Regarding Home Rule for Ireland. He Threw Down the Ganntlet.

London, Feb. 19 .- The pointed reference to Ireland contained in King Edward's speech to the house of parliament toda, coupled with the announcement of the determination to grant constitutional government to the Transval, brought these two questions im-mediately to the forefront in the debate in the house of lords and the house of commons on the motions on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. In the former house, the debate was almost perfunctory except where Lord Lansdowne, assuming his new role of Lansdowne, assuming his new role of leader of the opposition in the upper house, pointed out certain dangers connected with the proposed changes and incidentally commented on the Al-geziras conference and the situation in Macedonia, warning the government of possible difficulties arising in the near east unless Great Britain maintained a firm attitude. It was in the house of commons that

It was in the house of commons that the debate on the address became in-teresting, when Joseph Chamberlain, in the absence of former Premier Baifour, took the place of the leader of the op-position, and in a brilliant and lengthy speech, attacked the government on all rounds and especially on its South Afpoints, and especially on its South Af-rican policy. He threw down the gauntrican polley. He threw down the gaunt-let regarding home rule for Ireland. Regarding tariff reforem, Mr. Cham-berlain promised to give the govern-ment several bad quarter-hours. Mr. Chabmerlain's speech undoubted-ly was the feature of the first day of the house of commons. The small coterie of Unionists took heart under his spirited leadership, and his brilliant thrusts and sarcasm were greeted with the heartlest cheers. Even some of Mr. Chamberlain's opponents some of Mr. Chamberlain's opponents could not refrain from according him the meed of acclaim for his remarkable attack. Premier Campbell-Bannerman's reply was lengthy and perfectly good humor-ed, the speaker assuming that his po-sition was one of such streadth that he could afford to be generous.

The reference to Ireland in the king's speech is received with minuted feelings and some degree of doubt. The Nation-alists are non-committal and decline to accept as more than a possibility this seeming step toward home rule. John Redmond, who followed the pre-mier at the night session, and the nounced that the Nationalists would not be satisfied with anything short of complete self-government. On the other hand some of the less radical Irish members do not hesitate to say that the clause in the king's speech means a modified form of home rule, and inti-mate that Mr. Redmond would be satis-fied with such a step, as it would surve-ity guarantee home rule in the future. That it will not ag-gregate more than $0.00,000 is a report credited by Chicago backers who have had occasion to make an investigation of the former traction promiter's holdings. Since the death of Mr. Yerkes much of the former traction promiter's holdings. Since the death of Mr. Yerkes much of the somer traction promiter's holdings. Foreign Members of Board of Consulting Engineers a Unit for the Sea Level Type.

Washington, Feb. 19,-President Roosevelt today transmitted to Congress the report of the board of consulting engineers upon the Panama canal, together with the detter of Seey. "To the Senate and House of Representatives: I submit herewith the leter of the secretary of war, transmtiting the report of the board of consulting engineers upon the Panama canal, and the report of the isthmian canal commission thereon, together with a letter written to the chairman of the

"After careful study of the papers submitted and full and exhaustive con-aideration of the whole subject. I con-cur in this recommendation. "It will be noticed that the American engineers upon the consulting board and upon the combision by a more than two to one majority favor the lock ca-nal, whereas the foreign engineers are a unit against it. I think this is parity to be explained by the fact that the great traffic canal of the old world is the Sucz canal, a sea-level canal, whereas the great traffic canal of the new world is the Sault Sie, Marle canal, a lock ca-nal. Although the latter, the So is closed to mavigation during the winter closed to navigation during the winter months, it carries annually three times the traffic of the Sucz canal. The trouble with the American people is that they want everything to be done the next morning. The danger is not that we begin too late to dig, but that we have been active the traffic of the Sucz canal. "In my judgment, the very able ar-gument of the majority of the board of consulting engineers is vitlated by their faflure to pay proper heed to the les-sons taught by the construction and operation of the Soc canal. It must be home in mind, as the commission point is out, that there is no question of building what has been picturesquely termed 'the straits of Panama;' that is, a waterway through which the largest vessels could go with safety at uninterrupted high speed. in the case of a lock canal as proposed in the napers forwarded herewith, and I call especial attention to the fact that the chief engineer, who will be mainly responsible for the success of this michty engineering feat, and who has therefore a peculiar personal interest in judging aright, is emphatically and earnestly in favor of the lock canal pro-ject and against the sea-level project. "A careful study of the reports reem to establish a strong probability that the following are the facts: "The sea-level canal would be slight-by less exposed to damage in the event of war; the running expenses, apart from the heavy cost of interst upon the amount employed to build it, would be less, and for small shins the time of free still would probably be less. Upon the other hand, the lock canal at a level of 50 feet or thereabouts would not cost much more than half as much to build and could be built in about half the time, while there would be very much less risk connected with building it, and for brigg shins the strong the ould be reas the tense that is the strong the and for brigg shins the strong the built and could be built in about half the time, while there would be very much less risk connected with building it, and for brigg shins transit would be ould be the taking into account the builting the output of a level of the builting the output of a level of built and could be built and builting the output of the amount saved in builting the output of the amount saved in intercest upon the amount saved in building the actual cost of maintenance would be less.

Moreover, what has been actually demonstrated in making and operating the great lock canal, the Soo, a more important arrery of traffic than the great sea-level canal, the Suez, goes to support the opinion of the min-ority of the consulting board of en-gineers and of the majority of the isthmian canal commission as to the superior shelve, feasibility and desira. billity of building a lock canal at Pana. billing of building a lock canal at Pana-

"The law new on our statute books seems to contemplate a lock canal. In my judgment, a lock canal as herein recommended is advisable.

"If the Congress directs that a son-level canal be constructed, its direction will, of course, be carried out. Other-wise the canal will be built on sub-stantially the plan for a lock canal outthe found actually necessary, including possibly the site of the dam on the Facific side. "THEODORE ROOSEVELT. "The White House, Feb. 19, 1906."

The letter of Sec. Taft treats at length the recommendation of the board and the commission, and discusses the reasons why he is led to approve the construction of a lock canal instead of a sea-level canal. In closing, he invites attention to the satisfactory character of the discussion of the two types of canal, "by the greatest canal engineers of the world," which, he says, insures to the president and to Congress an opportunity to consider all the arguments, pro and con, in reaching a proper conclusion.
