A DAY DREAM.

II CHRONICLES.—CHAPTER 6.

And it came to pass in the last days, even in the days which we write, that a certain man went up unto a high hill that overlooked the city.

And he gazed with wonder and delight upon the beautiful scene before him, for he beheld the great and marvelous works, that a peculiar people had wrought.

Yea, he beheld how, as if by magic, a great and peaceful city, teeming with luxury, and wherein dwelt those whose labor had brought to pass, from sterility, the thrift he there beheld, and while he pondered upon the surrounding scenes before him, lo, a day dream burst upon his vision.

Yea, he beheld that until recently, this peculiar people, sat under their own vine and fig tree, and were content in getting gain by the labor of toil.

Yea, they were prospered exceedingly until they became the envy of the whole earth, when suddenly a dark cloud came and hung over this beautiful city.

Yea, the cloud gathered in thickness and darkness, and it gathered in from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south.

And many persons were running to and fro in the streets of the city. And though the sun gave her light, yet the darkness was felt, at noonday.

And while he looked and pondered, he beheld a marvelous wonder; yea, he beheld, as it were, the great triumphal chariot of Baal, (so named because it was expected to triumph over everything.)

And the wheels thereof were of massive iron that they might crush everything, even to grind to powder that which they should pass over.

And upon the axles thereof there was a large van, likened unto a cage, whose bars were made of burnished brass; yea they shone with lustrous splendor as they vied to eclipse the splendor of the sun.

And upon these bars of brass were written numerous inscriptions. Yea, upon the front there could be read: "Crusade! rapine! lawlessness! distress!

And upon the rear thereof was written, "hatred! malice! envy," and upon the sides thereof were written, "Edmunds law! down with constitutional liberty! away with religion!"

And there was a great banner, scalloped with streamers, whose scallops were bound in crimson; and upon this great banner was written in letters of blood "the wife question!"

And behold the great chariot was drawn by numerous chargers, fierce and strong, and the stamping of their iron hoofs, as they passed along was such as caused timid men and women to shudder.

Yea, and from their mouth issued blasphemies, for they had heads like unto heads of men, and their voices were as the voices of men, and they cursed God in their hearts; and they exalted themselves above the children of men, saying, Great are we! Our king ruleth!

And their power was granted unto them from their king, and it was to continue even for certain days.

Yea, and while he looked upon this marvelous wonder, behold he saw within the van, a huge beast, and it had three heads and many horns.

And unto the beast was given great power, even the power of the king was given under his signet ring, for they were they in whom he had confidence. And they uttered many marvelous sayings, and what one head uttered the other heads agreed to, for, be it known, notwithstanding this beast had three heads, it had but one body.

And out of their mouths proceeded strange words; yea, very strange, even to the making of edicts, like unto a poisonous serpent, that stingeth to the punishment of man; even so their edicts were filled with venom even to the stinging of the people in their most tender parts.

Yea, to the tearing asunder of husband and wife, to the breaking up of all sacred ties; to the scattering and peeling of innocent children; to the breaking of every heart-string, even to the prison and the death do they lead men and women by their decrees.

For, say they, we have this power from the king, and we will exercise all the power we have to this end.

And they sang a song: Yea, it mattereth not to us if there be lamentation in the land, even as in the days of old, "when was a voice heard, lamentation and weeping, and great mourning."

Yea, we ride in the chariot of Baal; we are drawn by chargers fierce and strong, and the wheels are massive even to the crushing of every living thing that we pass over; yea, we are in the train of Beelzebub, and his train is on dress parade.

Therefore, flourish ye the trumpets; make ye a great noise with the harp and with the psalter, and with the brass bands; and proclaim our coming. Clear ye the way before our feet, for we are exalted.

Yea, we sit upon thrones; yea, our chief head sitteth upon the throne in the chief city of the Saints, and our other heads shall sit upon thrones in Beaver, in Provo and Ogden.

Yea, and many men shall bow down in reverence to the words that we shall utter, and their tongues must confess the judgment.

Yea, behold our retinue is great, for we have columns of men on foot and in their easy chairs of conveyance, to do our bidding.

And many were their sayings, which are not meet to write; for they made great parade, even to the attracting of the multitudes of the east; for their power was to continue even during the pleasure of the king.

And it came to pass that there was a great flourish of trumpets, even by the sulphur band; yea, a band of their own number, whose uniforms were of deep and darkening colors, yea their coats were of yellow, of the color of sulphur, and the smell thereof was of the lower regions, and their vesture was of green and their pants were of scarlet, and they wore helmets of steel upon their heads, and their countenances were of brass, for they were very brazen in their deportment.

Now be if known that all these things were shown forth unto this man, yea, he saw in his mind's eye some of their inward workings.

And it came to pass that in one of their secret councils a grand carnival was arranged; yea, it was to take place under the management of the crusaders.

Now it mattereth not where this was to be held, whether upon the streets or in some spacious building; and the chief engineer was to do the prompting.

And the music was by the sulphur band, whose strains were said to be the sweetest that could be produced from the lower regions.

And all the elite (?) were to be invited; yea, including the beautiful ones, and some women; yea, and all the sneaks, and spotters, and deputies, and all they who maketh merry over the havoc of the crusade.

For be it known a peculiar call was invented for the occasion, and great glee was expected to follow the rendering of the call by the prompter, who was the chief engineer of the grinding mill.

Yea, and much merriment was to be had; therefore, when the music sounded for the call, they all selected their partners for the occasion, for it was to be a grand march.

Yea, the call was something in this wise: Forward on the right; forward on the left; forward on the front; forward in the rear; at each forward movement swing supposnes; balance on the door-steps; balance all around on the side-walks; grand counter march; bobors to judges; cross over and balance; keep swinging your subpoenas; chain all around, and grand promenade to the pen.

Besides this evolution, there was a grand to and fro movement, executed in the small hours of the night.

Now, when this call was given, behold it was duly executed by the performers, and because of the color with which it was done, it caused Beelzebub to smile a ghastly smile; for be it known he smiled not much unless he was greatly pleased.

Therefore these things continue to be done, and notwithstanding the shining of the sun, the dark cloud still hangeth over this beautiful city.

Yet, as day chaseth night, so this day dream was brought to a close; but it teacheth this lesson:

Though the powers of darkness are great, there is one greater; though the king hath power and he giveth it unto the beast, yet their days are numbered; though the wicked rule and cause mourning in the land, yet shall their day of ruling cease; though the cloud is dark and it gathereth in force, yet shall the winds of heaven blow it away; though the wheat and tares grow together until the day of harvest, yet shall they be separated; though many fall, and deny their religion to please those in power, yet the true born Son of Zion rejoiceth, for he knoweth the fall of Babylon is near; though all earth and hell conspire against us, yet our hairs are all numbered, and happy are we if we do right.

BEES AND HONEY.

An Extraordinary Yield.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 16, 1885.

Editor Deseret News:

The honey harvest still continues very good and bee masters who are alive to their interests avail themselves of abundance of healthy botanical sweet.

I learned while on a brief visit to Davis County, that Sister Cordelia M. Barlow, of Bountiful, had recently taken out 1,500 pounds of honey. About half of the amount is from her own hives; the balance is from the neighbors' as she has in hand about 200 hives in all.

Brother J. K. Crosby took 5,000 lbs. of honey last year from 35 hives of bees while one of his neighbors with more swarms took much less than half of the amount. It is rumored that considerable foul brood exists in the county, and steps are being taken to have a new bee inspector appointed. The judge of the county signifies his willingness to appoint one, and a petition is to be presented for the purpose of securing his appointment.

A visit is anticipated in the bee interest to Davis County by John Morgan, Samual McKay and Edward Stevenson on Saturday, the 18th inst.

As far as we have learned, the present year is an eventful one for honey.

From one of my first hives—a Chaff hive of 23 frames, very strong and healthy—I have extracted this year, up to July 14th, 210 lbs. of honey, as follows: June 25th, 40lbs.; July 3, 70lbs.; July 8th, 45lbs.; July 14th 55lbs.—In all twenty day's time, an average of over 10lbs. a day, which is an exceptional yield. Fifty pounds is a good average yield from an apiary in the usual season.

A SPIDER ON WHEELS.

In passing the Studebaker Repository to-day we noticed a number of well known gentlemen examining a new style of vehicle known as the "Spider Surrey Wagon;" the wagon is well named and can only be appreciated by a personal examination of its handsomely wrought curves and concave panels; it represents to a wonderful degree, the thought, skill and workmanship necessary to the production on such a design, carried out into a beautiful working model. Carriage building is fast becoming one of the finer arts in which men and women of cultivated tastes take great pleasure in examining and in keeping posted on the changes and new models continually being produced. The Studebaker Repository is a room full of artistic work, and a place where one can spend an hour in a pleasant and profitable way. Tais is also a house in which you can purchase any kind of a vehicle that "runs on wheels." While in the carriage department you get your choice of four grades of Buggies and Carriages, at prices that no other house can compete with, considering the quality of the manufacturers and their adaptability to this peculiar climate. Mr. J. B. Glass, who is a connoisseur in his particular line of trade, devotes his entire time and attention to the securing of new and useful styles, and loses no opportunity to improve and produce the latest and most fashionable turnouts manufactured by the Studebakers' especially adapted to this market. The Carriage Department of this great company is under the special management of Mr. J. F. Studebaker, who has made his particular branch a life study. He spends a part of each year in Europe in the interests of his business, and by combining English, French and German styles with his American experience of strength, lightness, style and durability combined, places his work in the list as a "world beater," or as the Studebakers motto reads, "Labor Omnia Vincit."

THE DESERET HOSPITAL, UNDER the most favorable auspices, is now open for the reception of patients, having removed to that large and commodious building lately occupied by the Deseret University. The appointments are new and of the first order. The halls and rooms are thoroughly ventilated, and warmed by a furnace and steam heating apparatus extending through the whole building. Good and capable nurses are supplied, and every attention paid to the comfort and welfare of its inmates. The medical department comprises a fine stock of drugs, and a line of some of the most valuable and elegant surgical instruments and appliances ever imported into the Territory. Arrangements have been made to secure the first medical talent the city affords for the benefit of patients. A specialty is made of the diseases of women, and correspondence is solicited from the afflicted.

H. B. CLAWSON, President.
W. F. ANDERSON, Medical Supt.
M. P. HUGHES, House Surgeon.
E. B. WELLS, Secretary.

A limited number of students will be taken, who will board in the Institution, receive instruction preparatory for future studies, and will be expected in return to devote a certain portion of their time and labor to attendance on the sick and other requirements connected with the Hospital. Correspondence on this subject is solicited from Bishops and other authorities in the settlements. d&w
