

FLANK MOVEMENT OF GEN. BULLER.

Believed to Have Passed Around to the West of Colenso.

14 MILES FROM LADYSMITH.

Sickness at Ladysmith—2,800 in Hospital—Enthusiasm in London—Reports of Boer Strength.

London, Jan. 13.—Gen. Buller's twenty-eight words, announcing his forward movement on Thursday, are interpreted as meaning that he has passed around the western end of the Boer lines at Colenso and is now several miles behind them, and within fourteen miles of Gen. Buller's outposts at Ladysmith. The Boers, a few days ago, had forces with guns at Springfield, where Gen. Buller dates his dispatch. These commands have been, obviously, dislodged, either by fighting or by maneuvering, the Boers retiring across the Tugela as Gen. Buller advances.

From Gen. Buller's dispatch, coupled with the fact that unofficial intelligence from the seat of war has virtually ceased since Monday, the deduction is drawn that important operations are in progress, as he cannot move far without going against the Boer intrenchments.

The death list from enteric fever and dysentery at Ladysmith, averaging from eight to ten daily, is considered more serious than the 420 casualties of Saturday's fight, as it indicates the frightfully unsanitary condition of the beleaguered town. A letter from Ladysmith, dated December 17, says that even then ninety out of 450 men in the hospital of which the writer is a member were sick with dysentery or enteric fever, and, according to a dispatch to the Daily Chronicle, dated January 8th, the daily mortality at Ladysmith, in the hospital, is then numbered 2,800.

Remarkable scenes of patriotism were witnessed in London last evening after a short service held for the volunteers in St. Paul's cathedral. The vast audience was slow to disperse. Ladies stood up on their chairs beckoning and calling to brothers, sons and friends in the ranks, the latter signaling back a sort of great animation ensued. The organist introduced a few bars of the national anthem in concluding the voluntary. The effect of this was magical. First the volunteers and then the congregation took up the strains, and the vast cathedral was filled with enthusiastic song.

The demonstrations were renewed by immense crowds outside. St. Paul's churchyard and Ludgate hill were black with people, and it was impossible for the volunteers to march. Individual members were pulled out of the ranks by their friends and admirers, who carried them on their shoulders and thus raised them over the heads of the crowd. The volunteers were then escorted to the temple. Those who escaped hoisting proceeded slowly, surrounded by clinging people.

Afterward, at the various theaters where the men were entertained, and, yet later on, returning to barracks, these scenes were renewed and the streets were filled until midnight with waving flags.

Mr. Reginald Wynne, chief of the yeomanry recruiting office, says he has refused numerous offers made by Americans for service. Only British subjects were allowed to join. Consequently, he says, the report that several American riders have enlisted in the yeomanry is incorrect. Some Britishers, however, who are alleged to have seen service in the American army in Cuba have been accepted.

Mr. Chamberlain has received telegrams from Ceylon showing that the regiments of the colony has been ordered to send 125 mounted men to South Africa.

An apparently well-informed correspondent of the Morning Post says: "The Boer strength is now heavily augmented by Cape Colonists, and the enemy's fighting forces may be estimated fairly at 100,000 men and 200 guns. The Boers are not compelled to guard their communications. Their grass is good, the crops are growing, vegetables, cattle and sheep are plenty and game is abundant."

New York, Jan. 13.—Discussing the Anglo-Boer war situation the London correspondent of the Tribune says: "No other news has yet been issued with regard to Gen. Buller's flank movement, but the general feeling is expressed in this morning's newspapers is one of hope rather than anxiety. Buller is apparently attempting the turning movement west of Colenso which nearly all military experts were expecting when his first battle was fought, on Dec. 15, directly in front. The military writers have assumed during the last fortnight that there would be a turning movement, but that it would be east of Colenso from Weenen. Some of these experts cling with tenacity to their theory yesterday and described the Boer demonstration as a feint designed to distract Joubert's attention from the real point of attack at the other end of the line, but this explanation was not borne out by General Buller's own presence at Springfield. He had probably been waiting for the completion of his main transport service, which would enable him to carry the main body of his army away from the railway base of supplies and fight day after day on the enemy's flank until a junction could be effected with White's army. The veterans also suggested that he might have lingered in his camp until Gen. Buller's arrival at Capetown in order to allow the new commander-in-chief the privilege of vetting at the last moment the proposed plan of campaign."

Whatever was the precise cause of his action, Gen. Buller was at last in the saddle and a second battle or series of battles would be fought for the relief of Ladysmith. Singularly enough, the only previous reference to this western turning movement which had appeared in print was in a dispatch from the Boer camp at Colenso. It was a vague rumor that the British were building a railway from Free camp toward Potgieter's Drift. The occupation of the south bank of the Tugela at that point by the British could not have been a surprise to the Boers. The drift is at the apex of a long bend or loop and back of it are low ranges of kopjes, with broken turning movement east of Colenso would have threatened the main line of the Boer communications northward, and free to retire westward to their own frontier. A turning movement west of Colenso by Potgieter's Drift, if successful, would cut off the direct approach of the Free State burghers to their main passes, but would not block their way northward unless Gen. Buller should attack in the rear.

The clubs were crowded with lounge-larks last night eager to hear the important news which they were expected to receive.

From Gen. Buller's dispatch, coupled with the fact that unofficial intelligence from the seat of war has virtually ceased since Monday, the deduction is drawn that important operations are in progress, as he cannot move far without going against the Boer intrenchments.

ant news which they were confident would come before morning. There was an unwelcome air of bustle and cheerfulness at the war office. But hour after hour passed without disclosure. There was a general conviction that the crisis of the campaign had come and that General Buller was in a position to retrieve his reputation by a series of great strokes. The dangerous character of this flank movement by which his own camp at Chieveley would be exposed to a counter attack by the Boers was also discerned, and the probability of a series of desperate battles sobered every eye. The process of reconstructing the cabinet, which has been the chief employment of the marplots and pessimists was suspended until Buller could be heard from. The message which would electrify or doom to fresh disappointment the English people had not come at midnight.

As the names in the casualty list of the Ladysmith battle represent eighteen military organizations, it is clear that nearly the whole karrison was engaged in the seventeen hours' fight. This list disposes effectually of the Boer estimate of losses, which Gen. Buller took needless pains to correct. Those losses were evidently heavy unless Gen. White's men were forced to spare their ammunition.

A Boer telegram from Pretoria now admits that while the burghers were successful at the beginning of the storming of the plateau at Ladysmith on the 6th, subsequently they were compelled to abandon two of their positions.

From Boer advices it appears that last Sunday at Colenso the British were beaten back with loss.

A Berlin telegram to the Standard says the summoning of an international conference to discuss and conclude a convention on international maritime law to be signed by the powers interested in the matter is now under consideration. The text of Lord Salisbury's reply to the American government serves to alter the opinion of experts in international law on one point. Lord Salisbury has not set a bad precedent for the United Kingdom, which in any future war with a European power will have no neutral Delagoa Bay, whereas every continental nation will have neutral territory bordering upon it. He has ruled that breadstuffs are not contraband unless destined for the enemy's forces. This decision exempts food stuffs not specially designed for an army or fleet, and is in accord with the naval orders given the American cruisers during the war with Spain. Lord Salisbury's action, while based upon rulings of English courts, is wholly in accord with the continuous American practice which discriminated between provisions for the ordinary use of life in the enemy's country and provisions for military or naval use.

Piano Strike Still On.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—All negotiations with the piano manufacturers were declared off at a meeting of the piano makers' union last night, and with the exception of the settlement made with the firm of Story and Clark, matters are in the same condition they were a month ago. Not only did the union refuse to enter into further negotiations with the manufacturers until the latter agreed to accept the union's demands, but they decided also to refuse to work in any factory where non-union men are employed, which is equivalent to a demand for the recognition of the union, a claim they at one time abandoned.

The stand of the union is tantamount to a refusal to abide by the position taken by President Gompers. There is now little probability of resumption of work for some time, unless the manufacturers recede from their position.

Sensible Hint on Food

FROM A
California Woman

"If you could hear all the experiences I have been at some pains to investigate, you would put a warning in the largest type on the boxes of Grape-Nuts to the amount mentioned in these directions."

True you do say "Grape-Nuts food is condensed; eat but three or four heaping teaspoons at a meal," but the food seemed to fill such a long-felt want, and everyone found it so delicious, either alone or in combination with some other material, that overlooking the small type announcement of its being condensed, they have eaten too much, and when the body is repeatedly given more food than it can use, even if that food be most delicious, there is a natural revulsion, and the long-looked-for and valuable food is laid aside.

I advise persons who have had this experience to put Grape-Nuts on their menu again and eat never more than four teaspoonsful at a time. Then one gets the powerful rebuilding strength of the food and looks forward with zest to each coming meal. It has been a great blessing to our family. Mrs. W. F. Baker, Los Angeles, California.

CHOYNSKI SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

The Decision of White Generally Upheld by the Press.

MISTAKE ABOUT THE TIME.

Many Declare that Joe was Entitled to More Consideration—Not a Few Hint at Jobbery.

New York, Jan. 13.—The decision of Johnny White in awarding the bout at the Broadway A. C. last night to McCoy, is quite generally upheld by the morning papers here, although two of them claim that Choyinski was treated unfairly. All the papers argue that the mistake of the time keeper was deplorable and that in that respect the Californian did not receive 1/2 just dues. Time Keeper Dunn refused to discuss the fight. He closed his watch and left the building. But he was seen to protest to the referee at the end of the second round that he was right.

Choyinski, in an interview with a newspaper representative said: "I was robbed of the fight. I knocked McCoy out in the second round with a right swing on the jaw and he was down twelve or fifteen seconds. Both time keepers, the club's and my own, agreed on that, and Dunn rang the bell to indicate that the fight was over. It was called a round, but McCoy had one minute and forty seconds to recover."

"In the third round McCoy knocked me down after the bell rang. I am a little deaf, but I heard the bell. McCoy did not. It knocked me out and I was unable to come up for the next round. I was robbed."

McCoy said: "I am sorry there was a misunderstanding about the time. I was not out although I was pretty weak. I was careless and got a punch on the jaw in the second round that dazed me."

"The fourth time Choyinski knocked me down I took my time and listened to the referee's count. I got up just as he counted ten and then the bell rang."

As he showed that I had considerable strength left by landing on Choyinski's jaw and stopping him."

"The punch I knocked him out with was started before the bell rang in the third round."

"I fought fairly and if a mistake was made it was not mine. I thought I could whip Choyinski. I did, and I think I can again."

Referee White said: "McCoy was not knocked out. I counted nine and McCoy got up just as I counted ten. Then the bell rang and I and the fighters thought the round was over."

"It seems there was a misunderstanding. The time keeper had taken it upon himself to count McCoy and rang the bell. He had no business to do it. It was my place and I say McCoy was not out. He was up before I finished counting ten."

"The punch McCoy struck Choyinski as the bell rang was unpremeditated and while it knocked Choyinski down, did not affect the result. Choyinski was very sick from a punch in the stomach when the bell rang in the third round. He refused to come from his corner and I was compelled to give the fight to McCoy."

Many of the spectators when seen around the up town hotels late last night declared that Choyinski should have been given more consideration and there were not a few who hinted at "jobbery." On the other hand the managers of the club and McCoy's followers aver that everything was fair and that Referee White could, under the circumstances, have rendered no other decision.

Round 1—McCoy was first to land with a left hook on the jaw. Joe broke away and McCoy forced him to his corner, where Choyinski slipped to the floor. The referee rang the bell and McCoy quickly and placed a left swing on McCoy's jaw, but the Kid sent back a couple of hard lefts on the face and a stiff right over the heart. McCoy had all the better of the round.

Round 2—Choyinski sent the Kid to the floor with a right on the jaw. McCoy took nine seconds of the count and when he got up Choyinski sent him down again with a left on the neck. Twice more McCoy was felled, and he went to his corner bleeding badly from the nose and mouth.

Round 3—McCoy fought like a crazy man when he rushed out of his corner, and Choyinski was equally erratic. They set all ring rules at defiance, but McCoy got the better of the Western man at quarters. Choyinski's backers made a bet that the Kid was too spry on his feet, and Joe slipped to the floor in a vain attempt to land a swing. When Joe got up he ran into a clinch, from which the referee had to separate the men.

The Choyinski landed a right on the jaw, and McCoy was queer in his leg movement, but went in and mixed it up. In a hot rally McCoy hooked his right to the jaw, Choyinski landing his left at the same moment, and both men went down. Just as they got up the referee rang the bell and the fighters were mixing things up in lively fashion. Neither man evidently layed the going, and McCoy whipped his right over on the jaw and Choyinski fell. There were cries of "Foul, foul!" as Choyinski's backers made a bet that the Californian was unable to respond when the bell called him for the fourth.

Choyinski's seconds threw up the sponge as McCoy rushed from his corner for the opening of the fourth round, and McCoy was declared the winner.

McCoy was a positive favorite in the betting. A few wagers were made at odds of 100 to 35, but there were many offers at 100 to 20. Even money that Choyinski would last ten rounds was plentiful. McCoy's backers made a number of bets at 100 to 50 that McCoy would knock his man out inside of ten rounds.

Danny Duane and George Jansen, both of this city, met in the preliminary, and Duane stopped Jansen in less than two minutes in the first round. Duane was then pitted against Jim McKeever for a six-round go at catch weights. This bout resulted in a draw.

DIED AT THE FIGHT.

The spectator who fell dead at the McCoy-Choyinski fight is believed to have been Byron S. Sabin of this city. He appeared to spectators who sat near him to be very highly excited over the fight, and at the end of the second round expressed the opinion that McCoy had been counted out by the referee. The man to whom Sabin sat next noticed that at the sound of the bang for the third round Sabin leaned heavily against him, and at the conclusion of the fight, when he arose to leave the building, Sabin fell to the floor.

TROTTER ASSOCIATIONS PLANS.

Conference Devoted to Revising the Rules—Meet Again in February.

The representatives of the American and National Trotting associations, who met in New York for a conference beginning Wednesday, completed their work last night and adjourned. The last day of the conference was devoted to revising the rules of the two associations and making them as uniform as possible. The proposals of the conference will be submitted to the congresses of the associations for approval. The national trotting association holds its congress in this city in February, while the congress of the American Trotting association will be held in Chicago beginning May 3.

BEAN BROKE BOTH HANDS.

A Game Battle of Twenty Rounds Declared a Draw.

Leadville, Colo., Jan. 12.—A thousand people saw Paddy Purcell and Purson Willard Bean fight twenty rounds to a draw tonight at Gavin's Athletic arena. It was a terrible battle for the middle-weight championship of the West. Purcell led repeatedly and used aggressive tactics, but Bean was so shifty that Paddy could not do him any serious damage. Bean broke both his hands in the course of the fight, but kept up a game battle to the end.

KID MCCOY WINS.

The Decision Caused Much Disaffection and Adverse Comment.

A New York dispatch of Jan. 12th says: Kid McCoy got the decision over Joe Choyinski in a bout which lasted three rounds at the Broadway Athletic club tonight. Choyinski would have had the fight in the second round were it not for an accident as to timekeeping. He had felled the Kid four times, but the timekeeper pulled the bell as McCoy was counted for the limit of ten seconds, and this saved the Kid from absolute defeat. Choyinski's seconds protested vigorously, but Referee Johnny White, while knowing the round was short by many seconds, stood by the official timekeeper and ordered the men to continue when the gong rang again for the opening of the third round. Choyinski's cleverness outpointed and overshadowed all of McCoy's clever ring work.

McCoy, having escaped defeat from the second round, was a "lucky" in the third, and the blow which he sent Choyinski down and out was delivered almost two seconds after the bell had rung for the completion of the third round. There was a great deal of noise in the building as the time gong sounded, and undoubtedly neither man heard the clang of the bell.

In the northeastern portion of the building there was a tumult, caused by one of the spectators dropping dead. The man was very excited during the bout and expressed himself freely as to McCoy's being out before the bell rang. He slid from his seat dead as the bell sounded for the beginning of the third round.

Col. Mike Padden, timekeeper for McCoy, said afterward that the round was clipped by forty seconds; that McCoy was groggy and practically out when the gong rang.

Choyinski, while feeling rather sore, said that he had no fault to find with the referee, and in a conversation with the latter exonerated White from all blame. "I had him licked good and sure," said Choyinski and had the timekeeper acted right I had McCoy out. However, I am satisfied that nothing was done by either the referee or official timekeeper with an intention of doing me a wrong. It was an unfortunate thing that the time should have been miscalculated, as I had won and won clearly."

After the bout Choyinski and McCoy signed articles to meet again under the same conditions, the bout to take place at the Broadway Athletic club on February 20th.

POSTAL CLERKS MEET.

Reorganize, and Are Now Members of the National Association.

A special meeting of the postoffice officials was held in their rooms in the Dooly block last night, at which they reorganized, and now their organization is part of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, whose headquarters are in New York. The local branch belonged to the National Association, which was merged into the National United association involving local reorganization. J. L. Wyler was elected president; C. C. Slade, vice president; A. A. Smith, corresponding secretary; E. G. Chambers, recording secretary, and A. A. Harper, treasurer. The president will choose seven members as an advisory board.

There are twenty-three members of the Salt Lake organization. There is a national organization both of the letter-carriers, and the railway mail clerks. The National United Association of Postoffice Clerks will hold its annual convention at Atlanta City, N. J., in August.

Pain in the Back

A Sure Sign of Kidney Trouble

A Trial Bottle Sent Free of Medicine That Will Stop It

Let us give you a piece of advice: Pain in the back is an almost infallible sign of kidney disease. A sure sign is the condition of your urine; if you have a pain in the back then look to the condition of your urine. It is easily done. Take a glass tumbler and fill it with urine; after it has stood 24 hours, if it has sediment, it is milky or cloudy, if it is pale or discolored, stringy orropy, your Kidneys and Bladder are in a dangerous condition and need immediate attention, or the consequences may prove fatal.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the one medicine that really cures all diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation and corrects the bad effects of whiskey and beer on the system. It is wonderful how it makes that pain in the back disappear, how it relieves the desire to urinate often, especially at night, and drives away that scalding pain in passing water and in a remarkably short time makes you well and strong. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold at all drug stores for $1.00 a bottle, or six bottles for $5.00.

If you would like to try this wonderful medicine you can do so, absolutely free. Send your name and address to the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., when a free bottle, together with a pamphlet of valuable medical advice, will be sent you by mail postpaid, providing you mention this paper when you write. The publishers of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.
