of the Cutler block, in which there are three large departments, and three small departments, on the first foor, which are being occupied by dif-ferent business firms. At 5 o'clock the program of sports began with a ball game between Rexburg and the home team. The large crowd in attendances filled the streets surrounding the bail park and the grandstand was filled its overflowing. The game was enlivened by sweet strains of music from the Sugar City and Rexburg bands. The hall game was one of the best and most exciting played in this part of the country. pines near by us as if gleefully splitmore kindling for Hades. The ting rain poured in torrents and seemed more like an ocean turned loose heads than a mere rainfall. Though we were a party of sturdy men used to hardships and not easily daunted, we felt helpless as children in the hands of a mighty Titan. Speechless and awed we stood amidst the awful grand-ure of that terrible storm awaiting our doom. We were spared but none of us care to repeat the experience.

"The next day's journey was exceed-ingly hard on man and beast. The mozos cut paths through the dark forest and jungle and we followed up the steep course climbing an angle of 30 to 40 degrees. The forest jungle was one of the interesting features of our trip. Great pine trees six feet in diame-ter and fully 100 feet to the first limbs; red and Spanish oaks four to five feet through, besides ash and other timber, all covered from root to topmost bough with most luxuriant parasitic growth; some trailing species of cacti or air plants hang from 25 feet, and ablaze with beautiful crimson blossoms; misfletoe fling its leaves and berries 10 and 15 feet in the air; orchids of surpass-ing beauty hiding their priceless treasures in the gloomy forest ferns of in-numerable varieties; mosses of every kind and fungeus growths galore hidden in depth of jungle; all these com-bined with the thick undergrowth pines a darkness dense as night at all hours.

"Early the next day we emerged from the cloudy limits of the jungle into a section where Spanish oaks flourished without the dense undergrowth, the open beneath being covered with thick bunches of salt grass very nutritious for food stock. This class of country extended to an altitude of 11,200 feet, then followed the scrubby fir pine to timber line 11,600 feet where the naked porphyry ricks covered the surface and extended to the crest of the crater. # MORE WORK FOR INSPECTOR RICHARDS.

A citizen of Salt Lake who buys considerable baled hay to feed his horses and cow, asks the Deseret News to say a special word of praise for Mr.

Richards, the sealer of weights and measures, in his campaign against fraudulent dealers and peddlers, which by the way it has repeatedly done. He also asks whether Mr. Richards could not extend his investigations to the baled hay sold in Salt Lake by many dealers. The gentleman says that while many of these bales are beauti-in to be a work of the solution of the solutio ful to look upon from the outside, when opened they discolse a mess of rub-bish that would sicken any horse or cow if they could be induced to eat it They rightly turn up their noses at it, however, but the cost is just the same to the buyer, against twom the baled hay has been weighed by the dealer. The complaint is one, like the bales of hay, that should be looked into.
