This is evident from there being no pain where the ball is supposed to be. The incision caused a painful though necessary wound, and its irritation brings high pulse. Such a cut on a strong person would be a serious infliction, but the weak ness of the President and his long fast makes it more painful. His pulse, which usually rises eight to ten degrees during the day, is the same at the morning bulletin. The mercury has been loll, and yet the fever subsided since the evening dressing. President Kemble, of the Philadelphia Union Passenger Railway, expects within a year to solve the question of street car transportation. He declares if he don't run cars with electricity he will run them with wire rope. The latter system, successful in San Francisco, and now undergoing trial in Chicago; is the one to which Kemble is looking with a considerable degree of hope and confidence.

Second Assistant Postmaster Gen-Second Assistant Postmaster General Elmore, who is considering the propriety of restoring the original schedules on a number of expedited mail routes, recently submitted the following questions to Judge Freeman, Assistant Attorney General for the Postoffice Department, for his opinion and solvice First—Does ordering expedition on a route constitute a new contract?
