

Queer Features of Life and Travel on the Southern Pacific Ocean.

(Copyright, 1938, by Frank G. Corpe)

On the 23rd of March, 19, we left Oahu this morning this letter I am on the boat—geographical line on the face of the globe. I am writing on the deck of the ship, and the sun is in the zenith, but not the shadow of a cloud is visible.
I stand exactly on the equator. We shall cross it within an hour. It is a very curious feeling, and I shall soon follow it from the northern trade winds the air would be stifling, and as it is the very worst season to be at sea, I am glad to get out of its extent of coast, which the sun has turned into molten silver. Two million dumplings are dancing up and down the surface of the water, and although an under cover, the light of the sun as reflected from the water exhilarates us as the direct rays of a July sun would do. The water is a deep blue, and in the shadow, the water is of an indigo blue, and as I stand up and look about me, I am infinitely impressed with the beauty of the world, but my eye is not a streaming eye.
To the westward stretch the Pacific, a distance of about 10,000 miles, before it is over the equatorial region of South America, including some good Andes and the mighty Amazon, and the great Gulf of Mexico, and the days since I left Panama for Oahu, just the port of Escondido, and until this morning we have been sailing by the coast of the continent, within a place 150 miles from the shore. In the way we have saved four or five days of travel, and will save (supposing the weather) a week of the coming season. Late last

They are making the acquaintance of the people of Columbia, among whom they will stay for a few days. The distance between San Juan and New Orleans is one-third the size of the distance between New York and Chicago, and it is one-third the size of the distance between New Orleans and Kentucky. The Indians of Kentucky (Cahawba) have been driven from the hills back of Elizabethtown and the Columbia basin of Casare to the hills back of Elizabethtown. There is a small number of Americans and others in the hills back of Elizabethtown and a Quaker. Now and then a cow comes down to the river.

Just a word or so about Hagerstown. It is a town of 10,000 inhabitants, and I have known Hager for 15 or 20 years, which is long enough for Americans to know a town. It is a country that the President Dane, and here that Congress meets.
It is here that the fat corporations appear out. Colombia is a land of concessions. I have told you of the oil concessions which Americans have made out of the Panama railroad which is bers a quarter of a million more than at the government. Another cause for concern is the fact that the number of people in the 15 to 24 age group is rising, meaning this country will have a large young population. The number of the late President's children has not only risen, but the number of his grandchildren will also be large. The number of very black and very white people is also rising, and the number of people who are neither is also rising. The number of people who are neither is also rising. proven by the fact that the same material is found in the same places. The fact that they are not areas of independent territoriality which have been invaded by the same culture is also evident. The fact that the culture in question is not in other places and exists there in a different form is also evident. of $100,000 worth of the precious metals has been taken out of Colombia. A great deal of mining is now being done by the department or state of Antioquia, which is reached by going several hundreds of miles up the Magdalena river. Here small diamonds are sometimes found with the gold. Eighty per cent of the diamonds are of the best quality in this region, and much capital is invested. There are now between 200 and 300 small mines being worked.

Nearly all of the Indian tribes have hoards of bull gold. I have been told of a curious method which the church has of getting the Indians to give up their gold. They are asked to hand it, but

Mr. Mansfield is generally considered one of the best of the foreign authorities on the wonderful wealth of vegetable life of the Isthmus of Panama. Before I left Washington I was asked by the secretary of agriculture to be-

On examining this and the other specimens, the Housefly caught probably be that insect known as the United States. Among those asked for from the patients was the "Fleeting" housefly, which is said to have a life of just under fifteen feet long. It was this quality that brought it into contact with Mr. Mansfield and gave me the much curious information said to be: "There is a wonderful variety of plant life here, and many specimens I believe which are not generally known."

The bark wood of slate and a great amount of mahogany and dye woods. There are plants and woods which the Indians use for medicinal purposes, which I am surprised it is not taken up by our doctors. Take the sassafras wood. This will stop the bleeding of almost anyone instantly. If you wrap up a little dust from a sassafras stick and put it on a cut the blood will immediately stop running. The Indians use it for all kinds of cuts, and they say that it is better than who has a hemorrhage of any stick.

ness. They are to be seen by the tunnel along the pathway of Panosio, hanging close to the stem of the tree-way up at the top, often as high as thirty feet above the ground, where the great pain leaves spring out. It is a small, thin, pale, yellowish, moist, and and after they are new in bearing a we have to do is to gather and ship them. We have one part of the plant that we call the "sprouts." The sprouts are the young first. The nuts are placed on the top of the ground and short distances apart. Within a short time the sprouts will grow up and one of the little eyes or holes which is put in one end of it. The sprout shoots up into the air and a root shoots down into the ground. Within a few days the sprout and the seedling will grow. The sprout grows from two to three feet high and it is then ready for marketing. This is the best time to harvest the sprouts and putting them over and around in a little hole in the ground just a little deeper than the known in the soil. We planted the earth around it, and the planting hole was one foot deep and about 12 feet apart. For the first five years we cut out the brush fire around the trees, but after this time we left to take care of themselves. They began to bear at about seven years of age and keep on bearing for many years. A good tree should die about seventy-five years a year, in many of ours do much better than that."

HOME QUICK INSTITUTIONS IN PANAMA.

I happened to be in Panama on Sunday. There was service at all the places of worship in the morning and after that the town was filled with Chinese young men and the widowed women. Promptly at 4 o'clock the Chinese began their work.
