R. M. Hall, a civil engineer was given 50 days in the city jail yesterday afternoon, for stealing a set of instruments from a drafting office which he expected to

Secretary Bateman of the D. A. & M. society has just published the list for the Utah state fair of 1904. The fair will be held Oct. 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 next and there is a fine array of classified premiums covering the usual wide array of local industrial activity.

The last rain that visited this section turned into snow in the Wasatch mountains, and deposited a foot of snow on the Kyune quarry branch running out of Cotton. This has delayed repairs there for a few days, and consequently the shipment of stone.

Manager George T. Odell of the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company has bought a commodious and handsome desk made of enamel steel, which is made to resemble old English oak. The difference can not be detected without close examination.

He says the poor and uncertain livestock market makes the outlook discouraging.
But cattle are in good condition, and so are the ranges, and there is some trading done.

R. F. Grant has received a copy of the Marconigram, a daily paper published on board of one of the Atlantic liners with news furnished by the Marconi wireless telegraph. The specials and news narratives thus received make quite a display and interesting reading.

Prof. Goldmark played a number of Wagner melodies and lectures on the same yesterday afternoon, before the faculty and students of All Hallows college, to the great delight of his audience. Arthur Pedersen played a Max Burch violin solo, Prof. Goldmark playing the piano accompaniment, and the latter praised the young virtuoso very highly.

Mrs. Nellie Mosby has filed suit in the federal court against the Fidelity & Casualty company of New York to recover $1,500 on an accident policy, which was in force on Oct. 23, 1902, when her husband was accidentally killed. It is set forth in the complaint that her husband, Samuel W. Mosby, was killed and fell down a manway and was instantly killed.

J. E. Conrath has returned from a Wyoming trip. He says the loss of sheep for the past winter will not amount to over 1 per cent, and wool prices are ranging from 13 1/2 to 14 1/2 cents per pound. The quality of the wool is better than last year, owing to the easy winter, and good condition of the winter ranges, and the staple is longer. Mr. Conrath thinks there must be half a million sheep in Carbon county.

Articles of incorporation of the Young Men's Republican club have been filed in the county clerk's office. Its officers are: P. Christensen, president; J. J.
Moore, vice president; Horace H.
Smith, treasurer; J. L. May, secretary, with C. S. Buckwalter, first ward; P. J. White, third ward; Dana T. Smith, fourth ward; W. J. Leaker, fifth ward, as the executive committee.

Dun's Review tells of the business conditions existing in this city for the week ending Saturday afternoon.
"Trade both wholesale and retail is still retarded by unfavorable weather.
Clothing, shoes, and notions are slightly improved. Trade in hardware is fair and in drugs steady. The grocery trade is ahead of last year, owing largely to the elimination, through liquidation, of one large grocery house. Collections are slow. Stricter weather still delays sheep shearing and the wool movement."

A man named Brown, waiter by profession, indulged in the cup yesterday last, and while in the act of drinking, and while thus dallying with the serpent, hired 12 waiters to go to work for the Vienna Cafe, collecting one dollar from each as a commission. Brown said he was head waiter at the cafe and was authorized to do the hiring. Then Brown took the first freight train out of town. The new waiters showed up all right at the restaurant, and were not in very good humor on finding out that they were the victims of a cruel hoax. The 12 set out to find Brown, but he was not.

New England Colporteur Makes Report Which is Sent to the Deseret News

TRIBUNE USES IT AS "SPECIAL"

One More Case of Journalistic Imposition and Deception by a Paper Void Of Professional Honor.

The Deseret News last night received through the mails an article from Rev.
James H. Ross, of 17 Lancaster street, North Cambridge, Massachusetts. It deals with the report of the missionary travels in Utah and surrounding states, of Mr. George D. Peacock, who, by the way, it will be seen has the usual lurid imagination of his ilk.

Associated with the coming of the report to the Deseret News is an interesting fact. It seems that the Salt Lake Tribune also received a copy of the report in the same mail. This morning it appears prominently displayed with flashing headlines, with a Boston date line, May 10, in the first column, first page of the paper, as a "Special to the Tribune," carrying the impression that the Tribune with wonderful enterprise is furnishing news at great expense, which its contemporaries are not. There were other so-called "specials" from different parts of the country which exhibited the same petty larceny proclivities. The Boston "Special to the Tribune" which came to the Deseret News as straight correspondence follows:

George D. Peacock, Jr., who has been laboring with success for nine years as a colporteur of the American Tract society among the Mormons of Utah and adjacent states, sends the following narrative report of his work during the past year. He writes:

"During the year I canvassed the cities of Sevier, Sanpete, Carbon, Utah, Wasatch, Summit and Weber, in the state of Utah, and the counties of Mesa and Delta in Colorado. These are divided into three principal categories, namely, farmers, miners and railroad-men. The Mormons are invariably farmers and stock-raisers, and claim the supremacy as the pioneers and colonizers of the arid West.

"The Roman Catholics comprise the principal population of the mining camps and railroad towns, and constitute the laboring classes in mining and railroading enterprises.

"A few Protestant families are found in almost all communities of Mormon-dom; although they do not exercise a very strong influence for Christianity, their established permanence in a neighborhood is always a source of encouragement to the missionary colporteur.

"The entire population of the West is small and scattered in proportion to the great extent of the field, for these intermountain states are magnificent in size, and the distance between towns and villages is sometimes great.

"About the only class of reading matter in the family of the Latter-day Saint is the Semi-Weekly Deseret News, the organ of the First Presidency of the Mormon Church, and a few Mormon Church works, such as the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, Pearl of Great Price, 'Key to the Mormon Mythology,' etc. So little realization do the Mormons have of good religious books, so little do they understand the true worth, quality and merit of a standard volume, that one must educate them into the appreciation of our Christian literature, and almost offer it to them without cost, before they will receive it into their homes.

"The Mormons are so much afraid of being influenced against their own religion that they are suspicious of publications that have not been indorsed or sanctioned by the First Presidency and the 'High Council.'

"They have severely opposed me in some places. I was arrested in four towns during the year and fined for selling Christian literature and the Bible without a license.

"My statistics for the year are as follows: I made 4,857 visits in the families of Mormons and Catholics. Of these visits four-fifths were at Mormon homes. Special prayer and religious conversation with individuals and families were held in 1,650 homes. I found 589 families without Christian literature, and 390 homes had not even a copy of the Holy Scriptures. I delivered 104 addresses at religious services and was privileged to help organize five Sunday schools and three young people's societies."
